MARSHALL HAILS SECURITY PACT

Rule By Steel Fist Assailed By Forrestal

Says "Excessive Use" Of Veto Hampers U.N.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Forrestal struck out at "ruthless" totalitarian leaders tonight and said that the development of the United Nations has been hampered by "excessive use of the veto."

Totalitarian governments, which he did not name, dominate without the will of the peoples they govern, he said.

"Since your last meeting," he said in a speech to the 48th National Encampment, Veterans of Foreign Wars, "there has been little progress toward the return of world stability and the creation of conditions for enduring peace.

"The development of the machinery of the United Nations has been hampered by the excessive use of the veto. The same tactic has limited the American attempt to resolve the menace and dissolve the fear that lies in the atomic bomb.

Billions In U. S. Aid

"Totalitarian governments, reflecting not the will of the peoples they govern but of groups of ruthless and ambitious men within and without the country, rule several countries, and are now endeavoring to put the same iron fist on others."

Forrestal, who has been named to head the combined military forces of the United States, said that 15 billion dollars of American money "has gone abroad to prevent famine and to provide hope for desperate millions throughout the world."

He said that the United States had not objected to carrying the main burden of material help almost singlehandedly "but it would be an understatement to say that we have been disappointed in the response of some nations to whom we have held out the hand of help and friendship only to meet with rebuff and invective."

American actions are not the actions of a nation that desires war, he declared.

"They do not indicate a ruthless and cynical quest after power. On the contrary they reflect a deep and sincere desire to do the American utmost to recreate a normal world in which men may again go about their way of making a living in peace, with hope for betterment of their individual lives and for the evolution of their governments in a way that reflects the aspirations and hopes of their people."

War Warning Sounded

Delegates attending opening sessions of the encampment heard warnings that the United States and Russia face each other as "two final powers," and that "war certainly is a possibility."

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, told the convention the United States "must help other nations to help themselves back to sanity. We must lead the way while there is still time, because across the globe two final powers face each other.

"The one is America and all that America represents and all that you Veterans of Foreign Wars fought to safeguard, and the other is Russia and all that Russia represents, and Russia is communizing the buffer states and Communism is spreading fast in the government of the United States," the congresswoman declared.

India, Pakistan Join In Efforts To End Butchery

Thousands Reported Slain In Rich Punjab

NEW DELHI, India, Sept. 4 (AP)—Officials of India and Pakistan, who went their independent ways as dominions less than a month ago, were obliged to undertake joint action today as a result of virtual anarchy which has engulfed the vast rich Punjab and threatens to spread into a Moslem-Hindu war.

A new case of appalling butchery came to light with arrival of a courier from a remote section of Pakistan Punjab who said a small Hindu military force sent into Shakirgarh district, 55 miles southeast of Sialkot, to protect 120,000 Sikhs and Hindus had found only 1,500 known survivors and the roads, fields and villages littered with thousands of bodies of victims. Only 2,000 were known to have escaped into adjoining Jammu state.

Gandhi Ends His Fast

Mohandas K. Gandhi ended his fast at Calcutta, however, three days and one hour after declaring he would go without food "until sanity returns to Calcutta." His physician earlier had reported he was growing steadily weaker.

All had been quiet in the city since Wednesday night.

India's leaders had feared that if anything ill befell the aged Mahatma as a result of the fast that the 40,000,000 Moslems in the Indian dominion would have to pay a terrible price at the hands of enraged Hindus.

Repercussions from the Punjab bloodshed had spread in recent days to Calcutta, Bombay, Delhi, the northwest frontier, and Karachi, capital of Pakistan, and leaders were openly fearful of outbreaks in yet other sections on a scale they shuddered to contemplate.

Prime Ministers Confer

In this situation Prime Ministers Jawaharlal Nehru, of India, and Liaquat Ali Khan, of Pakistan, their ministers, and provincial governors, in a joint meeting with the military at Lahore in the Punjab yesterday pledged themselves to operate as a virtual team in attempting to restore order, to protect refugees, to evacuate and feed displaced persons, to repair desecrated religious places, to restore abducted women and not to recognize illegal seizures of property.

How they might do all this was not yet clear. How significant it may be in indicating the possibility that the future may yet see India and Pakistan attempt some sort of union was not yet clear, either.

Italy Appeals For Financial Help From U.S.

Early Congressional Session Up To Truman

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP) — Italy has made an urgent appeal to the United States for swift financial help to buy food and fuel, diplomats said today.

Meantime American officials studied the question of calling Congress to a special session to consider Europe's economic troubles.

This question will have to be decided by President Truman after his return from Brazil. Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett said yesterday that the economic situation in Britain, France and other European countries is deteriorating faster than expected.

Diplomatic informants said Italy has informed the United States that she must have swift financial help to buy essential food and fuel during the next four months. These informants said Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani made the appeal late last week when he outlined his country's economic plight to Lovett.

May Cancel Coal Purchases

The Italian Ambassador is said to have told Lovett his country is so desperately short of funds it may have to cancel all American coal purchases scheduled for October delivery. Italy's imports of United States coal have averaged more than 700,000 tons a month.

Tarchiani also reported that poor Italian harvests and other setbacks have caused Italy to spend or earmark every available dollar in the Italian Treasury months sooner than naticipated.

Some American officials, while not overlooking the plight of Britain and France, made it plain they regard hard-pressed Italy as the danger spot to watch because the Communist Party there can be expected to capitalize on any disruption in the flow of food and coal supplies.

These officials said France and Britain have gold and dollar reserves to fall back on, whereas the Italians have already dipped into their last resources and are scraping the bottom of the barrel. Even the $125,000,000 in United States relief funds tentatively earmarked for Italy, they said, will not be sufficient to ward off an economic crisis.

Hawkes Raps Administration

Meanwhile, with Congress in recess, the administration came under increasing Republican criticism.

Sen. Hawkes (R-NJ) told a news conference that Congress should not be "handicapped or obligated" by financial commitments to other countries made by the executive branch of the government.

"Congress should not have to say, as they did last session, 'I agree with you we should not do it, but we're obligated and have to do it.'" Hawkes said.

Asked if he referred to the Marshall plan for European recovery, Hawkes replied: "I mean any plan. Plans should be developed without obligation and should be submitted to Congress."

State Sales Tax Valid, Judge Says

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP)—Circuit Judge E. Paul Mason today ruled Maryland's new two per cent sales tax is "constitutional, valid and enforceable."

His decision was on a suit filed by Attorney Hyman A. Pressman, who contended the legislation is unconstitutional because Gov. Lane forced its passage through last winter's General Assembly by "coercing" the legislators.

Pressman had alleged that Gov. Lane violated the Constitution by usurping the power of the Legislature when he insisted that the sales tax be passed.

Through the Attorney General, Gov. Lane entered a demurrer to Pressman's petition and Judge Mason sustained it. He ruled that none of Pressman's contentions were sufficiently definite or sound to warrant further proceedings.

Pressman had contended the Governor threatened to withhold state funds from agencies in which certain legislators were interested unless they voted for the sales tax. The judge said the condition of state finances would have prevented the usual appropriations unless increased funds became available by taxation.

Pressman contended the Governor had told legislators he would disregard their wishes on appointments unless they voted for the tax. Judge Mason pointed out that the Senate still had the power to pass on some gubernatorial appointments and that in other cases the wishes of the legislators are inconsequential.

Hagerstown Bus Strike

HAGERSOWN, Md., Sept. 4 (AP)—Drivers and mechanics for the Potomac Motor Lines, which provides bus service for a tri-state area, went out on strike tonight for the second time within two weeks.

Spokesmen for the 24 employes, who are not organized, said after a conference with the owner, W. R. Cunningham, all issues except a demand for 25 cents more an hour were resolved.

Bevin's Proposal Causing Concern And Speculation

British Foreign Office Keeps Mum

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's trade union speech urging distribution of United States gold was still causing bewilderment and concern in foreign diplomatic quarters tonight, along with speculation as to its possible effect on Anglo-American relations.

Evidence existed that the Foreign Office itself—which crisply declined any comment—was puzzled by Bevin's key proposals before the British Trade Union Congress yesterday—redistribution of the "Fort Knox Gold" and a close tightening of economic and defense links within the empire.

Viewed As Part Of Aid Plan

The only light on the gold suggestion came from an authoritative American source who said Bevin, in a 70-minute talk today with a delegation of visiting American Congressmen who are investigating economic conditions here and in Europe, had explained he viewed redistribution of the United States gold stocks as an integral part of the Marshall plan for European revival.

He was said to have made the assertion that the proposal has the backing of the British government and that the idea had been previously advanced informally in a conversation with United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas. Exchanges between the United States State Department and British Foreign Office were expected on the proposal.

The American informant said Bevin made these points, which were received "somewhat skeptically" by the United States congressmen:

Unsound Economics

It is unsound economics and out of harmony with the principles of international trade espoused by the United States for one country to hold most of the world's monetary gold and not use it.

There would be no lasting European economic settlement if recovery was to depend on never-ending United States loans.

Gold could become the basis of world currency systems and every nation should have access to it.

"Ridiculous," Morgenthau Says

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 4 (AP) — Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., today described as "ridiculous" British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's proposal that the United States redistribute its huge gold supply to aid world economy.

Morgenthau declined to amplify his remark, informing a reporter that he had broken his own rule by making any comment not bearing on the purpose of his current tour in support of the United Jewish Appeal.

Judge Voids Ex-WAC's Gem Theft Conviction

PULLMAN COMPANY GRANTED AUTHORITY TO BOOST CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Pullman Company today was given special Interstate Commerce Commission authority to raise its charges for sleeping car services on a sliding scale ranging from one to 48.9 per cent.

The company, which must give 20 days notice to the public, said it would aim to put the increases into effect October 1.

Now owned and operated by the railroads, the company estimated the revision would bring in an additional $13,000,000 a year revenue. It told the commission the changes were necessary to meet steadily increasing operating costs.

Under the revisions, Pullman proposes to wipe out the present standard lower berth rates of $2.35, $2.65 and $2.95 applying to short overnight trips in many parts of the country, and establish instead a new minimum standard of $3.50.

Rules Army Tribunal Lacked Jurisdiction

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 4 (AP) —The court-martial conviction of former WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant for complicity in the theft of the Hesse crown jewels was voided today by United States District Judge Ben Moore, paving the way for her release from a five-year prison sentence.

In a 20-page opinion, Judge Moore upheld the contention of Mrs. Durant that she was a civilian at the time of her arrest on June 3, 1946, saying:

"It is my conclusion that petitioner's terminal leave orders were never effectively revoked, and that by their self-executing provisions she was finally and formally separated from the service on May 30, 1946."

Convicted In Germany

"So I conclude," the opinion added, "that petitioner's actual status while on terminal leave, as distinguished from her technical status for pay purposes only, was that of an officer on inactive duty."

Mrs. Durant, now a prisoner at the Federal Reformatory for Women in Alderson, W. Va., was convicted by an Army tribunal in Germany of participating in the theft of $1,500,000 worth of the Hesse crown jewels from Kronberg Castle, Germany.

Her husband, Jack W. Durant, former Army colonel, was convicted and sentenced to 15 years at hard labor for his part in the theft.

Counsel for Mrs. Durant filed a petition in the District Court here last June for her release from prison on a writ of habeas corpus, and a hearing on it was held in mid-July.

United States District Attorney Leslie E. Given explained that it would now be up to the Justice Department to decide what next step the government might take in the case.

Release Not Ordered

There was no final order directing Mrs. Durant's release. This will be prepared by opposing counsel and submitted to Judge Moore for his approval and signature.

Given explained that should the government file objections to the final order, the court might or might not order Mrs. Durant's release.

Judge Moore emphasized that he was not ruling upon Mrs. Durant's guilt or innocence, but said the court-martial lacked jurisdiction to try and said on this point:

"The question which the court must decide, therefore, is: Was petitioner an officer on active duty at the time of her arrest? If so, the court-martial had jurisdiction; if not, it lacked jurisdiction."

Clash Over U.N. Presidency Due

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 4 (AP) — The United Nations was on the lookout tonight for an impartial world leader to head the forthcoming meeting of the General Assembly. Preliminary discussions already showed the old familiar lines o fan East-West split.

Early speculation for the Assembly presidency—described by a high United Nations official as the "hottest job in international politics"—centered on Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister of External Affairs; Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium; Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, and Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, of Brazil. Other hats may be tossed into the ring in the next two weeks, of course.

Evatt was in the race with the assured opposition of Russia but with a good chance of support from the western powers.

The Australian's personal clashes with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Deputy Andrei Y. Vishinsky at the Paris Peace Conference plus his wrangles with Andrei A Gromyko over the veto when Evatt sat in the Security Council during its early days in New York gave the Russians ammunition for their objections. In addition, Evatt's outspoken feelings on prospects for peace with Japan have not helped his standing with the Kremlin.

Agreement May Make Sophoulis Greek Premier

Parliament Delays Vote Of Confidence

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 4. (AP)—Usually reliable sources said tonight an agreement had been reached between the Liberal and Populist (Royalist) Parties to make Liberal Leader Themistokles Sophoulis Premier of Greece.

These informants said Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populists, had agreed to yield the premiership on condition that he head an inner cabinet group including the Ministries of War, Public Order and Justice which would be directly concerned in prosecuting the fight against Leftist guerrillas in Northern Greece.

"Rappprochment" Reached

Both Sophoulis and Tsaldaris said earlier that a "rapprochment between the views of the two parties has been arrived at which gives hope for a satisfactory solution for the general interest of Greece."

Tsaldaris also said that definite decision would be reached by tomorrow on the government question.

The prospect of a compromise in broadening Tsaldaris' one-party government brought a postponement until Saturday of a showdown vote of confidence in Parliament. United States representatives in Athens have urged the organization of a coalition government for Greece.

Significantly, Sophoulis introduced in Parliament the motion for a postponement of the vote of confidence. Sophoulis' demands for the premiership and the portfolios of public order, war and justice for his followers heretofore have prevented the formation of a coalition cabinet.

Gonatas Supports Motion

The motion was supported by Stylianos Gonatas, one of the six solidly aligned opposition leaders whose refusal to co-operate with Tsaldaris forced the Populist leader last Friday to go ahead with organization of a government composed entirely of his Monarchist followers.

In a conciliatory statement, Tsaldaris made a plea for unity and told Parliament some progress had been made in a raproachment between the two largest parties—his Populists and Sophoulis' Liberals.

Proves World Peace Can Be Accomplished

Treaty Is Called Example For U. N.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall told the nation tonight that the new inter-American security pact is proof that "where nations are sincerely desirous of promoting the peace and well being of the world it can be done."

Marshall, with evident reference to long and difficult negotiations with Russia over European peacemaking, declared that the task also can be accomplished "without frustrating delays and without much of the confusing and disturbing propaganda that has attended our efforts of the past two years."

The Secretary spoke jointly with Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, over national radio networks in a half-hour broadcast. Both men returned yesterday from the conference at Petropolis, Brazil, where the new inter-American pact was drafted and signed.

Both men hailed the accomplishments as an example for the United Nations in the development of world peace and Vandenberg called it "sunlight in a dark world."

"Maximum Protection"

Vandenberg said he would present the treaty to the Senate for ratification "with every confidence that it will deserve prompt and enthusiastic approval of its traditionally American ideals."

The Senator said the pact "throws maximum protections" around the Americas if their peace is menaced by armed attack "from any source whatever" either inside or outside the inter-American region, which includes both Canada and Greenland.

Marshall said of the treaty:

"I do not think it is an overstatement to say that this demonstration of trust and co-operation, this evidence of a willingness to adjust the many varied national points of view in order to make possible a unanimous agreement for the good of all, is the most encouraging, the most stimulating international action since the close of hostilities."

As if in response to foreign propaganda charges that the United States imposed its own will in the drafting of the agreement, Marshall declared:

"None of the 19 nations concerned sought to impose its will on the others. Agreement was reached on a voluntary basis, each nation manifesting its will to adjust its own position to that of the others out of respect for the opinion of the majority.

"No nation triumphed over any other," Marshall continued, "for this was not a contest between nations but a 'get-together' among them. And yet there resulted no watered-down formula — no lowest common denominator of compromise on vital principles."

Refers To Coming Conference

The Secretary did not discuss in his brief radio talk any foreign policy questions other than the formulation of the new pact. He described the treaty as having committed the nations of the American hemisphere "to act collectively for the peace and security of the new world and to do this in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations."

He said the next steps in develop-

"Miss Kentucky" Scores In Beauty Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4. (AP)—Age went before the other beauties tonight at the "Miss America, 1947" pageant when ravenhaired Miss Kentucky—26 and the oldest girl in the contest—captured the title in the second bathing suit preliminary.

The winner of the bathing suit division of the pageant stands five feet, five inches, weighs 110 pounds, has a bust measuring 33 inches, is black-haired and has hazel eyes.

Discovery Of Enormous Red Stars On Edge Of Milky Way Is Reported

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP)—Discovery of the outer edge of the Milky Way, lined by enormous red stars with soft Japanese lantern hues that are invisible to the eye, was reported to the American Astronomical Society today.

These outer stars are so big that if they were the size of Japanese lanterns other stars would be the size of fireflies. If the sun were at the center of one of these red giants, the earth would still be inside the red star. The diameters of these stars are about 200,000,000 miles each.

The report was made by J. J. Nassau and G. B. Van Albada, of the Warner and Swasey Observatory of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland. These stars were discovered on photographic plates by the use of the same infra-red rays that American GIs used in sniper-scopes to see Japanese at night by the heat of the Japs' own bodies.

The Milky Way is shaped like a pancake with the sun and earth about two-thirds of the way out toward the rim. The outer rim was supposed to end in bright, white stars that could be seen. The presence of the red giant stars hanging at the rim like Japanese lanterns was unknown until the heat rays were used a few months ago.

Similar red giant stars are visible by ordinary light in nearer parts of the Milky Way. The heat of these red stars is about half that of the sun, but the substances forming them are amazingly tenuous. Most of this red star body is so much thinner than air that it would be considered a good vacuum on earth. Nevertheless due to some as yet mysterious reason this vacuum is blazing hot at about 5400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Upturn In Commodity Prices Is Led By Corn

CHICAGO, Sept. 4. (AP)—A general upturn in commodity prices in the nation's primary markets today was paced by corn, which sold at a new record peak as additional deterioration was reported in America's most important grain crop.

While prices climbed to levels never before seen, John Krey, chairman of the American Meat Institute, told the organization's annual meeting "a major catastrophe is striking this country and a hungry world because of the drastic reduction in this year's corn production."

In New York, Eugene Schulz, the city's markets commissioner, said there was "only slight consumer resistance" to mounting prices for foods. He predicted that butter, selling at 87 cents a pound retail, would advance further because of small supplies.

Trade reports from New York said dealers were predicting retail prices of $1.00 a pound for butter and $1.00 a dozen for eggs.

First Overseas Shipment Of "Topes" Will Be Rushed By Air To Australia

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced tonight that the first overseas shipment of American atomic by-products known as "radioisotopes" will be rushed by plane tomorrow on a mercy mission to Australia.

The announcement said the shipment, consisting of 32 millicuries of atomic pile-produced phosphorous 32, will be used to treat an "urgent case" of polycythemia vera, a blood disorder.

Packaged in glass, steel, lead and wood, the "topes" will leave the commission's atomic plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., tomorrow afternoon. The package will be flown from nearby Knoxville airport via Delta Air Lines to Chicago, thence via United Air Lines to San Francisco for transfer to the Australian consular agent there.

From San Francisco, the package will be flown by British Commonwealth Pacific Air Lines to Australia. It will leave San Francisco on Sunday morning.

The commission said in a statement that shipment by air is necessary because phosphorous 32 has a "half life" of only 14.3 days. That means that in 14.3 days after leaving the Oak Ridge laboratory, one half of its original radioactivity will have been lost. In another 14.3 days, half of the remaining activity will disappear, and so on.

Meanwhile, commission officials said Uncle Sam will act as a vigilant shipping agent for the newly-released list of 20 radioisotopes, whose "half-life" spans range from 4.8 hours to 1,000,000 years.

Officials emphasized that every precaution will be taken to safeguard shipments of the potentially dangerous "topes" to medical and biological research laboratories abroad.

These informants said Italian Ambassador Alberto Tarchiani made the appeal late last week when he outlined his country's economic plight to Lovett.

May Cancel Coal Purchases

The Italian Ambassador is said to have told Lovett his country is so desperately short of funds it may have to cancel all American coal purchases scheduled for October delivery. Italy's imports of United States coal have averaged more than 700,000 tons a month.

Tarchiani also reported that poor Italian harvests and other setbacks have caused Italy to spend or earmark every available dollar in the Italian Treasury months sooner than naticipated.

Some American officials, while not overlooking the plight of Britain and France, made it plain they regard hard-pressed Italy as the danger spot to watch because the Communist Party there can be expected to capitalize on any disruption in the flow of food and coal supplies.

These officials said France and Britain have gold and dollar reserves to fall back on, whereas the Italians have already dipped into their last resources and are scraping the bottom of the barrel. Even the $125,000,000 in United States relief funds tentatively earmarked for Italy, they said, will not be sufficient to ward off an economic crisis.

Hawkes Raps Administration

Meanwhile, with Congress in recess, the administration came under increasing Republican criticism.

Sen. Hawkes (R-NJ) told a news conference that Congress should not be "handicapped or obligated" by financial commitments to other countries made by the executive branch of the government.

"Congress should not have to say, as they did last session, 'I agree with you we should not do it, but we're obligated and have to do it.'" Hawkes said.

Asked if he referred to the Marshall plan for European recovery, Hawkes replied: "I mean any plan. Plans should be developed without obligation and should be submitted to Congress."

State Sales Tax Valid, Judge Says

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP)—Circuit Judge E. Paul Mason today ruled Maryland's new two per cent sales tax is "constitutional, valid and enforceable."

His decision was on a suit filed by Attorney Hyman A. Pressman, who contended the legislation is unconstitutional because Gov. Lane forced its passage through last winter's General Assembly by "coercing" the legislators.

Pressman had alleged that Gov. Lane violated the Constitution by usurping the power of the Legislature when he insisted that the sales tax be passed.

Through the Attorney General, Gov. Lane entered a demurrer to Pressman's petition and Judge Mason sustained it. He ruled that none of Pressman's contentions were sufficiently definite or sound to warrant further proceedings.

Pressman had contended the Governor threatened to withhold state funds from agencies in which certain legislators were interested unless they voted for the sales tax. The judge said the condition of state finances would have prevented the usual appropriations unless increased funds became available by taxation.

Pressman contended the Governor had told legislators he would disregard their wishes on appointments unless they voted for the tax. Judge Mason pointed out that the Senate still had the power to pass on some gubernatorial appointments and that in other cases the wishes of the legislators are inconsequential.

Hagerstown Bus Strike

HAGERSOWN, Md., Sept. 4 (AP)—Drivers and mechanics for the Potomac Motor Lines, which provides bus service for a tri-state area, went out on strike tonight for the second time within two weeks.

Spokesmen for the 24 employes, who are not organized, said after a conference with the owner, W. R. Cunningham, all issues except a demand for 25 cents more an hour were resolved.

British Foreign Office Keeps Mum

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP) — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's trade union speech urging distribution of United States gold was still causing bewilderment and concern in foreign diplomatic quarters tonight, along with speculation as to its possible effect on Anglo-American relations.

Evidence existed that the Foreign Office itself—which crisply declined any comment—was puzzled by Bevin's key proposals before the British Trade Union Congress yesterday—redistribution of the "Fort Knox Gold" and a close tightening of economic and defense links within the empire.

Viewed As Part Of Aid Plan

The only light on the gold suggestion came from an authoritative American source who said Bevin, in a 70-minute talk today with a delegation of visiting American Congressmen who are investigating economic conditions here and in Europe, had explained he viewed redistribution of the United States gold stocks as an integral part of the Marshall plan for European revival.

He was said to have made the assertion that the proposal has the backing of the British government and that the idea had been previously advanced informally in a conversation with United States Ambassador Lewis W. Douglas. Exchanges between the United States State Department and British Foreign Office were expected on the proposal.

The American informant said Bevin made these points, which were received "somewhat skeptically" by the United States congressmen:

Unsound Economics

It is unsound economics and out of harmony with the principles of international trade espoused by the United States for one country to hold most of the world's monetary gold and not use it.

There would be no lasting European economic settlement if recovery was to depend on never-ending United States loans.

Gold could become the basis of world currency systems and every nation should have access to it.

"Ridiculous," Morgenthau Says

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 4 (AP) — Former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., today described as "ridiculous" British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's proposal that the United States redistribute its huge gold supply to aid world economy.

Morgenthau declined to amplify his remark, informing a reporter that he had broken his own rule by making any comment not bearing on the purpose of his current tour in support of the United Jewish Appeal.

Judge Voids Ex-WAC's Gem Theft Conviction

PULLMAN COMPANY GRANTED AUTHORITY TO BOOST CHARGES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Pullman Company today was given special Interstate Commerce Commission authority to raise its charges for sleeping car services on a sliding scale ranging from one to 48.9 per cent.

The company, which must give 20 days notice to the public, said it would aim to put the increases into effect October 1.

Now owned and operated by the railroads, the company estimated the revision would bring in an additional $13,000,000 a year revenue. It told the commission the changes were necessary to meet steadily increasing operating costs.

Under the revisions, Pullman proposes to wipe out the present standard lower berth rates of $2.35, $2.65 and $2.95 applying to short overnight trips in many parts of the country, and establish instead a new minimum standard of $3.50.

Rules Army Tribunal Lacked Jurisdiction

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 4 (AP)—The court-martial conviction of former WAC Capt. Kathleen Nash Durant for complicity in the theft of the Hesse crown jewels was voided today by United States District Judge Ben Moore, paving the way for her release from a five-year prison sentence.

In a 20-page opinion, Judge Moore upheld the contention of Mrs. Durant that she was a civilian at the time of her arrest on June 3, 1946, saying:

"It is my conclusion that petitioner's terminal leave orders were never effectively revoked, and that by their self-executing provisions she was finally and formally separated from the service on May 30, 1946."

Convicted In Germany

"So I conclude," the opinion added, "that petitioner's actual status while on terminal leave, as distinguished from her technical status for pay purposes only, was that of an officer on inactive duty."

Mrs. Durant, now a prisoner at the Federal Reformatory for Women in Alderson, W. Va., was convicted by an Army tribunal in Germany of participating in the theft of $1,500,000 worth of the Hesse crown jewels from Kronberg Castle, Germany.

Her husband, Jack W. Durant, former Army colonel, was convicted and sentenced to 15 years at hard labor for his part in the theft.

Counsel for Mrs. Durant filed a petition in the District Court here last June for her release from prison on a writ of habeas corpus, and a hearing on it was held in mid-July.

United States District Attorney Leslie E. Given explained that it would now be up to the Justice Department to decide what next step the government might take in the case.

Release Not Ordered

There was no final order directing Mrs. Durant's release. This will be prepared by opposing counsel and submitted to Judge Moore for his approval and signature.

Given explained that should the government file objections to the final order, the court might or might not order Mrs. Durant's release.

Judge Moore emphasized that he was not ruling upon Mrs. Durant's guilt or innocence, but said the court-martial lacked jurisdiction to try and said on this point:

"The question which the court must decide, therefore, is: Was petitioner an officer on active duty at the time of her arrest? If so, the court-martial had jurisdiction; if not, it lacked jurisdiction."

Clash Over U.N. Presidency Due

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 4 (AP) — The United Nations was on the lookout tonight for an impartial world leader to head the forthcoming meeting of the General Assembly. Preliminary discussions already showed the old familiar lines o fan East-West split.

Early speculation for the Assembly presidency—described by a high United Nations official as the "hottest job in international politics"—centered on Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian Minister of External Affairs; Premier Paul-Henri Spaak, of Belgium; Jan Masaryk, Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, and Dr. Oswaldo Aranha, of Brazil. Other hats may be tossed into the ring in the next two weeks, of course.

Evatt was in the race with the assured opposition of Russia but with a good chance of support from the western powers.

The Australian's personal clashes with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and Deputy Andrei Y. Vishinsky at the Paris Peace Conference plus his wrangles with Andrei A Gromyko over the veto when Evatt sat in the Security Council during its early days in New York gave the Russians ammunition for their objections. In addition, Evatt's outspoken feelings on prospects for peace with Japan have not helped his standing with the Kremlin.

Agreement May Make Sophoulis Greek Premier

Parliament Delays Vote Of Confidence

ATHENS, Greece, Sept. 4. (AP)—Usually reliable sources said tonight an agreement had been reached between the Liberal and Populist (Royalist) Parties to make Liberal Leader Themistokles Sophoulis Premier of Greece.

These informants said Constantin Tsaldaris, leader of the Populists, had agreed to yield the premiership on condition that he head an inner cabinet group including the Ministries of War, Public Order and Justice which would be directly concerned in prosecuting the fight against Leftist guerrillas in Northern Greece.

"Rappprochment" Reached

Both Sophoulis and Tsaldaris said earlier that a "rapprochment between the views of the two parties has been arrived at which gives hope for a satisfactory solution for the general interest of Greece."

Tsaldaris also said that definite decision would be reached by tomorrow on the government question.

The prospect of a compromise in broadening Tsaldaris' one-party government brought a postponement until Saturday of a showdown vote of confidence in Parliament. United States representatives in Athens have urged the organization of a coalition government for Greece.

Significantly, Sophoulis introduced in Parliament the motion for a postponement of the vote of confidence. Sophoulis' demands for the premiership and the portfolios of public order, war and justice for his followers heretofore have prevented the formation of a coalition cabinet.

Gonatas Supports Motion

The motion was supported by Stylianos Gonatas, one of the six solidly aligned opposition leaders whose refusal to co-operate with Tsaldaris forced the Populist leader last Friday to go ahead with organization of a government composed entirely of his Monarchist followers.

In a conciliatory statement, Tsaldaris made a plea for unity and told Parliament some progress had been made in a raproachment between the two largest parties—his Populists and Sophoulis' Liberals.

Proves World Peace Can Be Accomplished

Treaty Is Called Example For U. N.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Secretary of State Marshall told the nation tonight that the new inter-American security pact is proof that "where nations are sincerely desirous of promoting the peace and well being of the world it can be done."

Marshall, with evident reference to long and difficult negotiations with Russia over European peacemaking, declared that the task also can be accomplished "without frustrating delays and without much of the confusing and disturbing propaganda that has attended our efforts of the past two years."

The Secretary spoke jointly with Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich), of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, over national radio networks in a half-hour broadcast. Both men returned yesterday from the conference at Petropolis, Brazil, where the new inter-American pact was drafted and signed.

Both men hailed the accomplishments as an example for the United Nations in the development of world peace and Vandenberg called it "sunlight in a dark world."

"Maximum Protection"

Vandenberg said he would present the treaty to the Senate for ratification "with every confidence that it will deserve prompt and enthusiastic approval of its traditionally American ideals."

The Senator said the pact "throws maximum protections" around the Americas if their peace is menaced by armed attack "from any source whatever" either inside or outside the inter-American region, which includes both Canada and Greenland.

Marshall said of the treaty:

"I do not think it is an overstatement to say that this demonstration of trust and co-operation, this evidence of a willingness to adjust the many varied national points of view in order to make possible a unanimous agreement for the good of all, is the most encouraging, the most stimulating international action since the close of hostilities."

As if in response to foreign propaganda charges that the United States imposed its own will in the drafting of the agreement, Marshall declared:

"None of the 19 nations concerned sought to impose its will on the others. Agreement was reached on a voluntary basis, each nation manifesting its will to adjust its own position to that of the others out of respect for the opinion of the majority.

"No nation triumphed over any other," Marshall continued, "for this was not a contest between nations but a 'get-together' among them. And yet there resulted no watered-down formula — no lowest common denominator of compromise on vital principles."

Refers To Coming Conference

The Secretary did not discuss in his brief radio talk any foreign policy questions other than the formulation of the new pact. He described the treaty as having committed the nations of the American hemisphere "to act collectively for the peace and security of the new world and to do this in accordance with the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations."

He said the next steps in develop-

"Miss Kentucky" Scores In Beauty Pageant

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 4. (AP)—Age went before the other beauties tonight at the "Miss America, 1947" pageant when ravenhaired Miss Kentucky—26 and the oldest girl in the contest—captured the title in the second bathing suit preliminary.

The winner of the bathing suit division of the pageant stands five feet, five inches, weighs 110 pounds, has a bust measuring 33 inches, is black-haired and has hazel eyes.

Discovery Of Enormous Red Stars On Edge Of Milky Way Is Reported

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP)—Discovery of the outer edge of the Milky Way, lined by enormous red stars with soft Japanese lantern hues that are invisible to the eye, was reported to the American Astronomical Society today.

These outer stars are so big that if they were the size of Japanese lanterns other stars would be the size of fireflies. If the sun were at the center of one of these red giants, the earth would still be inside the red star. The diameters of these stars are about 200,000,000 miles each.

The report was made by J. J. Nassau and G. B. Van Albada, of the Warner and Swasey Observatory of the Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland. These stars were discovered on photographic plates by the use of the same infra-red rays that American GIs used in sniper-scopes to see Japanese at night by the heat of the Japs' own bodies.

The Milky Way is shaped like a pancake with the sun and earth about two-thirds of the way out toward the rim. The outer rim was supposed to end in bright, white stars that could be seen. The presence of the red giant stars hanging at the rim like Japanese lanterns was unknown until the heat rays were used a few months ago.

Similar red giant stars are visible by ordinary light in nearer parts of the Milky Way. The heat of these red stars is about half that of the sun, but the substances forming them are amazingly tenuous. Most of this red star body is so much thinner than air that it would be considered a good vacuum on earth. Nevertheless due to some as yet mysterious reason this vacuum is blazing hot at about 5400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Upturn In Commodity Prices Is Led By Corn

CHICAGO, Sept. 4. (AP)—A general upturn in commodity prices in the nation's primary markets today was paced by corn, which sold at a new record peak as additional deterioration was reported in America's most important grain crop.

While prices climbed to levels never before seen, John Krey, chairman of the American Meat Institute, told the organization's annual meeting "a major catastrophe is striking this country and a hungry world because of the drastic reduction in this year's corn production."

In New York, Eugene Schulz, the city's markets commissioner, said there was "only slight consumer resistance" to mounting prices for foods. He predicted that butter, selling at 87 cents a pound retail, would advance further because of small supplies.

Trade reports from New York said dealers were predicting retail prices of $1.00 a pound for butter and $1.00 a dozen for eggs.

First Overseas Shipment Of "Topes" Will Be Rushed By Air To Australia

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission announced tonight that the first overseas shipment of American atomic by-products known as "radioisotopes" will be rushed by plane tomorrow on a mercy mission to Australia.

The announcement said the shipment, consisting of 32 millicuries of atomic pile-produced phosphorous 32, will be used to treat an "urgent case" of polycythemia vera, a blood disorder.

Packaged in glass, steel, lead and wood, the "topes" will leave the commission's atomic plant at Oak Ridge, Tenn., tomorrow afternoon. The package will be flown from nearby Knoxville airport via Delta Air Lines to Chicago, thence via United Air Lines to San Francisco for transfer to the Australian consular agent there.

From San Francisco, the package will be flown by British Commonwealth Pacific Air Lines to Australia. It will leave San Francisco on Sunday morning.

The commission said in a statement that shipment by air is necessary because phosphorous 32 has a "half life" of only 14.3 days. That means that in 14.3 days after leaving the Oak Ridge laboratory, one half of its original radioactivity will have been lost. In another 14.3 days, half of the remaining activity will disappear, and so on.

Meanwhile, commission officials said Uncle Sam will act as a vigilant shipping agent for the newly-released list of 20 radioisotopes, whose "half-life" spans range from 4.8 hours to 1,000,000 years.

Officials emphasized that every precaution will be taken to safeguard shipments of the potentially dangerous "topes" to medical and biological research laboratories abroad.

Md. Vets' Group Will Concentrate On Homes To Rent

Commission Elects Finan As Secretary

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Maryland Veterans' Housing Commission reported today it would concentrate on devising a program which would produce houses for former servicemen to rent.

Discussing the results of the group's first meeting here last night, Chairman Joseph D. Buscher an assistant attorney general from Silver Springs, said it was the considered opinion that most veterans cannot afford to buy a home at today's high-cost level.

The commission said it would try to obtain subsidies from the federal, state, and local governments or at least obtain underwriting from these sources and work closely with the private building industry.

It said it also would seek lower tax assessments or tax rates for such houses and would advocate giving veterans priority to purchase tax-delinquent properties.

Co-operation Requested

The commission called on local housing authorities, veterans organizations and civic groups to lend it a hand.

Henry P. Irr, member of the Maryland State Planning Commission and a member of the housing group, was designated to negotiate with the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore.

Harry Cropper, commission member from Salisbury, was named to carry out an information program which would keep local authorities advised on new legislation and other developments in the housing program.

The commission's other actions:

Finan Elected Secretary

Decided to present all data it can collect, along with its recommendations, to the Special Joint Congressional Committee on Housing and the House Education and Labor Subcommittee, both of which are investigating monopoly and racketeering in the housing industry.

Voted to ask the Board of Public Works to provide secretarial help.

Other members of the commission are Thomas Finan, Cumberland, who was elected secretary, and Ted Englehardt, Silver Spring.

The commission was named by Gov. Lane and Buscher was appointed its chairman pursuant to an act of the 1947 General Assembly.

Phone Call And Note Reveal Murder-Suicide

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 4—(AP) — A middle-aged couple was found shot to death today after a telephone call instructed a funeral home to come after the husband to take him to a hospital.

Justice of Peace L. O. Fowler returned an inquest verdict of murder and suicide in the deaths of Mrs. Maible Albertson, about 50, and her husband Leary Albertson, 54, an engineer for a meat packing company.

The bodies were found after a telephone call from a woman to a funeral home instructed it to "come out and get my husband and take him to hospital." The caller added, "This is not an emergency. There is no big hurry."

When ambulance attendants arrived they found a note on the door of the house, "Come on in—patient in back bedroom—please."

Fowler said the attendants found both Albertsons dead.

DIVER FINDS FALSE TEETH IN 30 FEET OF WATER; EARNS $75

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP) — Walter Ford, whose false teeth popped out and sank in 30 feet of water when he gasped for air on reaching the surface after a prolonged underwater swim, paid a professional diver $75 for retrieving them.

Ford arranged yesterday for Charles Delps to dive for the teeth, valued by their owner at $150. He agreed to pay $15 if the dive was unsuccessful or $75 if Delps was successful.

Delps donned a shallow water mask and dived into the Mississippi River backwater. After a 10-minute search, he broke surface with Ford's set of uppers. "The water was so cold down there I heard the teeth chattering," he said.

Cancer Growths May Be Slowed

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4. (AP)—A possibility of slowing down cancer growths to give more time for successful treatment was described today to the Fourth International Cancer Research Congress.

Rats with cancer can be kept alive three times longer by reducing the protein in their food and by giving them certain chemicals, Dr. Leslie A. Elson, biochemist of the Chester Beatty Research Institute, London, reported.

The animal studies still are experimental, but there is a chance they may lead to methods of retarding cancers in humans, he added.

Dr. Elson is working with a few of the chemicals which induce cancer in experimental animals. But once the cancer is started, these same chemicals sometimes show ability to slow down the cancer growth.

He found that the diet could affect this ability. There was very little if any slow-down effect when rats were fed a diet containing 25 per cent protein while they also were receiving the chmical.

But on diets with only five per cent protein, plus the chemical, the rats showed a remarkable slowing of cancer growth, he said. There was no change in cancer growth in other rats which did not receive the chemical, regardless of how much or how little protein they were fed.

Two Youths Accused Of Torturing Boy, 14

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho, Sept 4 (AP)—Torturing of 14-year-old Joseph Cannon for nearly two weeks in an isolated mountain cabin was charged to two 'teen age youths in a complaint filed yesterday in Elmore County Probate Court.

Prosecutor Perce Hall said Don Elders, 17, and Leroy M. Landers, Jr., 16, waived a preliminary hearing on felony charges of mayhem during arraignment before Probate Judge A. F. Anderson.

Hall said Cannon accused his companions of imprisoning him for 12 days, burning him with gasoline, slashing him with knives and battering him with tug chains from a horse harness. Cannon was quoted as saying he did not know the reason for the attacks.

Elders and Landers were held in Elmore County Jail in lieu of bonds.

Government Claim That Railroads Overcharged It Is Denied By AAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—A government claim today that it was overcharged by 717 railroads on the wartime movement of explosives and ammunition drew a prompt and emphatic denial from the Association of American Railroads.

The overcharges were alleged in a petition for investigation filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Attorney General Tom Clark. He previously had filed seven complaints against the railroads challenging freight charges for the handling of war materials between 1942 and 1946.

The demand for refund on explosives and ammunition was estimated to involve between 30 million and 40 million dollars. The Justice Department said "the magnitude of the shipments and the successful safety measures" with which the armed forces surrounded them "entitled the government to rates much lower than those imposed by the railroads."

William T. Faricy, president of the AAR, said in a statement that the government was given a special rate for the handling of explosives and ammunition which was "less than was charged any other shipper for the same service." He said the rate had been "approved and and accepted as reasonable by the War and Navy Departments" and was "fixed in the same legal manner as those for other wartime government traffic."

"Moreover," he said, "the railroads allowed two stopovers for all shipments on this important war freight and did not impose any additional charge for this privilege. Obviously this added to the railroads' costs of performing this service as did the special handling and care which these commodities required."

ing hemisphere solidarity will be taken in a conference scheduled for Bogota, Colombia, in January, and commented: "I think we have already developed a generous mutual understanding which should greatly facilitate the large amount of work to be accomplished there."

After praising arrangements which the Brazilian government made for the conference, the work of Brazil's Foreign Minister Dr. Raul Fernandes, and the "highly efficient team" of the American delegation including Vandenberg, Marshall concluded:

"This brief statement regarding the conference gives me the opportunity to report one constructive international development in a world sadly in need of such encouragement."

Vandenberg said that when the treaty is ratified, "peace and justice and security will be on far firmer foundations in our western world regardless of what happens elsewhere and regardless of the obstacles which plague peace elsewhere."

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4 (AP)—The Maryland Veterans' Housing Commission reported today it would concentrate on devising a program which would produce houses for former servicemen to rent.

Discussing the results of the group's first meeting here last night, Chairman Joseph D. Buscher an assistant attorney general from Silver Springs, said it was the considered opinion that most veterans cannot afford to buy a home at today's high-cost level.

The commission said it would try to obtain subsidies from the federal, state, and local governments or at least obtain underwriting from these sources and work closely with the private building industry.

It said it also would seek lower tax assessments or tax rates for such houses and would advocate giving veterans priority to purchase tax-delinquent properties.

Co-operation Requested

The commission called on local housing authorities, veterans organizations and civic groups to lend it a hand.

Henry P. Irr, member of the Maryland State Planning Commission and a member of the housing group, was designated to negotiate with the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore.

Harry Cropper, commission member from Salisbury, was named to carry out an information program which would keep local authorities advised on new legislation and other developments in the housing program.

The commission's other actions:

Finan Elected Secretary

Decided to present all data it can collect, along with its recommendations, to the Special Joint Congressional Committee on Housing and the House Education and Labor Subcommittee, both of which are investigating monopoly and racketeering in the housing industry.

Voted to ask the Board of Public Works to provide secretarial help.

Other members of the commission are Thomas Finan, Cumberland, who was elected secretary, and Ted Englehardt, Silver Spring.

The commission was named by Gov. Lane and Buscher was appointed its chairman pursuant to an act of the 1947 General Assembly.

Phone Call And Note Reveal Murder-Suicide

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 4—(AP) — A middle-aged couple was found shot to death today after a telephone call instructed a funeral home to come after the husband to take him to a hospital.

Justice of Peace L. O. Fowler returned an inquest verdict of murder and suicide in the deaths of Mrs. Maible Albertson, about 50, and her husband Leary Albertson, 54, an engineer for a meat packing company.

The bodies were found after a telephone call from a woman to a funeral home instructed it to "come out and get my husband and take him to hospital." The caller added, "This is not an emergency. There is no big hurry."

When ambulance attendants arrived they found a note on the door of the house, "Come on in—patient in back bedroom—please."

Fowler said the attendants found both Albertsons dead.

DIVER FINDS FALSE TEETH IN 30 FEET OF WATER; EARNS $75

EAST ST. LOUIS, Ill., Sept. 4 (AP) — Walter Ford, whose false teeth popped out and sank in 30 feet of water when he gasped for air on reaching the surface after a prolonged underwater swim, paid a professional diver $75 for retrieving them.

Ford arranged yesterday for Charles Delps to dive for the teeth, valued by their owner at $150. He agreed to pay $15 if the dive was unsuccessful or $75 if Delps was successful.

Delps donned a shallow water mask and dived into the Mississippi River backwater. After a 10-minute search, he broke surface with Ford's set of uppers. "The water was so cold down there I heard the teeth chattering," he said.

Cancer Growths May Be Slowed

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 4. (AP)—A possibility of slowing down cancer growths to give more time for successful treatment was described today to the Fourth International Cancer Research Congress.

Rats with cancer can be kept alive three times longer by reducing the protein in their food and by giving them certain chemicals, Dr. Leslie A. Elson, biochemist of the Chester Beatty Research Institute, London, reported.

The animal studies still are experimental, but there is a chance they may lead to methods of retarding cancers in humans, he added.

Dr. Elson is working with a few of the chemicals which induce cancer in experimental animals. But once the cancer is started, these same chemicals sometimes show ability to slow down the cancer growth.

He found that the diet could affect this ability. There was very little if any slow-down effect when rats were fed a diet containing 25 per cent protein while they also were receiving the chmical.

But on diets with only five per cent protein, plus the chemical, the rats showed a remarkable slowing of cancer growth, he said. There was no change in cancer growth in other rats which did not receive the chemical, regardless of how much or how little protein they were fed.

Two Youths Accused Of Torturing Boy, 14

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho, Sept 4 (AP)—Torturing of 14-year-old Joseph Cannon for nearly two weeks in an isolated mountain cabin was charged to two 'teen age youths in a complaint filed yesterday in Elmore County Probate Court.

Prosecutor Perce Hall said Don Elders, 17, and Leroy M. Landers, Jr., 16, waived a preliminary hearing on felony charges of mayhem during arraignment before Probate Judge A. F. Anderson.

Hall said Cannon accused his companions of imprisoning him for 12 days, burning him with gasoline, slashing him with knives and battering him with tug chains from a horse harness. Cannon was quoted as saying he did not know the reason for the attacks.

Elders and Landers were held in Elmore County Jail in lieu of bonds.

Government Claim That Railroads Overcharged It Is Denied By AAR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—(AP)—A government claim today that it was overcharged by 717 railroads on the wartime movement of explosives and ammunition drew a prompt and emphatic denial from the Association of American Railroads.

The overcharges were alleged in a petition for investigation filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by Attorney General Tom Clark. He previously had filed seven complaints against the railroads challenging freight charges for the handling of war materials between 1942 and 1946.

The demand for refund on explosives and ammunition was estimated to involve between 30 million and 40 million dollars. The Justice Department said "the magnitude of the shipments and the successful safety measures" with which the armed forces surrounded them "entitled the government to rates much lower than those imposed by the railroads."

William T. Faricy, president of the AAR, said in a statement that the government was given a special rate for the handling of explosives and ammunition which was "less than was charged any other shipper for the same service." He said the rate had been "approved and and accepted as reasonable by the War and Navy Departments" and was "fixed in the same legal manner as those for other wartime government traffic."

"Moreover," he said, "the railroads allowed two stopovers for all shipments on this important war freight and did not impose any additional charge for this privilege. Obviously this added to the railroads' costs of performing this service as did the special handling and care which these commodities required."

After praising arrangements which the Brazilian government made for the conference, the work of Brazil's Foreign Minister Dr. Raul Fernandes, and the "highly efficient team" of the American delegation including Vandenberg, Marshall concluded:

"This brief statement regarding the conference gives me the opportunity to report one constructive international development in a world sadly in need of such encouragement."

Vandenberg said that when the treaty is ratified, "peace and justice and security will be on far firmer foundations in our western world regardless of what happens elsewhere and regardless of the obstacles which plague peace elsewhere."

Fire In Air-Conditioning System Stalls Train

PIXLEY, Calif., Sept. 4. (AP)—Fire breaking out in the air-conditioning system of a lounge car stalled the streamlined Southern Pacific Daylight Limited here for about an hour today until equipment rushed from Pixley and two neighboring towns extinguished the flames.

Damage was confined to the one car. A southbound streamliner also was delayed for an hour until the northbound train got under way. No one was injured and the lounge car was detached from the train as it proceeded north to San Francisco.

Mine Evacuated When Belt Begins Smoking

RICHWOOD, W. Va., Sept. 4 (AP) —Twenty-three men were evacuated from the Richwood-Sewell Coal Company mine about 12 miles from here today after a conveyor belt became overheated and began smoking, Mine Superintendent James Sadilla said.

Sadilla said there was no fire in the mine, but that when the conveyor belt began smoking the men left for fear of entrapment.

First reports spoke of a serious blaze in the mine and police officials were summoned from surrounding communities. All available ambulances were called to the mine, and the Richwood hospital sent its entire staff.

Astronomical Cost Of United States Government

Figures can become so huge that they cease to have a meaning that a human mind can comprehend. For example, the world's largest telescope now being completed at Mount Palomar, in San Diego County, Cal., after 14 years of work (work was halted during the war) will reveal stars that are billions of light-years away. No human can have even a remote concept of such figures. And that is equally true of the cost of government figures in the United States of America.

All of this is indicated in an article in the St. Louis Star-Times by Harry Wohl, chief of that newspaper's Washington bureau. We cannot say "all this is explained" because these huge figures cannot be understood even after hours of explanation. After literally weeks of effort involving research in a number of departments, Mr. Wohl was able to compile the cost-of-government figures from 1929 through 1946.

In the year 1929, the people spent 19.6 billion dollars for food, as contrasted with only 3.7 billion for government. In other words, government's cost was 18.9 percent of that for food.

By 1945 the food cost had almost doubled, being 36 billions. But the cost of government had been multiplied by 25, rising to 90.5 billions.

By 1946 the food cost had more than doubled since 1929, being 42.9 billions. But while the cost of government had declined slightly, it was still more than 12 times that in 1929, or 44.9 billion dollars.

The cost of world wars comes high, of course. But the cost of World War II wouldn't have been anywhere close to its tremendous peak had it not been for the short-sighted government policy that inflated everything to encourage war production. Prices were inflated. Wages were inflated. Hence the staggering increase of 2,400 per cent in the cost of government from 1929 to 1945.

Now let's look at the same figures reduced to terms of each individual inhabitant of the United States. In 1929 the American man or woman said: "This year I am going to spend exactly $162 for food, and I am going to buy $31 worth of government." In other words, he spent less than one-fifth as much for his food. But what has happened? By 1944 this same individual had to say, "This year I shall spend $229 for my food—and, God help me, whether I like it or not, I shall have to spend $699 for my government." In other words, his food cost in 1944 was 41 per cent greater than in 1929, but his government cost was 2,154 per cent greater.

If this condition continues and the United States does not go broke, it will be the first time in history that the catastrophe of bankruptcy was averted under such a policy.

The Washington dispatch contains many other figures—so many in fact, that it would be impossible to review them in an editorial. But perhaps none is more revealing than this: It took 559,000 people to run the government of the United States in the year 1929. In 1946 it took those 559,000 plus another 2,141,000, or a total of 2,700,000—and there was no war going on in 1946.

There isn't much relief in sight, either. Although the 80th Congress began its first session with promises of economy, it ended that session without complete fulfillment. The House had said it would trim $6,000,000,000 from President Truman's budget of $37,500,000,000; the Senate said it would trim $4,500,000,000. But in the end, because of unscheduled appropriations for such things as foreign aid and the stockpiling of critical materials, the two together managed to save only $2,800,000,000. Now the Bureau of the Budget says the government finally will spend just about the $37,500,000,000 of President Truman's initial estimate.

So the astonomical figures continue. What it boils down to, however, is this: The people en masse are on the road that will lead straight to national bankruptcy. Unless the pressure of public opinion forces the Congress to cut government spending by billions of dollars and so restore the integrity of the United States Treasury, there will be no getting off that road.

It's A Tough Life

It may appear at times that the mere problem of living in this modern world involved complexities and annoyances that tax human endurance. Thus has it ever been—and probably ever will be.

But the human race is not alone in its tribulations. The animal kingdom often comes out on the short end of the stick.

A mysterious ailment has killed millions of fish at sea off Florida, and the fish, in turn, have acquired the enmity of all Florida chambers of commerce.

In Philadelphia, 70,000 amiable bees dropped in on a barbershop, but an apiarist, who knew how to influence them, escorted the queen home, so they felt they had to leave, too.

In Hollywood (Florida, this time), a bear was blamed for beating up a man in a fist fight. The news item didn't say who started the argument.

In New Jersey, pigs have to listen to Guy Lombardo and Bing Crosby because it makes them eat more and grow fatter.

Worms in Cleveland are lured to the surface by the false promise of a powder called "Worms Galore." And in Seattle a young cow jumped ship to avoid being shanghaied to Alaska.

Animals, as well as human beings, have their crosses to bear.

They Add Up

Because the deaths and injuries are always so much more numerous when an air liner crashes, it has become a habit to associate accidents in the air with commercial planes flying regular routes. But the facts are that private planes are responsible for many more aviation casualties than is generally recognized.

According to the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission, for instance, there were 36 accidents to privately-operated planes in that state during the first six months of 1947. In seven of them persons were killed, in 13 personal injuries were suffered and in 18 nobody was hurt.

Relatively speaking, this list of deaths and injuries is not large. But it is impressive enough to suggest to state and federal authorities everywhere the necessity for enforcing all regulations which apply to flying.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

VITAMIN D IN SKIN TUBERCULOSIS

VITAMIN D has been of great value in the treatment and prevention of rickets and has been employed for many years for this purpose. Ordinarily, only a moderate amount is necessary and few if any reactions ensue. During the past several years scientists have worked out new methods of concentrating the material and in consequence, highly potent preparations are now available.

In due time, physicians observed that some patients with arthritis responded favorably to eremendous doses of vitamin D. But unfortunately, a few who were receiving an excessive intake began to lose appetite and the feeling of well being. Headache, nausea, and vomiting sometimes followed; others encountered marked depressions or uriniary symptoms. In addition, calcium and phosphorus metabolism were affected which in turn encouraged hardening of the arteries and severe damage to the kidneys. In a few instances, the outcome was fatal.

As a result, a warning was sent out and individuals were strongly advised to take the substance only under the guidance of one who is familiar with its toxic possibilites. Thus the therapy could be stopped at the first indication of poisoning.

More recently, a new use for these concentrated products was found. Good results have been obtained with calciferol, or vitamin D2, in tuberculosis of the skin (lupus vulgaris). The remedy is a pure crystalline compound that is made by irradiating ergosterol.

This disease is the most common type of skin tuberculosis and is extremely chronic. The lesions appear frequently on the face as reddish-brown patches made up of tiny nodules of an apple jelly color. As a rule, they progress from month to month and may fade in one spot, only to recur in another. As healing takes place, unsightly scars remain. In over half the cases the glands in the neck are involved by the tuberculosis process.

In the past the disease was extremely difficult to eradicate. The Finsen ultraviolet light offered the best chances for recovery but required lengthy treatment and was none too successful. By accident it was discovered that calciferol was helpful. Charpy cured 27 patients with this regimen and improvement began within a week after administering a large number of units in capsule form. Swelling and inflammation of the glands were reduced and vanished as readily as the skin lesions.

Since then, many other physicians have reported similar experiences. Feeny and his colleagues gave the drug to 150 patients and noted improvement in 77 per cent. In only 27 no change was noted; three became worse. Reactions were infrequent and, at the first sign of toxicity, the medicine was discontinued. The dosage varies according to the individual case.

The preparation was tried in 12 cases of pulmonary tuberculosis without results. Apparently it is helpful only in the skin variety of the disease.

COLD AND COLDS

F. G. writes: Is it possible for an electric fan, playing directly on the face or back, to cause a cold?

REPLY

Since colds result from bacterial invasion, it is difficult to conceive of a draft or chilling as the cause. On the other hand, sudden changes in temperature alter the membranes in the nose and throat in such a way that sneezing and running nose may follow. Furthermore, the resistance of these tissues may be lowered so that the organisms usually present take the upper hand and flourish.

SKIN ULCERS

R. T. writes: Will applying hot water to an external ulcer increase the blood supply and speed up healing?

REPLY

The continuous application of warm, moist dressings will help some types, particularly if infection exists and the individual remains in bed.

WHEN NEEDED

T. O. writes: Is vitamin B good in delirium?

REPLY

It is effective in delirium tremens due to alcoholism because a vitamin deficiency exists. In other forms of delirium, however, it is not likely to be of value.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Here's what every young girl should know:

I've heard of guys brushing girls off, but this is the first time I ever heard of one who had to hand his girl a parachute to give her the air. This guy's a regular flying wolf. He doesn't whistle at girls. He drops flares. But he's not really so bad. When he goes out with a girl he really likes, he drops the plane down to a hundred feet before he pushes her out.

She knew he didn't love her when he dived low over another girl's house and started smoke signaling for a date.

I can imagine the kind of routine a flying wolf uses. "O, darling, it'll be so romantic. Just you and I and I and the automatic pilot. Just picture it. A little hanger all our own. And after a year or two maybe we'll hear the patter of little planes."

The girl first got suspicious of her boy friend when he parked between two clouds. He took her up to 10,000 feet, put his arm around her, and asked if she'd bill and coo. He's now going steady with a pigeon.

This is one girl who learned her lesson. I understand the next guy she goes out with will be a sneaker salesman.

Filling The Silo Was A Columnist's Vacation; Trip To Virginia Contrasted Problems Of Today With Those Of Founding Fathers Of This Country

Says DREW PEARSON

Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, returned from his vacation, today reports on how he spent his time off.

WASHINGTON—First, I want to thank Bob Allen for the swell columns he wrote in my absence. They set a tough standard for me to follow, but enabled me to take the longest time off from the Merry-Go-Round since the whirl started.

When I embarked on this period of idleness I thought I would be bored stiff. It turned out that I wasn't but my wife was. Reason was that I insisted on spending part of my vacation filling the silo.

Silo-filling is a very dangerous period around our farm, and anyone who comes too close is liable to get caught. Once my son-in-law—then a suitor for my daughter's hand—found himself in the unhappy predicament of having to humor his prospective father-in-law by tramping down ensilage for a whole week inside the silo. Now that he has married my daughter, he is most careful to put a thousand miles between himself and the farm at silo-filling time. This summer, however, I caught my radio agent, Jackson Leighter, off guard and before he knew what had happened, he was inside the silo earning honest money.

Although I have never put my wife inside the silo, she is never quite happy about silo-filling. This is not because she drives a truck from the cornfield to the silo, but because she would rather have me relax at Nantucket or the mountains. However, if we go to one of these summer resorts, everyone I meet wants me to predict who will be the next President or when we will fight Russia; while at the farm we are concerned with much simpler things—such as how long before the people who moved into the haunted house across the road will see the alleged headless man who prowls up its stairs in the moonlight, and will hurriedly move away.

Vacation In Virginia

Only twice did I desert the silo. With most of us worrying about Communism and the jittery state of the world, I decided to visit the area which reared some of the men who made this country great—Virginia. One visit was to the northern neck of Virginia, the land of once-great tobacco plantations where George Washington and Robert E. Lee were born.

Later I went to Williamsburg, scene of the founding fathers' earliest heartaches, where University of Virginia students are now reliving those heartaches in Paul Green's stirring pageant, "The Common Glory." And as I watched their portrayal of the trials of Thomas Jefferson, the doubting Thomases who scoffed that democracy could never live, the discouragement, the suffering, the determination which finally brought victory, I could not help but wonder what would happen to some of our founding fathers were they alive today.

Would they, for instance, be censored by the Rankin Committee on Un-American Affairs?

The leaders of the Revolution were rebellious radicals, determined to set up a new order. Jefferson not only proposed immediate freedom for the slaves, but proclaimed the inflammatory idea that all men were created free and equal.

Most of the founding fathers were young—in contrast to the older men who run our government today. And significantly, some of them were extremely wealthy. Jefferson and Washington, for instance, were among the biggest landowners in Virginia, with more than a hundred slaves on their plantations.

Revolutionary Fires

But the fire which kindled the leaders of the Revolution, the thing that churned their souls, kept them fighting on through discouragement, starvation, mutiny, was—a cause. They were fighting not merely against England, but for a cause in which they devoutly believed. They were fighting to build and develop a new country—a country where they could enjoy new freedoms, a new tolerance, new religious liberties. It was a great and sacred cause, and the souls of our founding fathers were aflame with winning it.

Visiting in Virginia, browsing through the vistas of our glorious past, I contrasted those days when the nation was so weak no one expected it to survive, with the present when we have become the most powerful nation in the world—so powerful that parts of the world fear us.

One trouble with power is that along with it goes complacency. Power makes us too self-satisfied, too conservative, too cocksure and confident, too content to rest on our oars. That, of course, is the reason why empires rise and fall.

That also is why we cease being inspired by crusades and causes, as were the founding fathers. We tend to be merely agin' things, not for building up new things. Our national motto becomes similar to that which hangs in the aisles of pullman cars after 10 p. m.: "Quiet is requested for the benefit of those who have retired."

Last week, for instance, the American Legion adopted a resolution denouncing Communism—a resolution with which I and most other people heartily concur. But if the founding fathers had had to cope with Communism, they would not have resorted merely to resolutions. Not only would they have denounced Communism, but they also would have written a bill of rights, a substitute declaration of American ideals to combat Communism.

How To Defeat Communism

They would have recognized that you can't fight Communism only with pious pronouncements and political arm-waving. You have to fight it with deeds. And we, as a nation, can't sit back and complacently enjoy the great fruits Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton won for us. We have to be just as vigorous, just as liberal, just as youthful in building on the foundation they have laid.

They pioneered difficult, dangerous and exciting new frontiers. And sometimes we of the present generation conclude that aside from the Polar caps no more frontiers remain for us to explore and conquer.

With the new atomic age, however, our vistas of exploration may be just as exciting, just as dangerous, and even more difficult. Furthermore we have wantonly squandered the great wealth left us by the founding fathers. We have allowed our forests to be stripped or burnt, our priceless topsoil to run off into the ocean, our iron ore squandered in shot and shell over the battlefields of Europe, our petroleum parceled out until there is little left for posterity.

So perhaps what we need to combat Communism is not so many resolutions showing we are agin' it, but a new Jeffersonian declaration of American idealism showing that we are building something far better than Communism.

And if Benjamin Franklin, Sam Adams, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and George Washington were alive today, I suspect they would point to our schools and our underpaid teachers; they would urge more charity, education and tolerance between labor and management; they would warn us to put the same fervor they did into religious freedom and forget the Hitlerian prejudices with which some Americans have been contaminated; they would advise that building up great flood-control and electric-power projects is the sensible way to conserve our resources; and above all they would admonish that we not sit still, but march forward fervently to new frontiers as they did, in a never-ending demonstration of the fact that democracy works.

Those are just a few random vacation thoughts I wanted to get off the typewriter before I go back to Washington and the keyhole.

Mrs. Roosevelt Taken To Task For Views On Communist Probe

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt writes: "Why should the head of a union be asked to declare that he is not a Communist? It will shortly be necessary, before we start out to earn a living, to declare all sorts of things about ourselves which we considered nobody's business in the past."

Mrs. Roosevelt is right on one point. In the past "we" did not consider it anybody's business to ask who was a Communist. That's why the government—including the army—got filled up with them. That's why President Truman asked our taxpayers to cough up $25,000,000 to weed out the Communists whom her husband's administration let in.

Does Mrs. Roosevelt think it "nobody's business" to ask whether a United States government official is a Communist? Does she think it is wrong to weed them out of Washington—now? Or, if she confines her resentment to weeding out Communists from labor unions, then does she quarrel with the patriotic unions which are doing that very thing right now—and which many of them did long before the Taft-Hartley bill was passed?

If Mrs. Roosevelt is right, then what business had President Truman and Congress to appropriate $400,000,000 to oppose Communist aggression in Greece and Turkey?

Mrs. Roosevelt is badly confused as to what communism is. In the old sense of that word, communism is the equal sharing of goods. The early Christians shared their goods. The pioneers crossing prairie and wilderness shared the game they killed, the fish they caught. So do men today on a raft in mid-ocean.

As a social and economic philosophy, an American may believe in that sort of communism, and still be loyal to his country, even though all history shows that it doesn't work, except as a makeshift in great emergency.

But President Truman and Congress and patriotic labor unions have to deal with a far different kind of communism. We are familiar with those Communists who are the agents of a foreign power. The vermin who bribed members of the Canadian parliament to betray their country with respect to the atom bomb were Communists. They are set to sabotage the national defense of America in case of war with Russia.

I quote from an official Communist document. "The Communist Party, a Manual of Organization"—"every Communist must know that the Communist party has the mission of organizing and leading the masses for the revolutionary overthrow of Capitalism, and for the establishment of the new world, a Soviet America."

Some years ago, Mrs. Roosevelt wrote: "The war is but a step in the revolution." Can it be, in the light of all that has passed, that Mrs. Roosevelt, even unwittingly, defends the "right" of revolutionists in our midst who are the agents of a foreign power?

President Roosevelt pardoned from prison Earl Browder, a central figure of the Communist party. Browder's wife, a Russian, was admitted into this country by a shady hocus-pocus. The Communist party refused to put a ticket in the field against Mr. Roosevelt in 1944. Then there was Teheran, Yalta, the betrayal of Poland.

How much further, Mrs. Roosevelt, do you think we should go on such a policy, or even seem to go by your apparent defense of communism in labor unions?

And if we are to reverse that disastrous course, how do we go about it, unless we know who are the Communists in our midst? Why should Congress give rights and privileges to labor unions headed by Communists and then conscript American boys to oppose, with their lives perhaps, the extension of Soviet Russia in Europe and Asia?

Mrs. Roosevelt you are not a private citizen. You hold a salaried, official position representing the United States in the United Nations organization. Before you write further on this subject, please read what William Z. Foster, twice Communist candidate for the Presidency, told a Congressional committee: The workers of this country and of every country have only one flag and that is the red flag."

Thank God. Foster is wrong. Thank God there are millions of Americans, in labor unions and out, who do have but one flag, and that is the flag that was raised on Iwo Jima.

Group May Be Prosecuted For Setting Uniform Rates

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—When a group of carpenters form a union and demand a fixed wage for their services, they violate no law, but when a group of real estate salesmen fix a uniform rate of commission, they are accused of violating the Anti-Trust Laws.

This anomaly means, of course, that the laws do not apply equally to persons who sell their services. It means also that, if the anti-trust suit against the real estate salesmen succeeds, architects, consulting engineers, jobbers, life insurance salesmen, advertising agents and a host of other commission businesses are in danger of prosecution if they have uniform rates.

The real estate men have for nearly 20 years maintained the same rates of commission on sales of houses. Many real estate companies have for years paid their salesmen one-half of the commission. There has been no increase for nearly 30 years in commission rates on houses under $50,000 in value.

The Department of Justice, nevertheless, is attempting by its suits to prove that these unchanged commissions are a factor in boosting the cost of housing. With labor and materials and the land constituting 95 per cent of the cost entering into the price of houses, it is difficult to see how the same 5 per cent that has long been the commission fee can possibly have affected housing prices.

The real estate associations today maintain their rates of about 5 per cent as a maximum. They prohibit their members from charging more. Apparently the Truman Administration wants to arrange it so agents can charge any commission they please. This must inevitably raise instead of lower the cost to the purchaser and must also reduce the net to the seller.

Just why the government is trying to bring about a situation in which the agents can charge all the traffic will bear is inexplicable. The truth is the Truman Administration is endeavoring to curry favor with the public by giving the impression that commission rates are a factor in the high cost of housing and that the Department of Justice, by use of the power of indictment, can scare the real estate venders into charging any commission the seller wishes to impose. The Federal Housing Administration and Home Owners Loan Corporation have insisted on uniform commissions in real estate transactions.

In many instances the present rates operate as a maximum and the sales agency not infrequently absorbs a part of its commission to help make a deal, especially when the parties are very close to a final trade and a few dollars more or less speeds up the closing of the transaction.

The real estate salesman doesn't get a nickel for showing houses to those people who decide not to buy. He doesn't get any money for his office expenses except out of actual sales made and commissions earned. The only way he can increase his earnings is to sell more houses. Certainly if the commission rate has been a deterrent to sales, the agents would have been the first to recommend their reduction long ago.

The Department of Justice argues that any agreement by real estate agencies to fix the commission rate as uniform is a "restraint of trade." This same argument could be made against almost any line of business where for years commission rates have been stabilized. There are many millions of salesmen in the United States who directly or indirectly are employed in the sale of products of services where uniform rates prevail. These men constitute a political force of substantial proportions and if the Truman Administration thinks it is winning popularity by attacking the businesses in which these salesmen are engaged, it may find that, instead, it has lined a large number of individuals who will organize politically to defeat the Truman Administration in 1948.

Certainly to deprive sales agencies of the right to act together while permitting unions to fix the rates for services cuts across many a business—from real estate to automoblies, from life and fire insurance to brokers of all kinds, from finance and mortagage companies, title companies, etc., to the thousand and one service businesses with fixed fees.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The Japanese Trials

ONE of the early assumptions among the conquering nations was collective guilt, namely, that they could by a kangaroo court, which made its own rules, punish thousands of persons in enemy countries for what they termed "war guilt." As the various allies did not join forces simultaneously, some of the "peace-loving nations" were as guilty as the war-loving nations, but that was passed over as too logical. For instance, if Ribbentrop was guilty of making war, certainly Molotov was equally guilty, for without the Ribbentrop - Molotov Pact Germany would not have dared make war upon her neighboring countries. Or to take the parent arrangement, the Hitler-Stalin Alliance, which formed the basis of World War II, guilt naturally attaches to all parties to the deal.

As in Germany, so in Japan, a prolonged trial of the so-called guilty proceeds. Tried are not only those who obviously believed that their country ought to fight the United States, but those who objected to their country fighting the United States.

A decent man stands by his country, right or wrong, in time of war. Many an American Firster who thought that it was wrong for the United States to be involved in Europe's internecine struggles, lost his life in the recent war—and only because his country was at war. Lindbergh, who sacrificed national popularity and good-will to try to keep his country out of war and whose prophecies as to the outcome have so generally proved to be correct, devoted himself unstintingly and heroically to his country's success. That was true of many Japanese who were opposed to war.

On trial in Japan is one who had been my friend since about 1920 when I first met him. We lived in the same cities in the Far East and I knew him and his wife as household intimates. He was in the Japanese Foreign Service and once when I was in Tokyo and discussing Chinese affairs with Baron Shidehara, we spoke affectionately of Mamoru Shigemitsu's unusual popularity among the Chinese. In fact, I expressed the view that most of the Chinese political and business leaders whom I knew would welcome his appointment as Japanese Ambassador to China. Baron Shidehara, who came as close to being pro-Chinese and pro-American as a Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs could be, replied that he had long noted the liberality of Shigemitsu's outlook and that such an appointment was actually being considered.

Shigemitsu labored valiantly for peace between China and Japan. I have a memorandum of a conversation between Shigemitsu, T. V. Soong and myself in March, 1931, in which Shigemitsu repeated what he had said to me the previous December, that it would be simpler to find a soft spot among the Japanese than among the Chinese; that the anti-Japanese movement in China was stronger than the resistance to China in Japan. At any rate we talked for some three hours, covering the entire field, and Shigemitsu then expressed a desire that a settlement should be reached with great sped as he feared that there might be trouble between the two countries if nothing were done. He did not threaten trouble, but clearly hoped that a way could be found to settle once and for all the impediments to friendly relations. He further indicated that his personal career was at stake as he had taken so pro-Chinese an attitude that he had brought on his head the enmity of the Japanese militarists. This luncheon occurred in the office of T. V. Soong, who was then Minister of Finance.

The Americans and British know Shigemitsu's record and are not seeking to destroy him, but the Russians hate him as they do every liberal-minded person. They are not only prosecuting but persecuting him. What is to be gained by the trial and conviction of such a man, except that the Russians will have their personal revenge because he once bawled out Molotov—the associate of Ribbentrop? What is the use of the trials now, anyhow? What is being accomplished by them? What is being proved by them except that in time of war decent men, whatever their opinions, serve their country, right or wrong?

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Readership Bond

Little do we realize the bond that is created and cemented between the writer of a book or poem and ourselves. Unconsciously we may even take upon ourselves the personality of the writer, for he stamps himself upon his work, as we all do.

I never read a book but what I become speculative as to the author. What does he look like? How old is he; how tall? Where was he born? What are his hobbies and interests? What sports does he like? And what is his home life? These, and dozens of other questions arise in the mind as we read a book or poem.

There is a readership bond between every author that we read and learn to admire. And often, with the years, this bond is increased. I have a friend who so admired the writings of Kipling that he has devoted a large part of his outside hours to the collecting of everything that Kipling wrote, and of the things written about Kipling. He has become an authority on this famous writer. There is an inseparable bond between them.

I could say as well about scores of writers of books and poetry. I feel that I know them, though never having met most of them—and many of them long dead before I ever heard of them, but still they live, when read and appreciated. And I salute many a living writer whom I shall never meet, but with whom I shall have silent and uplifting communion.

It is this readership bond that gives to us our daily newspapers, our magazines, and various class publications. No publication could long exist without it. From it all evolves the silent bond of opinion—that shapes the lives of us all!

Astronomical Cost Of United States Government

Figures can become so huge that they cease to have a meaning that a human mind can comprehend. For example, the world's largest telescope now being completed at Mount Palomar, in San Diego County, Cal., after 14 years of work (work was halted during the war) will reveal stars that are billions of light-years away. No human can have even a remote concept of such figures. And that is equally true of the cost of government figures in the United States of America.

All of this is indicated in an article in the St. Louis Star-Times by Harry Wohl, chief of that newspaper's Washington bureau. We cannot say "all this is explained" because these huge figures cannot be understood even after hours of explanation. After literally weeks of effort involving research in a number of departments, Mr. Wohl was able to compile the cost-of-government figures from 1929 through 1946.

In the year 1929, the people spent 19.6 billion dollars for food, as contrasted with only 3.7 billion for government. In other words, government's cost was 18.9 percent of that for food.

By 1945 the food cost had almost doubled, being 36 billions. But the cost of government had been multiplied by 25, rising to 90.5 billions.

By 1946 the food cost had more than doubled since 1929, being 42.9 billions. But while the cost of government had declined slightly, it was still more than 12 times that in 1929, or 44.9 billion dollars.

The cost of world wars comes high, of course. But the cost of World War II wouldn't have been anywhere close to its tremendous peak had it not been for the short-sighted government policy that inflated everything to encourage war production. Prices were inflated. Wages were inflated. Hence the staggering increase of 2,400 per cent in the cost of government from 1929 to 1945.

Now let's look at the same figures reduced to terms of each individual inhabitant of the United States. In 1929 the American man or woman said: "This year I am going to spend exactly $162 for food, and I am going to buy $31 worth of government." In other words, he spent less than one-fifth as much for his food. But what has happened? By 1944 this same individual had to say, "This year I shall spend $229 for my food—and, God help me, whether I like it or not, I shall have to spend $699 for my government." In other words, his food cost in 1944 was 41 per cent greater than in 1929, but his government cost was 2,154 per cent greater.

If this condition continues and the United States does not go broke, it will be the first time in history that the catastrophe of bankruptcy was averted under such a policy.

The Washington dispatch contains many other figures—so many in fact, that it would be impossible to review them in an editorial. But perhaps none is more revealing than this: It took 559,000 people to run the government of the United States in the year 1929. In 1946 it took those 559,000 plus another 2,141,000, or a total of 2,700,000—and there was no war going on in 1946.

There isn't much relief in sight, either. Although the 80th Congress began its first session with promises of economy, it ended that session without complete fulfillment. The House had said it would trim $6,000,000,000 from President Truman's budget of $37,500,000,000; the Senate said it would trim $4,500,000,000. But in the end, because of unscheduled appropriations for such things as foreign aid and the stockpiling of critical materials, the two together managed to save only $2,800,000,000. Now the Bureau of the Budget says the government finally will spend just about the $37,500,000,000 of President Truman's initial estimate.

So the astonomical figures continue. What it boils down to, however, is this: The people en masse are on the road that will lead straight to national bankruptcy. Unless the pressure of public opinion forces the Congress to cut government spending by billions of dollars and so restore the integrity of the United States Treasury, there will be no getting off that road.

It's A Tough Life

It may appear at times that the mere problem of living in this modern world involved complexities and annoyances that tax human endurance. Thus has it ever been—and probably ever will be.

But the human race is not alone in its tribulations. The animal kingdom often comes out on the short end of the stick.

A mysterious ailment has killed millions of fish at sea off Florida, and the fish, in turn, have acquired the enmity of all Florida chambers of commerce.

In Philadelphia, 70,000 amiable bees dropped in on a barbershop, but an apiarist, who knew how to influence them, escorted the queen home, so they felt they had to leave, too.

In Hollywood (Florida, this time), a bear was blamed for beating up a man in a fist fight. The news item didn't say who started the argument.

In New Jersey, pigs have to listen to Guy Lombardo and Bing Crosby because it makes them eat more and grow fatter.

Worms in Cleveland are lured to the surface by the false promise of a powder called "Worms Galore." And in Seattle a young cow jumped ship to avoid being shanghaied to Alaska.

Animals, as well as human beings, have their crosses to bear.

They Add Up

Because the deaths and injuries are always so much more numerous when an air liner crashes, it has become a habit to associate accidents in the air with commercial planes flying regular routes. But the facts are that private planes are responsible for many more aviation casualties than is generally recognized.

According to the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission, for instance, there were 36 accidents to privately-operated planes in that state during the first six months of 1947. In seven of them persons were killed, in 13 personal injuries were suffered and in 18 nobody was hurt.

Relatively speaking, this list of deaths and injuries is not large. But it is impressive enough to suggest to state and federal authorities everywhere the necessity for enforcing all regulations which apply to flying.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

VITAMIN D IN SKIN TUBERCULOSIS

VITAMIN D has been of great value in the treatment and prevention of rickets and has been employed for many years for this purpose. Ordinarily, only a moderate amount is necessary and few if any reactions ensue. During the past several years scientists have worked out new methods of concentrating the material and in consequence, highly potent preparations are now available.

In due time, physicians observed that some patients with arthritis responded favorably to eremendous doses of vitamin D. But unfortunately, a few who were receiving an excessive intake began to lose appetite and the feeling of well being. Headache, nausea, and vomiting sometimes followed; others encountered marked depressions or uriniary symptoms. In addition, calcium and phosphorus metabolism were affected which in turn encouraged hardening of the arteries and severe damage to the kidneys. In a few instances, the outcome was fatal.

As a result, a warning was sent out and individuals were strongly advised to take the substance only under the guidance of one who is familiar with its toxic possibilites. Thus the therapy could be stopped at the first indication of poisoning.

More recently, a new use for these concentrated products was found. Good results have been obtained with calciferol, or vitamin D2, in tuberculosis of the skin (lupus vulgaris). The remedy is a pure crystalline compound that is made by irradiating ergosterol.

This disease is the most common type of skin tuberculosis and is extremely chronic. The lesions appear frequently on the face as reddish-brown patches made up of tiny nodules of an apple jelly color. As a rule, they progress from month to month and may fade in one spot, only to recur in another. As healing takes place, unsightly scars remain. In over half the cases the glands in the neck are involved by the tuberculosis process.

In the past the disease was extremely difficult to eradicate. The Finsen ultraviolet light offered the best chances for recovery but required lengthy treatment and was none too successful. By accident it was discovered that calciferol was helpful. Charpy cured 27 patients with this regimen and improvement began within a week after administering a large number of units in capsule form. Swelling and inflammation of the glands were reduced and vanished as readily as the skin lesions.

Since then, many other physicians have reported similar experiences. Feeny and his colleagues gave the drug to 150 patients and noted improvement in 77 per cent. In only 27 no change was noted; three became worse. Reactions were infrequent and, at the first sign of toxicity, the medicine was discontinued. The dosage varies according to the individual case.

The preparation was tried in 12 cases of pulmonary tuberculosis without results. Apparently it is helpful only in the skin variety of the disease.

COLD AND COLDS

F. G. writes: Is it possible for an electric fan, playing directly on the face or back, to cause a cold?

REPLY

Since colds result from bacterial invasion, it is difficult to conceive of a draft or chilling as the cause. On the other hand, sudden changes in temperature alter the membranes in the nose and throat in such a way that sneezing and running nose may follow. Furthermore, the resistance of these tissues may be lowered so that the organisms usually present take the upper hand and flourish.

SKIN ULCERS

R. T. writes: Will applying hot water to an external ulcer increase the blood supply and speed up healing?

REPLY

The continuous application of warm, moist dressings will help some types, particularly if infection exists and the individual remains in bed.

WHEN NEEDED

T. O. writes: Is vitamin B good in delirium?

REPLY

It is effective in delirium tremens due to alcoholism because a vitamin deficiency exists. In other forms of delirium, however, it is not likely to be of value.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

Here's what every young girl should know:

I've heard of guys brushing girls off, but this is the first time I ever heard of one who had to hand his girl a parachute to give her the air. This guy's a regular flying wolf. He doesn't whistle at girls. He drops flares. But he's not really so bad. When he goes out with a girl he really likes, he drops the plane down to a hundred feet before he pushes her out.

She knew he didn't love her when he dived low over another girl's house and started smoke signaling for a date.

I can imagine the kind of routine a flying wolf uses. "O, darling, it'll be so romantic. Just you and I and I and the automatic pilot. Just picture it. A little hanger all our own. And after a year or two maybe we'll hear the patter of little planes."

The girl first got suspicious of her boy friend when he parked between two clouds. He took her up to 10,000 feet, put his arm around her, and asked if she'd bill and coo. He's now going steady with a pigeon.

This is one girl who learned her lesson. I understand the next guy she goes out with will be a sneaker salesman.

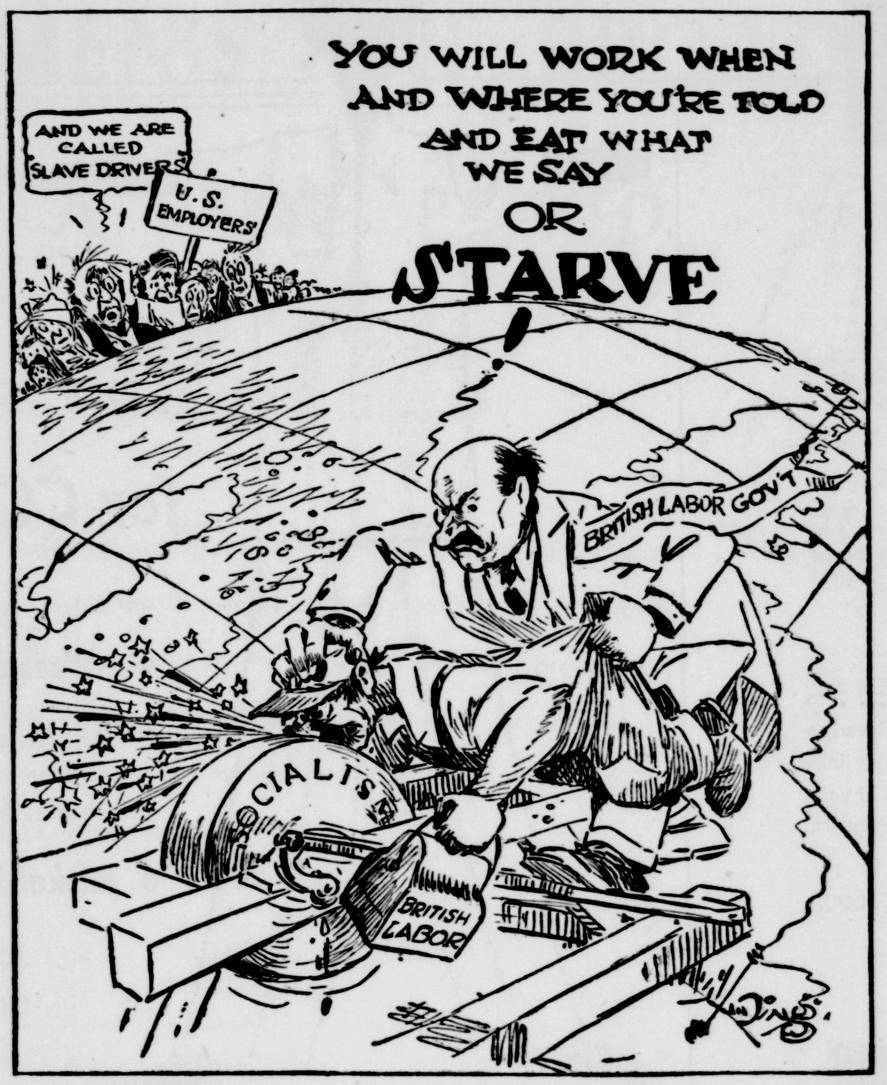
LABOR'S DAY IN ENGLAND



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Filling The Silo Was A Columnist's Vacation; Trip To Virginia Contrasted Problems Of Today With Those Of Founding Fathers Of This Country

Says DREW PEARSON

Editor's Note: Drew Pearson, returned from his vacation, today reports on how he spent his time off.

WASHINGTON—First, I want to thank Bob Allen for the swell columns he wrote in my absence. They set a tough standard for me to follow, but enabled me to take the longest time off from the Merry-Go-Round since the whirl started.

When I embarked on this period of idleness I thought I would be bored stiff. It turned out that I wasn't but my wife was. Reason was that I insisted on spending part of my vacation filling the silo.

Silo-filling is a very dangerous period around our farm, and anyone who comes too close is liable to get caught. Once my son-in-law—then a suitor for my daughter's hand—found himself in the unhappy predicament of having to humor his prospective father-in-law by tramping down ensilage for a whole week inside the silo. Now that he has married my daughter, he is most careful to put a thousand miles between himself and the farm at silo-filling time. This summer, however, I caught my radio agent, Jackson Leighter, off guard and before he knew what had happened, he was inside the silo earning honest money.

Although I have never put my wife inside the silo, she is never quite happy about silo-filling. This is not because she drives a truck from the cornfield to the silo, but because she would rather have me relax at Nantucket or the mountains. However, if we go to one of these summer resorts, everyone I meet wants me to predict who will be the next President or when we will fight Russia; while at the farm we are concerned with much simpler things—such as how long before the people who moved into the haunted house across the road will see the alleged headless man who prowls up its stairs in the moonlight, and will hurriedly move away.

Vacation In Virginia

Only twice did I desert the silo. With most of us worrying about Communism and the jittery state of the world, I decided to visit the area which reared some of the men who made this country great—Virginia. One visit was to the northern neck of Virginia, the land of once-great tobacco plantations where George Washington and Robert E. Lee were born.

Later I went to Williamsburg, scene of the founding fathers' earliest heartaches, where University of Virginia students are now reliving those heartaches in Paul Green's stirring pageant, "The Common Glory." And as I watched their portrayal of the trials of Thomas Jefferson, the doubting Thomases who scoffed that democracy could never live, the discouragement, the suffering, the determination which finally brought victory, I could not help but wonder what would happen to some of our founding fathers were they alive today.

Would they, for instance, be censored by the Rankin Committee on Un-American Affairs?

The leaders of the Revolution were rebellious radicals, determined to set up a new order. Jefferson not only proposed immediate freedom for the slaves, but proclaimed the inflammatory idea that all men were created free and equal.

Most of the founding fathers were young—in contrast to the older men who run our government today. And significantly, some of them were extremely wealthy. Jefferson and Washington, for instance, were among the biggest landowners in Virginia, with more than a hundred slaves on their plantations.

Revolutionary Fires

But the fire which kindled the leaders of the Revolution, the thing that churned their souls, kept them fighting on through discouragement, starvation, mutiny, was—a cause. They were fighting not merely against England, but for a cause in which they devoutly believed. They were fighting to build and develop a new country—a country where they could enjoy new freedoms, a new tolerance, new religious liberties. It was a great and sacred cause, and the souls of our founding fathers were aflame with winning it.

Visiting in Virginia, browsing through the vistas of our glorious past, I contrasted those days when the nation was so weak no one expected it to survive, with the present when we have become the most powerful nation in the world—so powerful that parts of the world fear us.

One trouble with power is that along with it goes complacency. Power makes us too self-satisfied, too conservative, too cocksure and confident, too content to rest on our oars. That, of course, is the reason why empires rise and fall.

That also is why we cease being inspired by crusades and causes, as were the founding fathers. We tend to be merely agin' things, not for building up new things. Our national motto becomes similar to that which hangs in the aisles of pullman cars after 10 p. m.: "Quiet is requested for the benefit of those who have retired."

Last week, for instance, the American Legion adopted a resolution denouncing Communism—a resolution with which I and most other people heartily concur. But if the founding fathers had had to cope with Communism, they would not have resorted merely to resolutions. Not only would they have denounced Communism, but they also would have written a bill of rights, a substitute declaration of American ideals to combat Communism.

How To Defeat Communism

They would have recognized that you can't fight Communism only with pious pronouncements and political arm-waving. You have to fight it with deeds. And we, as a nation, can't sit back and complacently enjoy the great fruits Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton won for us. We have to be just as vigorous, just as liberal, just as youthful in building on the foundation they have laid.

They pioneered difficult, dangerous and exciting new frontiers. And sometimes we of the present generation conclude that aside from the Polar caps no more frontiers remain for us to explore and conquer.

With the new atomic age, however, our vistas of exploration may be just as exciting, just as dangerous, and even more difficult. Furthermore we have wantonly squandered the great wealth left us by the founding fathers. We have allowed our forests to be stripped or burnt, our priceless topsoil to run off into the ocean, our iron ore squandered in shot and shell over the battlefields of Europe, our petroleum parceled out until there is little left for posterity.

So perhaps what we need to combat Communism is not so many resolutions showing we are agin' it, but a new Jeffersonian declaration of American idealism showing that we are building something far better than Communism.

And if Benjamin Franklin, Sam Adams, Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson and George Washington were alive today, I suspect they would point to our schools and our underpaid teachers; they would urge more charity, education and tolerance between labor and management; they would warn us to put the same fervor they did into religious freedom and forget the Hitlerian prejudices with which some Americans have been contaminated; they would advise that building up great flood-control and electric-power projects is the sensible way to conserve our resources; and above all they would admonish that we not sit still, but march forward fervently to new frontiers as they did, in a never-ending demonstration of the fact that democracy works.

Those are just a few random vacation thoughts I wanted to get off the typewriter before I go back to Washington and the keyhole.

Mrs. Roosevelt Taken To Task For Views On Communist Probe

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt writes: "Why should the head of a union be asked to declare that he is not a Communist? It will shortly be necessary, before we start out to earn a living, to declare all sorts of things about ourselves which we considered nobody's business in the past."

Mrs. Roosevelt is right on one point. In the past "we" did not consider it anybody's business to ask who was a Communist. That's why the government—including the army—got filled up with them. That's why President Truman asked our taxpayers to cough up $25,000,000 to weed out the Communists whom her husband's administration let in.

Does Mrs. Roosevelt think it "nobody's business" to ask whether a United States government official is a Communist? Does she think it is wrong to weed them out of Washington—now? Or, if she confines her resentment to weeding out Communists from labor unions, then does she quarrel with the patriotic unions which are doing that very thing right now—and which many of them did long before the Taft-Hartley bill was passed?

If Mrs. Roosevelt is right, then what business had President Truman and Congress to appropriate $400,000,000 to oppose Communist aggression in Greece and Turkey?

Mrs. Roosevelt is badly confused as to what communism is. In the old sense of that word, communism is the equal sharing of goods. The early Christians shared their goods. The pioneers crossing prairie and wilderness shared the game they killed, the fish they caught. So do men today on a raft in mid-ocean.

As a social and economic philosophy, an American may believe in that sort of communism, and still be loyal to his country, even though all history shows that it doesn't work, except as a makeshift in great emergency.

But President Truman and Congress and patriotic labor unions have to deal with a far different kind of communism. We are familiar with those Communists who are the agents of a foreign power. The vermin who bribed members of the Canadian parliament to betray their country with respect to the atom bomb were Communists. They are set to sabotage the national defense of America in case of war with Russia.

I quote from an official Communist document. "The Communist Party, a Manual of Organization"—"every Communist must know that the Communist party has the mission of organizing and leading the masses for the revolutionary overthrow of Capitalism, and for the establishment of the new world, a Soviet America."

Some years ago, Mrs. Roosevelt wrote: "The war is but a step in the revolution." Can it be, in the light of all that has passed, that Mrs. Roosevelt, even unwittingly, defends the "right" of revolutionists in our midst who are the agents of a foreign power?

President Roosevelt pardoned from prison Earl Browder, a central figure of the Communist party. Browder's wife, a Russian, was admitted into this country by a shady hocus-pocus. The Communist party refused to put a ticket in the field against Mr. Roosevelt in 1944. Then there was Teheran, Yalta, the betrayal of Poland.

How much further, Mrs. Roosevelt, do you think we should go on such a policy, or even seem to go by your apparent defense of communism in labor unions?

And if we are to reverse that disastrous course, how do we go about it, unless we know who are the Communists in our midst? Why should Congress give rights and privileges to labor unions headed by Communists and then conscript American boys to oppose, with their lives perhaps, the extension of Soviet Russia in Europe and Asia?

Mrs. Roosevelt you are not a private citizen. You hold a salaried, official position representing the United States in the United Nations organization. Before you write further on this subject, please read what William Z. Foster, twice Communist candidate for the Presidency, told a Congressional committee: The workers of this country and of every country have only one flag and that is the red flag."

Thank God. Foster is wrong. Thank God there are millions of Americans, in labor unions and out, who do have but one flag, and that is the flag that was raised on Iwo Jima.

Group May Be Prosecuted For Setting Uniform Rates

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4—When a group of carpenters form a union and demand a fixed wage for their services, they violate no law, but when a group of real estate salesmen fix a uniform rate of commission, they are accused of violating the Anti-Trust Laws.

This anomaly means, of course, that the laws do not apply equally to persons who sell their services. It means also that, if the anti-trust suit against the real estate salesmen succeeds, architects, consulting engineers, jobbers, life insurance salesmen, advertising agents and a host of other commission businesses are in danger of prosecution if they have uniform rates.

The real estate men have for nearly 20 years maintained the same rates of commission on sales of houses. Many real estate companies have for years paid their salesmen one-half of the commission. There has been no increase for nearly 30 years in commission rates on houses under $50,000 in value.

The Department of Justice, nevertheless, is attempting by its suits to prove that these unchanged commissions are a factor in boosting the cost of housing. With labor and materials and the land constituting 95 per cent of the cost entering into the price of houses, it is difficult to see how the same 5 per cent that has long been the commission fee can possibly have affected housing prices.

The real estate associations today maintain their rates of about 5 per cent as a maximum. They prohibit their members from charging more. Apparently the Truman Administration wants to arrange it so agents can charge any commission they please. This must inevitably raise instead of lower the cost to the purchaser and must also reduce the net to the seller.

Just why the government is trying to bring about a situation in which the agents can charge all the traffic will bear is inexplicable. The truth is the Truman Administration is endeavoring to curry favor with the public by giving the impression that commission rates are a factor in the high cost of housing and that the Department of Justice, by use of the power of indictment, can scare the real estate venders into charging any commission the seller wishes to impose. The Federal Housing Administration and Home Owners Loan Corporation have insisted on uniform commissions in real estate transactions.

In many instances the present rates operate as a maximum and the sales agency not infrequently absorbs a part of its commission to help make a deal, especially when the parties are very close to a final trade and a few dollars more or less speeds up the closing of the transaction.

The real estate salesman doesn't get a nickel for showing houses to those people who decide not to buy. He doesn't get any money for his office expenses except out of actual sales made and commissions earned. The only way he can increase his earnings is to sell more houses. Certainly if the commission rate has been a deterrent to sales, the agents would have been the first to recommend their reduction long ago.

The Department of Justice argues that any agreement by real estate agencies to fix the commission rate as uniform is a "restraint of trade." This same argument could be made against almost any line of business where for years commission rates have been stabilized. There are many millions of salesmen in the United States who directly or indirectly are employed in the sale of products of services where uniform rates prevail. These men constitute a political force of substantial proportions and if the Truman Administration thinks it is winning popularity by attacking the businesses in which these salesmen are engaged, it may find that, instead, it has lined a large number of individuals who will organize politically to defeat the Truman Administration in 1948.

Certainly to deprive sales agencies of the right to act together while permitting unions to fix the rates for services cuts across many a business—from real estate to automobiles, from life and fire insurance to brokers of all kinds, from finance and mortagage companies, title companies, etc., to the thousand and one service businesses with fixed fees.

THESE DAYS By George E. Sokolsky

The Japanese Trials

ONE of the early assumptions among the conquering nations was collective guilt, namely, that they could by a kangaroo court, which made its own rules, punish thousands of persons in enemy countries for what they termed "war guilt." As the various allies did not join forces simultaneously, some of the "peace-loving nations" were as guilty as the war-loving nations, but that was passed over as too logical. For instance, if Ribbentrop was guilty of making war, certainly Molotov was equally guilty, for without the Ribbentrop - Molotov Pact Germany would not have dared make war upon her neighboring countries. Or to take the parent arrangement, the Hitler-Stalin Alliance, which formed the basis of World War II, guilt naturally attaches to all parties to the deal.

As in Germany, so in Japan, a prolonged trial of the so-called guilty proceeds. Tried are not only those who obviously believed that their country ought to fight the United States, but those who objected to their country fighting the United States.

A decent man stands by his country, right or wrong, in time of war. Many an American Firster who thought that it was wrong for the United States to be involved in Europe's internecine struggles, lost his life in the recent war—and only because his country was at war. Lindbergh, who sacrificed national popularity and good-will to try to keep his country out of war and whose prophecies as to the outcome have so generally proved to be correct, devoted himself unstintingly and heroically to his country's success. That was true of many Japanese who were opposed to war.

On trial in Japan is one who had been my friend since about 1920 when I first met him. We lived in the same cities in the Far East and I knew him and his wife as household intimates. He was in the Japanese Foreign Service and once when I was in Tokyo and discussing Chinese affairs with Baron Shidehara, we spoke affectionately of Mamoru Shigemitsu's unusual popularity among the Chinese. In fact, I expressed the view that most of the Chinese political and business leaders whom I knew would welcome his appointment as Japanese Ambassador to China. Baron Shidehara, who came as close to being pro-Chinese and pro-American as a Japanese Minister of Foreign Affairs could be, replied that he had long noted the liberality of Shigemitsu's outlook and that such an appointment was actually being considered.

Shigemitsu labored valiantly for peace between China and Japan. I have a memorandum of a conversation between Shigemitsu, T. V. Soong and myself in March, 1931, in which Shigemitsu repeated what he had said to me the previous December, that it would be simpler to find a soft spot among the Japanese than among the Chinese; that the anti-Japanese movement in China was stronger than the resistance to China in Japan. At any rate we talked for some three hours, covering the entire field, and Shigemitsu then expressed a desire that a settlement should be reached with great sped as he feared that there might be trouble between the two countries if nothing were done. He did not threaten trouble, but clearly hoped that a way could be found to settle once and for all the impediments to friendly relations. He further indicated that his personal career was at stake as he had taken so pro-Chinese an attitude that he had brought on his head the enmity of the Japanese militarists. This luncheon occurred in the office of T. V. Soong, who was then Minister of Finance.

The Americans and British know Shigemitsu's record and are not seeking to destroy him, but the Russians hate him as they do every liberal-minded person. They are not only prosecuting but persecuting him. What is to be gained by the trial and conviction of such a man, except that the Russians will have their personal revenge because he once bawled out Molotov—the associate of Ribbentrop? What is the use of the trials now, anyhow? What is being accomplished by them? What is being proved by them except that in time of war decent men, whatever their opinions, serve their country, right or wrong?

Today's Talk

Readership Bond

Little do we realize the bond that is created and cemented between the writer of a book or poem and ourselves. Unconsciously we may even take upon ourselves the personality of the writer, for he stamps himself upon his work, as we all do.

I never read a book but what I become speculative as to the author. What does he look like? How old is he; how tall? Where was he born? What are his hobbies and interests? What sports does he like? And what is his home life? These, and dozens of other questions arise in the mind as we read a book or poem.

There is a readership bond between every author that we read and learn to admire. And often, with the years, this bond is increased. I have a friend who so admired the writings of Kipling that he has devoted a large part of his outside hours to the collecting of everything that Kipling wrote, and of the things written about Kipling. He has become an authority on this famous writer. There is an inseparable bond between them.

I could say as well about scores of writers of books and poetry. I feel that I know them, though never having met most of them—and many of them long dead before I ever heard of them, but still they live, when read and appreciated. And I salute many a living writer whom I shall never meet, but with whom I shall have silent and uplifting communion.

It is this readership bond that gives to us our daily newspapers, our magazines, and various class publications. No publication could long exist without it. From it all evolves the silent bond of opinion—that shapes the lives of us all!

Miss Leslie Ann Randall was her sister's maid of honor; Miss Jeanne Disney, the bridesmaid and Judith Ann Reinhart, flower girl. Franklin Young served as Mr. Rosenmerkel's best man and Allan Thompson and Monroe Thompson were the ushers.

An all white color scheme was carried out in the large bouquets of assorted flowers decorating the house and repeated in the floral arrangement and tall white tapers centering the refreshment table. Match boxes, napkins and coasters, given as favors, were inscribed with the bride and bridegroom's names in gold. Covers were laid for 35 guests.

Mrs. Rosenmerkel was assisted in serving by Miss Grace Hardman and Miss Anna Hardy.

LITTLE ILLS MAKE BIG BILLS!

● True, that "little illness" you've been mentioning in an offhand way, may not seem to amount to much—just a few faint symptoms. But, neglected, these "little ills" can lead to big bills for doctors, medicines, etc; not to mention needless suffering and loss of precious time. Consult a Doctor now—you'll save by it in the end. And, of course, we hope you'll bring his prescription to us for careful compounding.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

The crowd in the ball park had quieted down. It was the top of the ninth. Foley was up. He singled to right field and stretched it to a double when the fielder bobbled it. The crowd began to get noisy. That put the tying run on base.

Billy Rose

Why don't they leave a guy alone, Marty Gilson was thinking as he sat in the dugout and waited for his turn at bat. Why don't they leave a guy alone until the Series is over? As for instance, the old bum who had stopped him outside the players' entrance. Marty hadn't recognized him until the bum handed him that old one about needing carfare to get to a job with a ball club in Mexico. It was Joe Powers, who had once batted .329 for Cincinnati. Joe was like a lot of fellows Marty knew about—guys who had hung on in baseball when they didn't have it anymore—guys who slipped from the majors to the minors—and wound up standing around saloons and telling how it was in the days of Jawn McGraw.

Foley took a long lead off second. Look at him out there with those 22-year-old springs in his legs, Marty thought. He rubbed his hip where it still hurt from that slide in the first game. Funny how long it took for bumps and scratches to heal when you got past 35. Every time he made one of those long throws these days his arm felt as if the blood had been cut off from it.

Why did Patterson have to pick out today to talk to him? During batting practice before the game, he had called him over to his grandstand box and offered him eight thousand a year to go to work for his sporting goods company. Nice fellow, that Patterson. Crazy about ball players. But why did he have to talk about quitting baseball right in the middle of a World Series?

McDermott was up now. The infield was playing deep for him. On the first pitch, McDermott dumped a bunt down the third-base line. Crazy thing for the manager to have called for with two out. Mac was safe on first and Foley went to third.

Marty remembered how his body looked in the long mirror that morning. It appeared no different. But he knew it was different. Yesterday when he had run for that long fly in the eighth his heart had pounded so loud he wondered the people in the bleachers didn't hear it. Still, he figured to get renewed at the same salary next year. The year after? Why did that bum Joe Powers have to come around today anyway?

It was Marty's turn at bat. He picked up a couple of bats, swung them, and dropped one. Then he went through the ritual of pulling at his cap, knocking the clay out of his spikes and rubbing a little dirt into his hands. He stepped into the batter's box and looked out toward the pitcher.

The man on the mound seemed tired. You could tell from the way he fingered the rosin bag and wiped his hand on his shirt. "Knock it out of the park, Marty," a leather-lung yelled down from the stands.

The pitcher came down with a fast one that might have been called either way. The umpire said, "Strike." Pretty fast, Marty thought. Those kids always come up with that extra zing in the tight spots.

The pitcher threw again. Marty missed a floater by a good six inches. Oh, fine, Marty thought, letting a kid make a monkey out of you in front of a World Series crowd.

The next pitch was high and outside. Marty decided to let it go by, then swung wildly at it. His bat tipped the ball and it went foul.

The leather-lung in the grandstand hollered, "Back to the bush leagues, you bum!"

That was a fun for you. You were only as good as your last time at bat. Well, they could have it. He'd call the sporting goods man at his hotel that night.

As the pitcher got set to throw again, Foley, on third, faked a break for the plate. The man on the mound hurried his throw. It came up to the plate with absolutely nothing on it—the perfect home run ball a player gets to look at maybe a couple of time a season.

For one wild crazy part of a second, Marty thought of letting it go by for the third strike. That would make it easier for a fellow whose time was running out and who wanted to walk away from baseball.

Maybe it was a reflex. Maybe it was all those people watching. Anyhow, Marty swung. He knew from the feel of it as he connected that the ball was going to go a long way.

The noise in the stands was thunder as he trotted around the bases. Rounding third, he grinned and waved at the crowd. The manager hugged him as he crossed the plate. "I thought the kid had you going there for a minute," he said.

"Quit your kidding," said Marty.

Motorist Is Fined On Driving Count

A Bedford Road driver, who entered a plea of not guilty to a reckless driving charge, was found guilty and fined $11.45 by Magistrate Frank A. Perdew in Trial Magistrates' court yesterday.

The motorist, Lloyd Elmer King, Route 3, Bedford Road, was apprehended on Bedford Street August 31 by State Trooper Harry S. Bosley.

William E. Harden, Hyndman, Pa., forfeited a $6.45 bond for passing on a curve in the Narrows on August 31. He was arrested by Trooper Bosley.

Other forfeitures were Ray A. Nixon, Route 4, $6.45 for speeding on Route 51, five miles east the city on August 4, and Hugh Farquer, Johnstown, Pa., $6.45 for passing on a curve in the Narrows on August 11. Trooper G. E. Coddington made both arrests.

At Frostburg Wednesday, William T. Skipper, 339 City View Terrace, forfeited $6.45 for failing to stop after an accident. His vehicle sideswiped a car owned by Raymond Don Duckworth, Frostburg, in the Enoch Parking Lot there August 14, according to Trooper William F. Baker.

Duckworth, who was arrested the following day by Trooper Baker on a charge of exceeding 50 miles an hour on Route 36 at Shaft, also forfeited $16.45 on that count.

Three motorists, two of them involved in a motorcycle-car crash on Route 220 at the Celanese plant last month, were found not guilty on reckless driving charges when arraigned Tuesday in Cresaptown before Magistrate Roy S. Bowman.

Trooper Walter Wilt said James W. Hill, operator of the motorcycle, collided with a car driven by Leonard M. Kemp as the latter swerved to avoid hitting a bus turning into the plant gate. The bus driver was identified as Robert Leo Thompson, Frostburg.

An unattended ton and a half coal truck struck and damaged a gate frame at the home of Louis W. Lippold, 106 Greene Street, about 5:30 p. m. yesterday, according to City Police.

Lt. James E. Van said the truck owned by the Gulick Auto Exchange and in charge of Hubert C. Getz, 117 Greene Street, ran backwards and struck the gate frame between 106 and 108 Greene Street. An agreement over damages was made, the officer said, and no charges were filed.

LITTLE ILLS MAKE BIG BILLS!

● True, that "little illness" you've been mentioning in an offhand way, may not seem to amount to much—just a few faint symptoms. But, neglected, these "little ills" can lead to big bills for doctors, medicines, etc; not to mention needless suffering and loss of precious time. Consult a Doctor now—you'll save by it in the end. And, of course, we hope you'll bring his prescription to us for careful compounding.

Eagles To Hold Annual Picnic All Day Sunday

Sports Program To Feature Outing

The annual picnic of Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be held at Smouse's Picnic Grounds Sunday from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m., with games, contests, refreshments and a series of sports events as the features, according to C. William H. Baer, president.

A softball game between Cumberland Aerie and Hagerstown Aerie No. 694 is scheduled for 3 p. m. and 21 rounds of amateur boxing will be presented at 2 p. m. under the direction of Bobby Green, featuring boys of St. Mary's Boys Clubs.

During the morning a series of contests beginning at 10 a. m. will include horseshoe pitching, both doubles and singles; a pie eating contest; cracker eating contest; shoe race; sack race; balloon bursting contest and paper rolling race; with $5 cash prize to the individual winning each event.

A bus schedule has been arranged with bus service from the Eagles' Home, North Mechanic Street beginning at 9 a. m. and continuing each hour thereafter until 5 p. m. Buses returning from the picnic will leave the grounds each hour beginning at 9:30 a. m. until 5:30 p. m.

Arrangements have been made to accomodate all members and the committee promises the picnic will be held, "rain or shine." Members will be required to present their receipts and the same rules that govern the organization's social quarters will be in effect at the picnic grounds.

Avirett Addresses

Gen. Braddock in this locality, Avirett declared, adding that information gained about the British Army while here was of great aid when he latter became general of the Revolutionary Army.

Washington Reviewed Troops

From 1753 to 1758 Major Washington spent a major part of his time in this area and in 1755 General Braddock had a building erected to serve as Washington's headquarters. The structure, now a historic monument still stands in Riverside Park.

In 1794, Washington then President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the Army, returned to Cumberland to take action in the now historically famous Whisky Rebellion, according to Avirett, and once more used the headquarters erected for him by Braddock.

It was during this visit, Avirett said, that the General made his last public appearance in a military uniform. He doned the uniform to review his troops at Fort Cumberland.

The headquarters, when erected, stoop on a site just West of the present Allegany County Court House.

The structure was moved to Bedford Road in 1844 and remained there until 1921 when J. Walter Thomas, purchased the building and after restoring it, donated it to the City of Cumberlahd. It is now located at the Riverside Park.

Two more nationally famous figures visited the city at the time of the dedication, Avirett said, identifying them as General John Pershing and his aide, George C. Marshall, who latter commanded the United States Army during World War II and is now serving as Secretary of State.

ting last night, Moore said the place is literally covered with flowers and the set cost more than $9,000. He described it as "so colorful it takes your breath."

Referring to the work done by sponsors of various contestants, Moore said some Jaycee outfits and other sponsors come to Atlantic City a week ahead of time and start publicizing their entries. They never cease to try to sell their entry and take advantage of every opportunity to publicize their areas.

For instance, he explained, "The fellows with Miss West Virginia have a bunch of gummed stickers, and they have plastered them everywhere. The stickers read, 'Miss West Virginia. At every press conference, or wherever she goes, Miss West Virginia hands out West Virginia made cigars."

Breakfasts With Judges

Moore spent much of last evening watching the show with Joe Occhiato, Pueblo, Colo., president of the Colorado Junior Association of Commerce. Moore said "those fellows really do a big job. Miss Colorado came here with an $800 wardrobe and $1,750 in scholarships from the Jaycees there. She was one of 15 finalists in the state, each sponsored by a Jaycee organization."

Speaking of Jean's program, Moore said she had breakfast along with several other girls as guests of the judges yesterday morning and will have breakfast with them again Saturday at the Senator Hotel. This morning, Jean has no schedule and has been given permission to go for a swim . . . her first in the surf. Rehearsals for each night's show are held each afternoon.

Tonight she will appear in a new evening gown for final competition and scoring. No points are announced in this division until final choice of finalists is made Saturday night.

port, received by the commission several months ago, have not been made public pending settlement of the items in question.

Graham said last night he will request publication of the report in his reply to the commission, adding that "I defy the city to match our efficiency in operating the airport."

He said some members of the seven-man commission are sincere in their desire for development of the airport but that they are not getting the full support of the entire group.

"The airport cannot be operated properly under those conditions," Graham stated.

Couple Enjoined By Court From Molesting Tenant

Woman Charges Door To Home Was Locked

Charging she was locked out of her home at 107 Columbia Street by her landlords despite prompt and regular payment of rent, Bernice E. Screen obtained a temporary injunction in Circuit Count against Leon J. Skinner and Ethel Skinner, his wife.

After filing of a bill of complaint by Earl E. Manges attorney for the Screen woman, Chief Judge William A. Huster signed a court order, enjoining the Skinners from molesting the plaintiff in any manner and to permit her free access to her home, as well as free access for members of her family and friends.

In the bill of complaint the plaintiff alleged that she has paid her rent promptly, but that the Skinners refused to accept her rent for the current month and locked the street door, barring her from her home. She also claims Mrs. Skinner has used profane language toward her.

The court order gives the Skinner couple five days to file an answer, to show why they should not be so enjoined.

Two other suits were docketed in equity. James H. Scell seeks a divorce from Emma M. Scell. Elizabeth Jean Stinebaugh filed a bill of complaint against Clarence Joseph Stinebaugh.

In the Circuit Court's Civil docket, suit was entered by Brown Riggleman against Lloyd Hott for $625.75, through attorney Jack T. Fey. The amount is allegedly the account due for sale of 10,625 feet of pine and oak lumber.

Meyersdale Man Still Missing

Disappearing suddenly on August 20 after an automobile-truck collision at Bowling Green, in which he was involved, William C. Dia, 24, Meyersdale, Pa., is still missing from his home.

Members of his family said they received several reports that Dia was seen in Cumberland within a few days after the accident. He is a veteran of World War II.

usual the month preceding his death.

"Dr. Skitarelic, pathologist, and Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy medical examiner, state that bichloride of mercury is not a homicide drug. It is a suicide drug. The reasons are that it changes to a blue color most all liquids that are drunk by humans. It, also, has a sharp, bitter, metallic taste. The color and taste are practically impossible to disguise. For these reasons, it can be reasonably assumed that anyone who intentionally takes or is maliciously and secretively given bichloride must be aware of the fact.

"After an exhaustive investigation, Sgts. Cassidy and Main of the State Police; Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis; T. J. Boyle, county investigator; Drs. Skitarelic and Deming and all participants in this investigation are in accord that John W. Foreman, Jr. met his death by suicide, and, consequently, such a verdict will be rendered by the deputy medical examiner.

Mrs. Cook Heads County WCTU, Will Organize YTC Here

The Allegany County Christian Temperance Union elected officers and formulated plans for organizing a Youth Temperance Council at the annual fall convention held yesterday at Kingsley Methodist Church.

Mrs. John S. Cook was re-elected president. Others to serve with her are Mrs. Frank M. Dayton, Westernport, vice president; Mrs. A. E. Kesecker, recording secretary; Mrs. E. W. Yates, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. John Fisher, Westernport, treasurer. Mrs. Yates and Mrs. Bessie Grimm, Frostburg, were re-elected legislative directors.

Reporting on the Youth Temperance Council held at Forrest Hill, the five young people sent by the county group, told of the activities and programs at the council, their desire to return next year and how anxious they are to have a YTC organized in Cumberland and Allegany county. Plans were discussed to form an interdenominational YTC here early in October. The young people were Emerson Breedlove, George Sarver, Cresaptown; Dorothy Keesecker, Norma Davis, Kingsley Church; and Janet Crabtree, United Brethren Evangelical.

Mrs. Herbert Fallin, Baltimore, state secretary of Child Welfare and White Ribbon Recruits, gave a demonstration on the building of good and evil for children, with the use of a flannelgraph chart, for the children and children's workers. She also conducted the consecration ceremony for the recruits.

Mrs. Charles Wagner, Baltimore, state president, was the principal speaker at the banquet. She reported on the International convention held in Asbury Park early in June and outlined the work and membership in the various countries in the world. She said that in India alone there was a gain of 39,000 in membership and enumerated the gains in other countries, with China gaining 500 in the past year. She also spoke of how the people of North and South Ireland are uniting in temperance work.

Barton union, which was organized during the year by Mrs. Wagner, reported that it has six families enrolled and is ready to form a Loyal Temperance Legion for younger children.

Reports were given by Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Kesecker, Mrs. Yates, Mrs. Fisher and Mrs. Grimm, county officers; Mrs. Minnie McMannis, Frostburg; Mrs. Dayton, Westernport; Mrs. Yates, Cumberland; Mrs. Catherine Gattens, Barton; and Mrs. Clara Lewis, Cresaptown, presidents of the various unions. Rev. Mason Keesecker, pastor of the host church, extended greetings and Mrs. Frank Dayton made the response. Mrs. Eva Barton and Mrs. Sue Johnson sang several duet numbers; and Mrs. Ethel Zimmerman, solos. She was accompanied by Miss Annetta Yates.

Washington Minister To Address 4-H Clubs

Youth groups throughout the city and county are being invited to attend the September meeting of the Junior Extension 4-H Club of Allegany County next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, according to Miss Maude A. Bean, home demonstration agent.

Dr. Warren D. Bowman, pastor of the Church of the Brethren, Washington, D. C., will speak on "Courtship, Marriage, and Family Life." The meeting will be held in the Livingstone Church of the Brethren at the corner of West Second and North Cedar Streets in South End.

A number of letters have been mailed to organizations sponsoring youth programs and all youth groups will be welcomed, Miss Bean declared. Working with her in preparing the meeting are her assistant, Miss Gloria E. Bohn, and Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent.

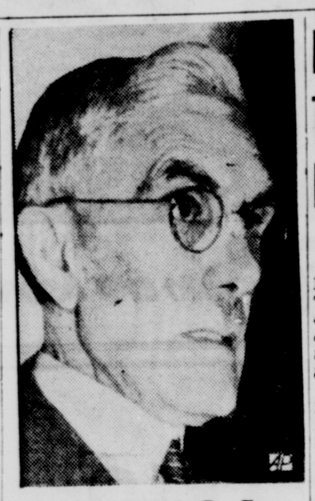
Polio Outbreak May Have Passed "Peak"

The peak of this year's outbreak of infantile paralysis—the least severe nationally since 1942 — has "probably" been passed, according to a statement yesterday by the U. S. Public Health Service.

The "peak" of an outbreak means the week in which the largest number of new cases is reported, after which the weekly figures go steadily down.

Meanwhile, Sydenham Hospital officials in Baltimore reported last night that final diagnosis is pending in the case of Glen R. Brant, 19, local athlete, who was admitted there Wednesday for polio treatment.

Brant, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Brant, 18 Valley Street, was reported getting along satisfactorily, with no apparent danger of muscular reaction.



TO SPEAK HERE—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, Los Angeles, Calif., nationally known as the originator of the Townsend National Mutual Insurance Plan for elderly persons, will speak here tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the Woodmen of the World Hall. Dr. Townsend made his first visit to Cumberland in 1940.

Spring Gap Children Take Swim Course

Twelve children between the ages of 10 and 15, who reside in Spring Gap, have completed a Red Cross beginner's swimming course and will receive certificates from Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, in the near future.

James E. Kelley, Jr., chairman of the Red Cross water safety program, said the children's instructor was Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Spring Gap, who held the swimming classes at the pool at her home.

Officials of the local chapter are scheduled to present certificates to the children in Spring Gap. Date of the ceremony will be announced later.

Those who completed the course are Mildred Bean, Helen Bean, Arthur Collins, Kenneth Cage, Clarence Blackburn, Carol Divilbliss, Bill Divilbliss, Harry Miller, Betty Twigg, Billy Twigg, Virgil Twigg and Kenneth Shipe.

News Briefs

John E. Ballou, 433 Ascension Street, secured a permit yesterday in the city engineer's office to build a one-story concrete block house on Lot 2, Winifred Road, at an estimated cost of $2,000. The structure will measure 28 by 24 feet, with a ruberoid shingle roof. Work will be done by the owner.

The first Rec Club dance of the fall season will be held tonight at Central YMCA, with dancing from 9 until midnight to the music of Jay Van's orchestra.

The child hygiene clinic formerly conducted every second Tuesday of the month at the Wilson Store in Oldtown will now be held the first Tuesday of each month, the Health Department said yesterday.

Born in Aurora August 20, 1857, Mrs. Cupp was a daughter of the late John and Maria Warmuth Mayer, both of whom came to this country from Germany. Her husband, William E. Cupp, a former sheriff of Tucker County, died in 1934. Mrs. Cupp had resided in this county for 63 years.

A funeral service will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. in the Greenlief Funeral Home here for Charles Guy Floyd, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Floyd, Parsons, who was killed in a truck crash at Brandywine, near Franklin, on Tuesday afternoon.

Rev. James H. Lotspeich, pastor of First Methodist Church, will officiate, and interment will be in the Parsons City Cemetery.

The boy, riding in the truck with two men, was fatally injured when the truck went out of control and crashed into a house. His companions escaped injury.

Catfish Gets Away, Police Recapture It

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 4 (AP)—A 12-pound catfish caught by a Huntington angler got away tonight—and was "recaptured" by police in a beer parlor a short time later.

James M. Stark came home with the fish, which he caught in the Ohio river, and hung it on his back porch while he made a trip to a grocery store.

When he returned from the store, the fish was missing. Stark called Police Sgt. James Farmakis and told the officer: "I am so mad about it that I can't see straight."

Within 10 minutes the whole case was solved. The proprietor of a beer parlor near Stark's home called Sergeant Farmakis and asked: "What should I do with a big fish a couple of fellows left on my counter?"

"Don't let him get away," Farmakis answered. "We'll be right there." The fish promptly was taken into "protective custody" by the officer and returned to its rightful owner.

Peep Under Sideshow Tent Costs Boy Eye

DETROIT, Sept. 4 (AP) — Ten-year-old Dickie Hinson stole a furtive peep under the tent flap of a state fair carnival sideshow and it cost him his right eye.

As a consequence, the City of Detroit voiced its official indignation today and a formal charge was brought against a sideshow barker.

But Dickie, full of grins in his hospital bed, still doesn't know about his calamity despite all the attention it has aroused.

"Someone scratched it a little and I hope Mama isn't mad," said he.

A surgeon removed the eye, which police said was damaged from either a kick or a blow. Dickie was under an anesthetic, and the secret, shared by all this city, has been kept from the youngster.

Assistant Prosecutor Samuel Platt said that a citizen, William Ribbing, today identified Roy B. Hix, 41, National City, Calif., barker and guard, as the man he saw kick Dickie.

Factory Workers' Pay, Prices Hit Postwar High

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP) — The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today that factory workers' earnings hit a new all-time peak in June and wholesale prices climbed to a new postwar high in the week ended August 30.

And a Census Bureau report said there was a seasonal decline in the number of farm workers in August which pulled the total of employed civilians below 60,000,000 for the first time in three months.

Average weekly earnings of factory workers were put at $49.37 in June, almost $1 more than the $48.46 in May. But BLS said prices went up from May to June and concluded that workers could buy just about the same amounts in both months, even though they had more money in June.

Sens. Hawkes And Buck Disagree On Rent Curbs

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Sen. Hawkes (R-NJ) predicted today that Congress will allow federal rent controls to die next February 29 but Sen. Buck (D-Del) disagreed.

Hawkes sponsored a recent change in the control law under which landlords can raise rents 15 per cent if tenants agree in exchange for a lease. He told a news conference today that state and local agencies should be able to provide any controls needed after next February.

Buck, who guided the rent control extension through the Senate, said in a later interview:

"I personally think it will be necessary to extend controls if homes can't be built any faster than they are being built now."

13-Room Palace Becomes Temporary White House

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 4 (AP)—Laranjeiras Palace, recently renovated at a cost of more than $1,000,000 became the temporary White House tonight when President Truman and his family moved during a downpour of rain from the United States Embassy residence.

Since they arrived in Rio de Janeiro Monday the Trumans have been living at the embassy residence, but they will reside in the 13-room palace from tonight until they leave for the United States Sunday aboard the battleship Missouri.

Tax Notices In Mail

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 4 (AP) — Bad news was in the mail tonight for about 32,000 Marylanders. The State Income Tax Division finished sending out notices today to taxpayers whose third installments on 1946 payments are due September 15.

"THANKS, MISTER!"—Charles Horton, Jr., 14, whose left forearm was severed by a passing street car when he was holding it outside a bus window at St. Louis, thanks Navy Veteran Leo H. Berger, 20, credited with saving the boy's life by holding a tourniquet on his arm for 20 minutes until they reached a hospital in an ambulance.

Decatur Street Paving Dispute Ended By Court

The City of Cumberland won the sixth and final point in the suit over payment of repaving Decatur Street yesterday, when Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson ruled that no substantial sum had been realized from salvaged material from the street.

Property owners had protested in Court against paying assessments for repaving the thoroughfare, claiming the costs charged were too high, etc. The Court ruled against the property owners in favor of the city several days ao on five other demurrers, and yesterday ruled against property owners on the sixth demurrer, thus completing the case. The salvage material demurrer had been held open until additional testimony could be taken.

City Officials Testify

Testifying for the city yesterday was Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, and Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer. Both stated the bricks in question were originally laid in 1902 and remained as the paving surface until 1930 when they were blacktopped. Rizer said a good 30 per cent were worn, broken and cracked, and that the best of the lot were used in constructing manholes and other parts of the street improvement program of several months ago.

William A. Spruill, one of the persons objecting to the cost of the work, testified he had advised the city to use the old brick and a thinner concrete base in order to hold down the costs. Judge Henderson commented on completion of testimony that the Decatur Stree residents had only produced one witness in the person of Spruill.

"If the old brick had been relaid by hand as he had suggested, what kind of street would you have had," Judge Henderson inquired.

Most of Bricks Dumped

Corrigan said all of the brick not used in manholes and other work on Decatur Street were hauled to Constitution Park and dumped. Rizer said all of the brick would not have brought much more than $5 or $6 a thousand. He also said they would not be suitable for building purposes, although a number were used in some foundation work on one building.

Judge Huster stated in the opinion delivered from the bench that "If any of the material had a resale value the evidence this morning does not show any such value."

The court could not set any value on the basis of testimony given by the Decatur Street group, he added.

Building Permits Amount To $9,000

Three building permits for construction estimated to total $9,000 have been issued by the city engineer's office.

Marie K. Holzshu secured a permit to build a one-story house, 37 by 27 feet, on Lot 18 and parts of Lots 17 and 19 on Fayette Street, at an estimated cost of $5,000. The structure will have a concrete block foundation, tile and cement walls and an asphalt shingle roof. Work will be done by the owner.

A permit was secured by Douglas D. Parker, 626 Laing Avenue, to build a one-story house, 28 by 28 feet, on Lot 99, Laing Avenue. Cost is estimated at $2,500, and work will be done by the owner. The building will have a brick foundation, frame walls and a composition roof.

O. J. Hudson secured a permit to build a one-story addition to a house at 724 Central Avenue. The addition, 13 by 20 feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls covered with brick siding, and a ruberoid shingle roof. Work will be done by J. F. Jones at an estimated cost of $1,500.

A permit was granted to Mrs. Mildred Spicer, 611 Montreal Avenue, to operate a beauty shop at that address as a part-time activity.

Altoona Youth Hurt In Truck Crash

Thomas Mitchell, 19, Altoona, Pa., was reported in good condition last night in Memorial Hospital, where he was admitted early yesterday morning after suffering a fractured right leg and head injuries in a motor accident on Route 28 at Springfield, W. Va.

Attaches said Mitchell, employed by the F. Willison Contracting Company, told them his truck crashed against a telephone pole after he fell asleep at the wheel. His leg was pinned beneath the wreckage.

The youth was brought to the hospital by Loy Wagoner, Springfield, attendants reported.

A 10-year-old girl, Joanna Sacks, 628 Montgomery Avenue, was treated in the same hospital for brush burns of the nose, suffered when she fell from a tree. X-rays were taken.

Attaches said H. W. Smith, secretary of the Cumberland Chamber of Commerce, who underwent an appendectomy at Memorial several days ago, is "getting along fine."

Sons Of Legion Elect Officers

Financial Report Shows High Cash Balance For City

The city's annual financial report, released yesterday by Mayor Thomas S. Post, shows a cash balance of $70,107.40, the largest in many years because of the excellent tax collection record, according to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson.

For the previous 12 months a cash balance of $34,031.52 was listed. Uncollected taxes for the city fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, amounted only to $7,531.27, according to the report, which was audited by Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company, local accountants.

Study Sinking Fund

The auditors made a somewhat different approach in making a study of the sinking fund. They report term bonds in the General Department amount to $1,475,000 and report that $935,143.44 has been placed in the sinking fund for redemption to leave a balance of $539,856 needed. In the Water Department term bonds totaling $2,705,000 are outstanding, and $958,204.79 has been set aside for redemption.

The city appropriates $32,346.33 annually for general redemption and $37,284.44 for the Water Department. The sinking fund is earning interest at the rate of 2.395 per cent.

Based on investments, the current rate of interest, and appropriations the auditors find "there will be a deficit in the amount accumulated for the retirement of the bonds of the Water Department. But this deficit will be more than offset by the surplus accumulated in the funds provided for the retirement of the bonds of the General Department."

The report shows parking meter income for the year to be $22,966.37. Of this amount of new meters and for installation of new meters and $4,888.78 was the cost of collections and maintenance. Thus a net revenue balance of $10,344.30 is listed.

Surplus for the year in the General Department is reported at $28,057. Revenue was $17,134.36 ahead of estimates and expenditures were $10,922.64 under appropriations. The $28,057 is added to a previous surplus of $5,956.30 to make a total of $34,013.30.

For the Water Department operating revenue is given at $382,983.87 and operating expenses at $176,075.79 to make a total of $206,908.08 in operating revenue. Non-operating expenses (interest and bond requirements) totaled $171,084.44, leaving a net income of $35,823.64. Part of the operating cost was for work in connection with the proposed new water line and is not an operating cost in the ordinary meaning but is really a capital outlay.

The balance in the Sunday theatre charity tax account was listed as $16,261.19.

Audit Authorized

"We suggest that the basis upon which the city derives the above income be analyzed to insure that the city is receiving its proper share."

Another conclusion is that "bonds carried on the various officials of the city, in relation to funds handled, are not large enough. In addition, not all officials who handle funds are bonded."

Gibson said all officials handling large amounts of money are bonded but some of those receiving relatively small amounts are not.

Truck-Car Collision Reported To Police

City police last night received a report of an accident on Franklin Street yesterday at 12:15 p. m. involving a parked car and truck in which the owner of the car was injured, officers said.

The driver of the truck was identified as Robert Watkins, 22 Lee Street, who collided with the parked car of Louis Schade, 510 Franklin Street. The report stated that Schade was repairing a hinge on the door of his car when the truck ran against it, injuring Schade.

Pennsylvania State Police yesterday investigated an accident that occurred on Legislative Route 05084 in which a car and truck collided at an intersection near Imler, Pa.

Police said the truck driver, Ralph Williams, 30, RFD 3 Bedford, was arrested and fined $10 and costs for failing to give the right-of-way to a car driven by Frederick C. Eicker, 61, Imler.

Police explained that according to West Virginia law the driver of a car who has entered the main highway has the right-of-way.

Farm Agent Has Prize Money For Fair Winners

A number of persons who won premium money and prizes at the County Fair here last week failed to collect the amounts due them, according to County Farm Agent Ralph F. McHenry. This money is at the County Farm Agent's office, Court House, and may be obtained by those entitled to it if they will call, McHenry said.

Franklin Heavener, RFD No. 3, won three prizes in the New Hampshire Reds class, for $2.75.

Fred Miltenberger, Frostburg, took three prizes in White Rocks and White Leghorns, totaling $2.75. His brother, James Miltenberger, won $2.25 in three prizes in the same groups.

Motorist Is Fined On Driving Count

The motorist, Lloyd Elmer King, Route 3, Bedford Road, was apprehended on Bedford Street August 31 by State Trooper Harry S. Bosley.

William E. Harden, Hyndman, Pa., forfeited a $6.45 bond for passing on a curve in the Narrows on August 31. He was arrested by Trooper Bosley.

Other forfeitures were Ray A. Nixon, Route 4, $6.45 for speeding on Route 51, five miles east the city on August 4, and Hugh Farquer, Johnstown, Pa., $6.45 for passing on a curve in the Narrows on August 11. Trooper G. E. Coddington made both arrests.

At Frostburg Wednesday, William T. Skipper, 339 City View Terrace, forfeited $6.45 for failing to stop after an accident. His vehicle sideswiped a car owned by Raymond Don Duckworth, Frostburg, in the Enoch Parking Lot there August 14, according to Trooper William F. Baker.

Duckworth, who was arrested the following day by Trooper Baker on a charge of exceeding 50 miles an hour on Route 36 at Shaft, also forfeited $16.45 on that count.

Three motorists, two of them involved in a motorcycle-car crash on Route 220 at the Celanese plant last month, were found not guilty on reckless driving charges when arraigned Tuesday in Cresaptown before Magistrate Roy S. Bowman.

Trooper Walter Wilt said James W. Hill, operator of the motorcycle, collided with a car driven by Leonard M. Kemp as the latter swerved to avoid hitting a bus turning into the plant gate. The bus driver was identified as Robert Leo Thompson, Frostburg.

Only One In Five Foresees Decline

The American people in a recent Gallup Poll voted the high cost of living the most important issue facing the nation. Starting today the Gallup Poll in a series of three articles reports how the public is reacting to high prices, including an analysis of how much families are now paying for food, where they think prices and wages are heading, and how much money they need to get along today.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., September 4—The American people are filled with gloom about the prospects of pulling prices down.

Although the cost of living has already skyrocketed to Himalayan heights, only one person in five believes prices will come down during the next six months.

Twice that number think they will actually go HIGHER. In today's inflationary spiral the public's attitude seems to be, in other words: no relief in sight.

If John Citizen turns out to be right in his guess about the future, and prices do actually go higher, there may be some awesome political upheavals in next year's election. The question is just how much patience the average American can show while enduring the torturous squeeze of mounting costs in everyday living.

A coast-to-coast poll by the Institute, in which adults in all walks of life were questioned, brings out the fact that the country is far more pessimistic now than five months ago about the chances of some relief from high prices. In April the Institute found by far the largest number saying they thought prices would go down.

The contrast is as folows:

"Do you think that prices in general will be higher, lower, or about the same six months from now?"

	Last April	Today
Higher	22%	41%
Lower	46	21
Same	24	30
No opinion	8	8

Expectancy of price rises may produce a stampeding psychology on purchases. If people think prices are going up, they are presumably more inclined to buy goods now, before things become even more expensive. Contrariwise, if people think prices are going down, they would be inclined to postpone a purchase or at least to buy very carefully.

The question is whether the public—untutored in economics—is good at guessing the future. Its guessing record for the past year or so is mixed, so far as prices are concerned.

In August 1946, the overwhelming majority said they thought prices would go up during the next six months. That guess turned out to be dead right.

But in April of this year, as the table above shows the weight of opinion was that prices would go down. So far there hasn't been much sign of that happening. Now there's a tendency to think prices will go up in the near future. The public may turn out to be right this time; the next few months will yield the answer. Henry Ford II has already announced price increases in his cars, rescinding an earlier cut.

Today's survey was completed before this announcement.

Gen. Braddock in this locality, Avirett declared, adding that information gained about the British Army while here was of great aid when he latter became general of the Revolutionary Army.

Washington Reviewed Troops

From 1753 to 1758 Major Washington spent a major part of his time in this area and in 1755 General Braddock had a building erected to serve as Washington's headquarters. The structure, now a historic monument still stands in Riverside Park.

In 1794, Washington then President of the United States and Commander in Chief of the Army, returned to Cumberland to take action in the now historically famous Whisky Rebellion, according to Avirett, and once more used the headquarters erected for him by Braddock.

It was during this visit, Avirett said, that the General made his last public appearance in a military uniform. He doned the uniform to review his troops at Fort Cumberland.

The headquarters, when erected, stoop on a site just West of the present Allegany County Court House.

The structure was moved to Bedford Road in 1844 and remained there until 1921 when J. Walter Thomas, purchased the building and after restoring it, donated it to the City of Cumberlahd. It is now located at the Riverside Park.

Two more nationally famous figures visited the city at the time of the dedication, Avirett said, identifying them as General John Pershing and his aide, George C. Marshall, who latter commanded the United States Army during World War II and is now serving as Secretary of State.

ting last night, Moore said the place is literally covered with flowers and the set cost more than $9,000. He described it as "so colorful it takes your breath."

Referring to the work done by sponsors of various contestants, Moore said some Jaycee outfits and other sponsors come to Atlantic City a week ahead of time and start publicizing their entries. They never cease to try to sell their entry and take advantage of every opportunity to publicize their areas.

For instance, he explained, "The fellows with Miss West Virginia have a bunch of gummed stickers, and they have plastered them everywhere. The stickers read, 'Miss West Virginia.' At every press conference, or wherever she goes, Miss West Virginia hands out West Virginia made cigars."

Breakfasts With Judges

Moore spent much of last evening watching the show with Joe Occhiato, Pueblo, Colo., president of the Colorado Junior Association of Commerce. Moore said "those fellows really do a big job. Miss Colorado came here with an $800 wardrobe and $1,750 in scholarships from the Jaycees there. She was one of 15 finalists in the state, each sponsored by a Jaycee organization."

Speaking of Jean's program, Moore said she had breakfast along with several other girls as guests of the judges yesterday morning and will have breakfast with them again Saturday at the Senator Hotel. This morning, Jean has no schedule and has been given permission to go for a swim . . . her first in the surf. Rehearsals for each night's show are held each afternoon.

Tonight she will appear in a new evening gown for final competition and scoring. No points are announced in this division until final choice of finalists is made Saturday night.

Graham said last night he will request publication of the report in his reply to the commission, adding that "I defy the city to match our efficiency in operating the airport."

He said some members of the seven-man commission are sincere in their desire for development of the airport but that they are not getting the full support of the entire group.

"The airport cannot be operated properly under those conditions," Graham stated.

Couple Enjoined By Court From Molesting Tenant

Woman Charges Door To Home Was Locked

Charging she was locked out of her home at 107 Columbia Street by her landlords despite prompt and regular payment of rent, Bernice E. Screen obtained a temporary injunction in Circuit Count against Leon J. Skinner and Ethel Skinner, his wife.

After filing of a bill of complaint by Earl E. Manges attorney for the Screen woman, Chief Judge William A. Huster signed a court order, enjoining the Skinners from molesting the plaintiff in any manner and to permit her free access to her home, as well as free access for members of her family and friends.

In the bill of complaint the plaintiff alleged that she has paid her rent promptly, but that the Skinners refused to accept her rent for the current month and locked the street door, barring her from her home. She also claims Mrs. Skinner has used profane language toward her.

The court order gives the Skinner couple five days to file an answer, to show why they should not be so enjoined.

Two other suits were docketed in equity. James H. Scell seeks a divorce from Emma M. Scell. Elizabeth Jean Stinebaugh filed a bill of complaint against Clarence Joseph Stinebaugh.

In the Circuit Court's Civil docket, suit was entered by Brown Riggleman against Lloyd Hott for $625.75, through attorney Jack T. Fey. The amount is allegedly the account due for sale of 10,625 feet of pine and oak lumber.

"Dr. Skitarelic, pathologist, and Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy medical examiner, state that bichloride of mercury is not a homicide drug. It is a suicide drug. The reasons are that it changes to a blue color most all liquids that are drunk by humans. It, also, has a sharp, bitter, metallic taste. The color and taste are practically impossible to disguise. For these reasons, it can be reasonably assumed that anyone who intentionally takes or is maliciously and secretively given bichloride must be aware of the fact.

"After an exhaustive investigation, Sgts. Cassidy and Main of the State Police; Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis; T. J. Boyle, county investigator; Drs. Skitarelic and Deming and all participants in this investigation are in accord that John W. Foreman, Jr., met his death by suicide, and, consequently, such a verdict will be rendered by the deputy medical examiner.

Polio Outbreak May Have Passed "Peak"

The peak of this year's outbreak of infantile paralysis—the least severe nationally since 1942 — has "probably" been passed, according to a statement yesterday by the U. S. Public Health Service.

The "peak" of an outbreak means the week in which the largest number of new cases is reported, after which the weekly figures go steadily down.

Meanwhile, Sydenham Hospital officials in Baltimore reported last night that final diagnosis is pending in the case of Glen R. Brant, 19, local athlete, who was admitted there Wednesday for polio treatment.

Brant, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Brant, 18 Valley Street, was reported getting along satisfactorily, with no apparent danger of muscular reaction.

Catfish Gets Away, Police Recapture It

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 4 (AP)—A 12-pound catfish caught by a Huntington angler got away tonight—and was "recaptured" by police in a beer parlor a short time later.

James M. Stark came home with the fish, which he caught in the Ohio river, and hung it on his back porch while he made a trip to a grocery store.

When he returned from the store, the fish was missing. Stark called Police Sgt. James Farmakis and told the officer: "I am so mad about it that I can't see straight."

Within 10 minutes the whole case was solved. The proprietor of a beer parlor near Stark's home called Sergeant Farmakis and asked: "What should I do with a big fish a couple of fellows left on my counter?"

"Don't let him get away," Farmakis answered. "We'll be right there." The fish promptly was taken into "protective custody" by the officer and returned to its rightful owner.

Peep Under Sideshow Tent Costs Boy Eye

As a consequence, the City of Detroit voiced its official indignation today and a formal charge was brought against a sideshow barker.

But Dickie, full of grins in his hospital bed, still doesn't know about his calamity despite all the attention it has aroused.

"Someone scratched it a little and I hope Mama isn't mad," said he.

A surgeon removed the eye, which police said was damaged from either a kick or a blow. Dickie was under an anesthetic, and the secret, shared by all this city, has been kept from the youngster.

Assistant Prosecutor Samuel Platt said that a citizen, William Ribbing, today identified Roy B. Hix, 41, National City, Calif., barker and guard, as the man he saw kick Dickie.

Factory Workers' Pay, Prices Hit Postwar High

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP) — The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today that factory workers' earnings hit a new all-time peak in June and wholesale prices climbed to a new postwar high in the week ended August 30.

And a Census Bureau report said there was a seasonal decline in the number of farm workers in August which pulled the total of employed civilians below 60,000,000 for the first time in three months.

Average weekly earnings of factory workers were put at $49.37 in June, almost $1 more than the $48.46 in May. But BLS said prices went up from May to June and concluded that workers could buy just about the same amounts in both months, even though they had more money in June.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP)—Sen. Hawkes (R-NJ) predicted today that Congress will allow federal rent controls to die next February 29 but Sen. Buck (D-Del) disagreed.

Hawkes sponsored a recent change in the control law under which landlords can raise rents 15 per cent if tenants agree in exchange for a lease. He told a news conference today that state and local agencies should be able to provide any controls needed after next February.

Buck, who guided the rent control extension through the Senate, said in a later interview:

"I personally think it will be necessary to extend controls if homes can't be built any faster than they are being built now."

Decatur Street Paving Dispute Ended By Court

The City of Cumberland won the sixth and final point in the suit over payment of repaving Decatur Street yesterday, when Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson ruled that no substantial sum had been realized from salvaged material from the street.

Property owners had protested in Court against paying assessments for repaving the thoroughfare, claiming the costs charged were too high, etc. The Court ruled against the property owners in favor of the city several days ao on five other demurrers, and yesterday ruled against property owners on the sixth demurrer, thus completing the case. The salvage material demurrer had been held open until additional testimony could be taken.

City Officials Testify

Testifying for the city yesterday was Martin M. Corrigan, street superintendent, and Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer. Both stated the bricks in question were originally laid in 1902 and remained as the paving surface until 1930 when they were blacktopped. Rizer said a good 30 per cent were worn, broken and cracked, and that the best of the lot were used in constructing manholes and other parts of the street improvement program of several months ago.

William A. Spruill, one of the persons objecting to the cost of the work, testified he had advised the city to use the old brick and a thinner concrete base in order to hold down the costs. Judge Henderson commented on completion of testimony that the Decatur Stree residents had only produced one witness in the person of Spruill.

"If the old brick had been relaid by hand as he had suggested, what kind of street would you have had," Judge Henderson inquired.

Most of Bricks Dumped

Corrigan said all of the brick not used in manholes and other work on Decatur Street were hauled to Constitution Park and dumped. Rizer said all of the brick would not have brought much more than $5 or $6 a thousand. He also said they would not be suitable for building purposes, although a number were used in some foundation work on one building.

Judge Huster stated in the opinion delivered from the bench that "If any of the material had a resale value the evidence this morning does not show any such value."

The court could not set any value on the basis of testimony given by the Decatur Street group, he added.

Building Permits Amount To $9,000

Three building permits for construction estimated to total $9,000 have been issued by the city engineer's office.

Marie K. Holzshu secured a permit to build a one-story house, 37 by 27 feet, on Lot 18 and parts of Lots 17 and 19 on Fayette Street, at an estimated cost of $5,000. The structure will have a concrete block foundation, tile and cement walls and an asphalt shingle roof. Work will be done by the owner.

A permit was secured by Douglas D. Parker, 626 Laing Avenue, to build a one-story house, 28 by 28 feet, on Lot 99, Laing Avenue. Cost is estimated at $2,500, and work will be done by the owner. The building will have a brick foundation, frame walls and a composition roof.

O. J. Hudson secured a permit to build a one-story addition to a house at 724 Central Avenue. The addition, 13 by 20 feet, will have a concrete block foundation, frame walls covered with brick siding, and a ruberoid shingle roof. Work will be done by J. F. Jones at an estimated cost of $1,500.

A permit was granted to Mrs. Mildred Spicer, 611 Montreal Avenue, to operate a beauty shop at that address as a part-time activity.

The youth was brought to the hospital by Loy Wagoner, Springfield, attendants reported.

A 10-year-old girl, Joanna Sacks, 628 Montgomery Avenue, was treated in the same hospital for brush burns of the nose, suffered when she fell from a tree. X-rays were taken.

Financial Report Shows High Cash Balance For City

The city's annual financial report, released yesterday by Mayor Thomas S. Post, shows a cash balance of $70,107.40, the largest in many years because of the excellent tax collection record, according to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson.

For the previous 12 months a cash balance of $34,031.52 was listed. Uncollected taxes for the city fiscal year ending March 31, 1947, amounted only to $7,531.27, according to the report, which was audited by Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company, local accountants.

Study Sinking Fund

The auditors made a somewhat different approach in making a study of the sinking fund. They report term bonds in the General Department amount to $1,475,000 and report that $935,143.44 has been placed in the sinking fund for redemption to leave a balance of $539,856 needed. In the Water Department term bonds totaling $2,705,000 are outstanding, and $958,204.79 has been set aside for redemption.

The city appropriates $32,346.33 annually for general redemption and $37,284.44 for the Water Department. The sinking fund is earning interest at the rate of 2.395 per cent.

Based on investments, the current rate of interest, and appropriations the auditors find "there will be a deficit in the amount accumulated for the retirement of the bonds of the Water Department. But this deficit will be more than offset by the surplus accumulated in the funds provided for the retirement of the bonds of the General Department."

The report shows parking meter income for the year to be $22,966.37. Of this amount of new meters and for installation of new meters and $4,888.78 was the cost of collections and maintenance. Thus a net evenue balance of $10,344.30 is listed.

Surplus for the year in the General Department is reported at $28,057. Revenue was $17,134.36 ahead of estimates and expenditures were $10,922.64 under appropriations. The $28,057 is added to a previous surplus of $5,956.30 to make a total of $34,013.30.

For the Water Department operating revenue is given at $382,983.87 and operating expenses at $176,075.79 to make a total of $206,908.08 in operating revenue. Non-operating expenses (interest and bond requirements) totaled $171,084.44, leaving a net income of $35,823.64. Part of the operating cost was for work in connection with the proposed new water line and is not an operating cost in the ordinary meaning but is really a capital outlay.

The balance in the Sunday theatre charity tax account was listed at $16,261.19.

Audit Authorized

"We suggest that the basis upon which the city derives the above income be analyzed to insure that the city is receiving its proper share."

Another conclusion is that "bonds carried on the various officials of the city, in relation to funds handled, are not large enough. In addition, not all officials who handle funds are bonded."

Gibson said all officials handling large amounts of money are bonded but some of those receiving relatively small amounts are not.

Truck-Car Collision Reported To Police

City police last night received a report of an accident on Franklin Street yesterday at 12:15 p. m. involving a parked car and truck in which the owner of the car was injured, officers said.

The driver of the truck was identified as Robert Watkins, 22 Lee Street, who collided with the parked car of Louis Schade, 510 Franklin Street. The report stated that Schade was repairing a hinge on the door of his car when the truck ran against it, injuring Schade.

Pennsylvania State Police yesterday investigated an accident that occurred on Legislative Route 05084 in which a car and truck collided at an intersection near Imler, Pa.

Police said the truck driver, Ralph Williams, 30, RFD 3 Bedford, was arrested and fined $10 and costs for failing to give the right-of-way to a car driven by Frederick C. Eicker, 61, Imler.

Hospital Report Lists $12,199 As Net Surplus

According to a report filed with the city, Memorial Hospital had a net operating income of $29.252.51 and a net surplus of $12,199.90 for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1946.

Hospital officials consider the year exceptionally good but believe the record will be difficult to maintain unless rates are raised to meet increasing cost according to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson.

The report, prepared by Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company, local accountants, recommends a change to machine bookkeeping in handling records of accounts receivable, a detailed inventory of furniture and equipment and a number of other changes in accounting methods.

Total hospital income is listed as $504,706.10, including $340,256.74 for the board and care of patients, delivery and operating room. Operating expense was $475,453.59. Accounts written off totaled $46,-471.36 but this was partially offset by a contribution of $18,542 from the state.

Other income (interest on investments and inventory adjustments) was $21,270.33. This made a total net income, before depreciation, of $50,522.84.

Depreciation on furniture and equipment is listed at $18,870.54 and depreciation on buildings at $19,-452.40. This leaves a net surplus of $12,199.90.

Hospital investments at the end of September totaled $150,000 but $26,000 worth of the bonds were sold since then to leave a balance of $124,000 allocated as follows:

Replacements and betterments, $42,000; paint shop, $15,000; special replacements, $25,000; furnishings, $20,000; extensions, $20,000, and nurses home, $2,000.

Dr. Joseph Ray Heads New University Bureau

Dr. Joseph M. Ray, head of the Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland has been named to head a Bureau of Public Administration at the school.

The bureau, which has been established this year, and the department are in the College of Business and Public Administration.

The Bureau of Public Administration is concerned primarily with study and research in the problems of government within the State of Maryland. One of its first projects will be an analysis of Maryland's present constitution, pointing toward the popular election in 1950 on the issue of a new constitution for Maryland. Other general studies are planned.

Surveys were made by Dr. Ray last year of the governments of Hagerstown and Cumberland. Similar studies in other localities will be undertaken by the new bureau upon request. It is planned also to make the bureau a clearing house of news and information regarding governmental problems and developments through the state. Similar bureaus exist at many other state universities.

Only One In Five Foresees Decline

The American people in a recent Gallup Poll voted the high cost of living the most important issue facing the nation. Starting today the Gallup Poll in a series of three articles reports how the public is reacting to high prices, including an analysis of how much families are now paying for food, where they think prices and wages are heading, and how much money they need to get along today.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., September 4—The American people are filled with gloom about the prospects of pulling prices down.

Although the cost of living has already skyrocketed to Himalayan heights, only one person in five believes prices will come down during the next six months.

Twice that number think they will actually go HIGHER. In today's inflationary spiral the public's attitude seems to be, in other words: no relief in sight.

If John Citizen turns out to be right in his guess about the future, and prices do actually go higher, there may be some awesome political upheavals in next year's election. The question is just how much patience the average American can show while enduring the torturous squeeze of mounting costs in everyday living.

A coast-to-coast poll by the Institute, in which adults in all walks of life were questioned, brings out the fact that the country is far more pessimistic now than five months ago about the chances of some relief from high prices. In April the Institute found by far the largest number saying they thought prices would go down.

"Do you think that prices in general will be higher, lower, or about the same six months from now?"

	Last April	Today
Higher	22%	41%
Lower	46	21
Same	24	30
No opinion	8	8

Expectancy of price rises may produce a stampeding psychology on purchases. If people think prices are going up, they are presumably more inclined to buy goods now, before things become even more expensive. Contrariwise, if people think prices are going down, they would be inclined to postpone a purchase or at least to buy very carefully.

The question is whether the public—untutored in economics—is good at guessing the future. Its guessing record for the past year or so is mixed, so far as prices are concerned.

In August 1946, the overwhelming majority said they thought prices would go up during the next six months. That guess turned out to be dead right.

But in April of this year, as the table above shows the weight of opinion was that prices would go down. So far there hasn't been much sign of that happening. Now there's a tendency to think prices will go up in the near future. The public may turn out to be right this time; the next few months will yield the answer. Henry Ford II has already announced price increases in his cars, rescinding an earlier cut. Today's survey was completed before this announcement.

TOMORROW—The second article in this Gallup Poll series on prices will analyze what is happening to the average city family's weekly food budget.

Probe Of Girl's Slaying By Brother Is Dropped

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 4—(AP)—The state dropped its investigation yesterday of the shotgun slaying of eight-year-old Betty Taylor, but federal agents confiscated the weapon which Chief of Police William MacDonald said was loaded and fired by the victim's four-year-old brother Billy.

Daniel J. Conerty, head of the federal alcohol tax unit in Chicago, said the shotgun, sawed off to a length of 14¾ inches, was not registered in accordance with the small arms provisions of the National Firearms Act. He said his office would investigate the alleged violation.

State's Attorney Harry Hall, of Lake County, said no action would be taken against Billy as the law does not hold a child of his age accountable for his actions.

War Bride Will Stand Trial On Robbery Charge

DETROIT, Sept. 4—(AP)—England still was a long way away today to blonde Mrs. Pearl Baker, an abandoned British war bride accused of taking part in the $12 toy gun holdup of a taxi driver.

Recorder's Judge John P. Scallen ordered her held for trial on a robbery charge despite her earlier plea that "the judge sympathize with me and help me return home."

He set no date for her trial which her attorney, Raymond De Ryck, said would take place before a jury.

Unable to post bonds totalling $5,000, Mrs. Baker, mother of two small children, was returned to the jail cell she has occupied since her arrest a week ago.

All Gone Now

KEOKUK, Ia., Sept. 4—(AP)—John Brown was one of the first Keokuk GIs to cash in his terminal leave bonds Tuesday, the first day on which veterans had an opportunity to turn the bonds into cash.

Women Officially Begin Jury Service In Maryland

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4—(AP)—Women officially began jury service in Maryland for the first time yesterday when two housewives were named to the federal grand jury and took the oath.

Maryland's General Assembly early this year adopted women's jury service after years of controversy in which the proposal perennially came up in the Legislature and was scuttled. Some counties were exempted when it finally passed this year.

The two women selected were Mrs. William Passano, Baltimore, and Mrs. Leonard M. Gaines, of suburban Ruxton. Mrs. Passano said that besides being a housewife she is connected with the child study association.

KIDNEYS GETTING YOU UP NIGHTS?

● If you get up nights—have frequent desire to pass your water—but have only scanty passages—yes, and have backache due to excess acidity in the urine, be glad you're reading this:

Three generations ago Dr. Kilmer, a famous doctor, found hundreds of his patients with this trouble. Painstakingly he made a medicine of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, balsams—Nature's own way to relief. Hospital Report Lists $12,199 As Net Surplus

According to a report filed with the city, Memorial Hospital had a net operating income of $29,252.51 and a net surplus of $12,199.90 for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1946.

Hospital officials consider the year exceptionally good but believe the record will be difficult to maintain unless rates are raised to meet increasing cost according to City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson.

The report, prepared by Berman, Goldman, Levin and Company, local accountants, recommends a change to machine bookkeeping in handling records of accounts receivable, a detailed inventory of furniture and equipment and a number of other changes in accounting methods.

Total hospital income is listed as $504,706.10, including $340,256.74 for the board and care of patients, delivery and operating room. Operating expense was $475,453.59. Accounts written off totaled $46,471.36 but this was partially offset by a contribution of $18,542 from the state.

Other income (interest on investments and inventory adjustments) was $21,270.33. This made a total net income, before depreciation, of $50,522.84.

Depreciation on furniture and equipment is listed at $18,870.54 and depreciation on buildings at $19,452.40. This leaves a net surplus of $12,199.90.

Hospital investments at the end of September totaled $150,000 but $26,000 worth of the bonds were sold since then to leave a balance of $124,000 allocated as follows:

Replacements and betterments, $42,000; paint shop, $15,000; special replacements, $25,000; furnishings, $20,000; extensions, $20,000, and nurses home, $2,000.

Hornbrook's Car Found By Celanese Policeman

City police have reported that the auto of Charles Hornbrook, Winifred Road, Times and Alleganian Company photographer, was recovered Wednesday at the Celanese plant parking lot by Patrolman J. I. Snow, Celanese Police Department.

Patrolman Snow said that another car belonging to George B. Cooper, was apparently taken when the thief parked Hornbrook's car. He identified the car as a 1939 Chevrolet bearing license No. 346-512.

State and City Police were also searching for a Ford coach, West Virginia license No. 182-714, which was reported stolen in Romney, W. Va. Police said James Miller, the owner made the report.

Smoker Blamed For Fire

East Side firemen were called to the residence of C. E. Dorsey, 228 Cecelia Street, at 1:30 a. m. yesterday and said a fire was started by someone smoking in bed.

Dr. Joseph Ray Heads New University Bureau

Dr. Joseph M. Ray, head of the Department of Government and Politics at the University of Maryland has been named to head a Bureau of Public Administration at the school.

The bureau, which has been established this year, and the department are in the College of Business and Public Administration.

The Bureau of Public Administration is concerned primarily with study and research in the problems of government within the State of Maryland. One of its first projects will be an analysis of Maryland's present constitution, pointing toward the popular election in 1950 on the issue of a new constitution for Maryland. Other general studies are planned.

Surveys were made by Dr. Ray last year of the governments of Hagerstown and Cumberland. Similar studies in other localities will be undertaken by the new bureau upon request. It is planned also to make the bureau a clearing house of news and information regarding governmental problems and developments through the state. Similar bureaus exist at many other state universities.

Probe Of Girl's Slaying By Brother Is Dropped

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 4—(AP)—The state dropped its investigation yesterday of the shotgun slaying of eight-year-old Betty Taylor, but federal agents confiscated the weapon on which Chief of Police William MacDonald said was loaded and fired by the victim's four-year-old brother Billy.

Daniel J. Conerty, head of the federal alcohol tax unit in Chicago, said the shotgun, sawed off to a length of 14¾ inches, was not registered in accordance with the small arms provisions of the National Firearms Act. He said his office would investigate the alleged violation.

State's Attorney Harry Hall, of Lake County, said no action would be taken against Billy as the law does not hold a child of his age accountable for his actions.

War Bride Will Stand Trial On Robbery Charge

DETROIT, Sept. 4—(AP)—England still was a long way away today to blonde Mrs. Pearl Baker, an abandoned British war bride accused of taking part in the $12 toy gun holdup of a taxi driver.

Recorder's Judge John P. Scallen ordered her held for trial on a robbery charge despite her earlier plea that "the judge sympathize with me and help me return home."

He set no date for her trial which her attorney, Raymond De Ryck, said would take place before a jury.

Unable to post bonds totalling $5,000, Mrs. Baker, mother of two small children, was returned to the jail cell she has occupied since her arrest a week ago.

KEOKUK, Ia., Sept. 4—(AP)—John Brown was one of the first Keokuk GIs to cash in his terminal leave bonds Tuesday, the first day on which veterans had an opportunity to turn the bonds into cash.

Women Officially Begin Jury Service In Maryland

BALTIMORE, Sept. 4—(AP)—Women officially began jury service in Maryland for the first time yesterday when two housewives were named to the federal grand jury and took the oath.

Maryland's General Assembly early this year adopted women's jury service after years of controversy in which the proposal perennially came up in the Legislature and was scuttled. Some counties were exempted when it finally passed this year.

The two women selected were Mrs. William Passano, Baltimore, and Mrs. Leonard M. Gaines, of suburban Ruxton. Mrs. Passano said that besides being a housewife she is connected with the child study association.

Ratoff Sued For Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 4—(AP)—Gregory Ratoff, motion picture director, has been sued for divorce by Actress Eugenie Leontovich, who charged he deserted her in 1944 after 21 years of married life. She also alleged extreme cruelty.

Fairgo Betters Wheeling

By C. V. BURNS

Karl D. Kolseth, Baltimorean, who was one of the top trainers during the 10-day race meeting at Fairgo which closed last Saturday, was so befuddled at the conclusion of the session that he wasn't so sure his name was Kolseth after all.

Three times during the meeting he was introduced over the P. A. system as "Mr. K. D. Holesack" and even the mayor of Johnstown, Pa., called him that.

Kolseth happens to be the trainer of Fair Bid, owned by Bill Keegan, our police and fire commissioner, and after hearing Koley introduced as "Holesack" on three different occasions Bill is also puzzled.

"Darned if I know so let's not discuss it."

Bill See, Westvaco ace, who won 18 and lost one, bagged his first 16 games before losing to Hyndman 4-3. He beat Frostburg, Midland and Lonaconing three times each, the Amvets, Queen City and Mt. Savage, twice each, and took Barton, Hyndman and Romney, once.

Norman Geatz, the No. 1 man of the Interstate League, won 13 and lost two for Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion. He enjoyed a 12-game winning streak before being stopped by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, 10-8. Geatz's daddy, incidentally, once played second base for the Eagles. That was back in the 1930s.

We asked C. William H. "Solly" Baer why he didn't answer when paged to present the Eagles' trophy on Eagles' Day at Fairgo last week and he replied:

"I was afraid of getting stuck in the mud trying to cross the track to the platform so I scratched myself from that event."

While looking over some old photographs the other day we came across one of the Fort Cumberland Post's junior team that won the Little World Series at Chicago in 1934. The picture was taken at Gastonia, N. C., where the late W. Earl Brooks' boys won the Eastern championship.

Here's a coincidence. Three of the boys sitting side by side in that photo taken 13 years ago the "Pete" Horworth, Norman Gerdeman and Kenneth "Shake" Clark. They are still playing together—with the Amvets of the Bi-State League.

West Virginia's Conservation Commission reports that 1,500 sportsmen already have requested permits to hunt antlerless deer in parts of Monongalia and Preston counties on a one-day open season December 8. Applications will be accepted until November 15.

In event more than 7,500 hunters apply a drawing will be held November 16 to limit the maximum allowed in the field to that number.

Here's one that's hard to believe. Hughie McQuillan, who pitched for John McGraw's New York Giants, and twirled in the World Series of 1922 and 1923 against the New York Yankees, died last week at the age of 50. Baseball was not represented at the funeral and members of the family said that not a single card or flower was received from anyone.

Jennings Randolph, former member of the House of Representatives for the Second West Virginia district for 12 years, is now assistant to the president of Capital Air Lines and is in demand as a public speaker. His favorite subject is "Aviation in World Peace."

Randolph, who was sports editor of the Clarksburg (W. Va.) Telegram in 1925 and 1926 and also director of athletic publicity at Davis and Elkins College before he went to Congress, reports that the University of Maryland, Pitt, Duquesne, Alabama, Tennessee, Duke, North Carolina, Georgetown and the Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Dons, professional teams, have chartered planes for a number of their big games away from home this fall.

On of the most remarkable comebacks in the racing game was made by Jockey Webb Snyder, who had mounts at Fairgo during the first week of the local meet. He suffered a compound fracture of the thigh bone in a bad spill last year. His leg was dangling at the time but he's made a fast comeback and now the injured member is as sound as a bell. Snyder's riding at Wheeling.

Wheeling, incidentally, was elated over its all-time high wagering mark set on Labor Day when the mutuel handle amounted to $327,637 for nine races.

Cumberland did better than that on its final day last Saturday when $326,812 was wagered on eight races. Nine races here would have boosted the handle to about $360,000.

If 11,000 persons were present on Labor Day, as the papers report, quite a number in that mob must have come to "see" the races.

Lew Worsham, Washington's National Open champion, has finished out of the money three straight times by a single stroke on the professionals' summer tour. Lew had a 284 at Portland, 287 at Reno and a 283 in the Western Open at Salt Lake City.

Keyser High Gridders Face Alumni At 5:15

The football season will open in nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania today when Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Keyser High School eleven does battle with the Alumni at Keyser and the Bedford High School Bisons play hosts to Boswell High School under the arcs at Bedford, Pa.

Today's game at Keyser is scheduled to get under way at 5:15 p. m. and marks the opening of a 10-game schedule for Keyser High School.

Other games on the Golden Tornado's schedule are with Masontown, Charles Town, Fort Hill, Thomas, Ridgeley, Allegany, Romney, Moorefield, Franklin and Petersburg. Five of the games are with Potomac Valley Conference foes.

The lid-lifter at Bedford will get under way at 8 o'clock daylight time tonight.

Bruce M. Fisher is starting his fourth season as coach at Bedford after having spent many years tutoring grid and cage teams at Ferndale High School, Johnstown, Pa.

Bedford's engagement with Boswell is the first of ten this season. All of the Bisons' games will be played at night and following the Boswell tilt the Buffaloes will meet Somerset, Richland Township, Westmont, Roaring Springs, Barnesboro, LaSalle, Ferndale, Shade Township and Cresson. Six of the games are scheduled at home. Conference foes on the Bisons' card are Somerset, Westmont, Roaring Springs, Barnesboro, Ferndale, Shade and Cresson.

Akron Pro Posts 66 For Two-Stroke Lead

DENVER, Sept. 4 (AP)—Cool, calm Herman Keiser, the big Akron, O., veteran with the straight iron game, mastered the nerve-wracking Cherry Hills course today with a five-under-par 66 to take the first round lead in the $15,000 Denver Open Golf Tournament.

Keiser's score, just one stroke off the record for the picturesque Denver course with its yawning traps and one of the toughest finishing stretches in the world, placed him two strokes ahead of the field in the 72-hole medal meet.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., after going out in 32, three under par, cracked on the back-breaking home nine. After taking eight on one par three hole, he wound up with a dismal 41 for an 18-hole total of 73, two over regulation figures.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION TEACHERS TO DISCUSS FALL SPORTS PROGRAM

Plans for the fall athletic program in Allegany county public high schools will be formulated at two meetings scheduled at the Allegany County Board of Education Building, Washington Street, next week.

On Monday at 7:45 p. m., men physical education instructors of the county senior high schools will meet while on Tuesday at 7:45 women physical education teachers will gather.

The meetings have been called by Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel.

Football, soccer and cross country are the fall sports recommended for boys and field ball and field hockey for girls.

High school girls have been out of the athletic picture in Allegany county since 1941. There was some talk of reviving field ball or introducing field hockey last year but that's all it amounted to.

Football is played by three schools — Allegany, Beall and Fort Hill. Beall, Barton, Central, Bruce and Flintstone were represented by soccer teams in the county league last fall. Cross country meets never have been staged here in the past.

Five Of Mack's Pitchers Hurled No-Hit Contests

Bender, Bush, Fowler Feats Are Recalled

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP) — Connie Mack, who has seen quite a few no hitters in his 63 years as manager and player, never saw a better one than rookie Bill McCahan hurled for the Philadelphia Athletics against the Washington Senators.

Connie Mack

"And it was Bill's pitching all the way," said the grand old man of baseball today. "I never called a single pitch for him. In fact I didn't realize he had a no hitter until the ninth."

But Connie was unusually active on the bench. Every time Bill ran out his hitless innings, Mack popped up and down from the bench and when it was over he threw an arm around the former Duke University hurler and hugged him in congratulation.

"There was not a word said on the bench," said Connie. "The boys apparently were afraid they would jinx Bill.

"But it was a shame that Fain had to muss up that easy roller in the second, letting that one man get on base. That other fellow (Pete Suder) could have fielded the ball and Fain could have remained on first to take the throw."

Connie couldn't recall how many no hitters he has seen in almost a lifetime filled with baseball. But he recalled Joe Bush and Chief Bender, and "oh yes, there was that guy Fowler. He hurled a pretty good game for me."

Dick Fowler pitched his no hitter against the St. Louis Browns on Sept. 9, 1945. Bush turned the trick against Cleveland Aug. 26, 1916, and Bender set the Indians down without a blow May 12, 1910.

There also was a fourth during Mack's regime as manager of the Athletics. It was hurled by Weldon Henley July 22, 1905, with St. Louis the victims.

PERUVIAN SWIMS ENGLISH CHANNEL

DOVER, England, Sept. 5 (Friday) (AP)—Daniel Carpio, powerful Peruvian distance swimmer, hit the English coast one mile west of Dover early today to become the first person to swim the treacherous English Channel since Sweden's Sally Bauer on Aug. 28, 1939.

Carpio made the arduous crossing in 14 hours and 46 minutes.

He started from Cap Griz Nez, France, only about 19 miles away, but waves and currents forced him to swim for 42 miles.

Ironically, Miss Bauer made her crossing of the channel only a week before England entered World War II which made the problem of crossing the channel a matter of concern to all the English people.

Bill Johnson's Muff Paves Way To Yanks' Loss

Bobble Of Pop Fly Helps Nats Win 5-4

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Third Baseman Bill Johnson's seventh inning bobble of a pop fly cost the New York Yankees a 5-4 defeat by the Washington Senators here tonight after the Yankees had produced a 4-run rally off Walter Masterson to tie the score in the seventh inning.

Joe Page, who replaced rookie Vic Raschi in the seventh, was dealt his seventh defeat after Johnson fumbled Eddie Yost's pop fly starting Washington"s seventh. Buddy Lewis sacrificed and Yost moved to third on a wild pitch after Tom McBride fanned. Mickey Vernon walked but Stan Spance's single to center scored Yost before Jerry Priddy popped to Johnson. BROWNS BEAT DETROIT

DETROIT, Sept. 4. (AP)—Jeff Heath's 25th homer of the season, a two-run smash into the upper right field stands after Johnny Berardino had walked in the first inning, was all young Fred Sanford of the St. Louis Browns needed today as he spaced five hits—all singles—to beat the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1.

Sanford, winning a pitching duel with Freddie Hutchinson, nursed a four-hit shutout into the ninth, when the Tigers scored their only run, a unearned one, on Vern Stephens' boot, a stolen base by Walter (Hoot) Evers and Hutchinson's second hit of the game, a single that caromed off Sanford's shins into left field. LOPAT WINS 14TH

CLEVELAND, Sept. 4 (AP) — A ninth-inning homer by Cleveland Pinchhitter Hank Ruszkowski forced the Chicago White Sox into an extra inning tonight before Ralph Hodgin sandwiched a double between two singles for the key blow in a two-run rally that beat the Tribe 4-2 in the tenth.

A crowd of 14,692 saw the Indians in their last night contest here. The victory went to Southpaw Ed Lopat as his 14th against 11 setbacks, while Bob Lemon was the loser. Score:

Man Who Won Judge's Sympathy Was Not Real "Rube" Marquard

Once Famous Pitcher Works At Race Tracks

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Richard (Rube) Marquard, one-time New York Giants' pitching star, today termed an imposter a man arrested here last night on a disorderly conduct charge who pretended to be the famous southpaw and won a judge's sympathy.

Reached by telephone at his Haddonfield, N. J., (115 Lafayette Ave.) home, Marquard said "it was a dreadful mistake."

Marquard said he now was working at the Garden State Track at Camden and had been employed for 17 years at race tracks in Maryland, Florida and New Jersey.

A man booked as Richard Marquard, one of 18 arrested in the Bowery yesterday and accused of loitering, replied "yes" when Magistrate Charles Murphy asked him: "Aren't you the famous 'Rube?'"

The man told Murphy he had no money and the magistrate handed him $5, wished him luck and dismissed the charge. Today Murphy said:

"Any body who could tell a story as good as that and convince the court is entitled to the $5. The experience was worth more than $5 to me."

Marquard, who set a record of winning 19 consecutive games in 1912 which still stands in modern baseball, said in the telephone conversation he did not have time to follow baseball closely, but that he was interested in Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati pitcher who recenty won 16 straight before his string was snapped.

"In a way," he said, "I was pitching for Blackwell. He is still in baseball and I am not. If he broke the record he would have a chance to capitalize on it."

September Upsets

It is quite probable that the Yankees and the Dodgers will collide in the next world series—but if you think it is a sure thing, check back over a long parade of September upsets.

In 1906, the Hitless Wonders, meaning the White Sox, won 19-straight games to win the pennant by 3 games.

The Giants had the pennant packed away through September in 1908—but the Cubs won the playoff game.

The Pirates blew two 7-game leads through September.

The Giants of 1934 were leading the Cardinals by 7 games at this date—but the Cardinals won the flag.

The Dodgers blew a 10-game lead in 1942, and a 7½-game lead last summer.

I could slip you several other upheavals that took place through September's heavy pressure—all shocks to the form chart.

It might also be remembered that, in the last fifteen years, the Cardinals have been busy people in promoting these upsets. They are now at home for most of their remaining games, with the Dodgers on the road. They are also at home with a veteran squad, intact and ready, supplied with the soundest pitching staff in the league.

Eddie Dyer and several of his veterans told me recently they could break down a 5-game lead on September 1. On that day, the Dodgers were 6½ games in front. If Mr. Dyer and his supporting cast were correct in their forecast, we should be facing a photo finish, especially with the Dodgers on the road for a long stretch, facing the aroused Cardinals in St. Louis, close to the fragrant odor of home cooking.

The Dodgers have the younger team. In one way, this should help at the finish of a long haul, looking back to the snows and fogs of February. But with something like $180,000 at stake for the winning team—approximately $6,000 for each player—experience under heavy fire can't be overlooked.

The Dodgers would be a kick-in against any other team but the Cardinals. Many of the Redbirds are on the way out, but that can be another incentive. They are still quite a ball club, and no one is ever quite sure what youth will do when the big showdown arrives and all the chips are blue.

This Dodger-Cardinal melee can still turn on a thrilling run to the wire.

The job of pace setting is not the softest assignment in the world, when it comes to the matter of psychology and nerve reaction. Not nerve—but nerves. Two different ingredients.

Team Play and Dodgers

Any reference to "team play" in sport has been usually rated on the corny or the hokum side.

The multitude at large and possibly a majority of expert observers have given greater credit to the individual star. The individual was the competitor who too often got the black headlines.

It has remained for the Dodgers to prove again something that needed no proving—that it is the team that counts, not the individual brilliance of any one or two men.

Here's just one example. A day or two ago, by a sad mistake, we happened to bump into a group of red-hot, wild-eyed, fanatical Dodger fans. It was something like being in a cage of grizzly bears, rattlesnakes, scorpions and wolverines.

These Dodger fans ask no quarter —and they give no quarter. They stand foursquare against all the storms that blow. This seemed to be a rather tidy spot to find out the ballplayers who had lifted the Dodgers well in front of the 3-to-5 Cardinals, world Champions from 1946. This was also a sad mistake. Within a period of five minutes your correspondent was in the middle of a young whirlpool.

Among this Dodger group, I found that the main vote went to Burt Shotton—the old-timer who never even put on a Dodger uniform—a country sort of fellow who ran his team in shirt sleeves and other rural garments, without bothering about umpires.

They all gave Shotton top credit for blending a somewhat weird mixture into a team. No Ruths—no Cobbs—no Mathewsons—no Alexanders—no Speakers—no Fellers—no Williams—no Mize—no Blackwell—just a bunch of ballplayers hustling to win every game they played.

The Dodgers were far behind the power of the Giants. They lacked the experience of the Cardinals. They had no consistent pitcher who could handle seven or nine innings. They had to meet the highly favored, experienced Cardinals—the 3-to-5 shots. They had to face the record-breaking slugging Giants. They had the Braves in the way, with Billy Southworth heading for the flag.

It was no easy hill to climb. The barriers were steep and packed with trouble. And there is still trouble on ahead with the Cardinals at home through most of the stretch.

INDIANS EXPELLED AFTER "SCALPING" AT LACROSSE GAME

MONTREAL, Sept. 4 (AP)—A modern revival of early Indian massacres, resulting in the attempted "scalping" of four Cornwall lacrosse players, today cost the Caughnawaga Indians the right to participate in the Quebec Lacrosse Association playoffs.

The Q.L.A. announced that the Indians were expelled from further playoff participation as an aftermath of the riot Monday at nearby Lachine when four Cornwall players and a referee suffered head injuries when the Caughnawaga team and about 200 spectators mobbed the Cornwall team.

Frostburg VFW Manager's .465 Topped League

Walters Is Second; See Headed Hurlers

Howard "Buck" Winfield, manager-shortstop of the Frostburg V.F.W. team, won the batting championship of the Bi-State Baseball League for the 1947 campaign by pounding out 59 hits in 127 trips to the plate for an average of .465 for 32 games.

Danny Drew of the Cumberland Amvets walloped the ball at a .427 clip to finish in third place while "Babe" Johnson, of the Lonaconing Republican Club, was fourth with .426 and Joe Langan, Frostburg, finished fifth with an average of .417.

Ten regulars hit .400 or better for the season.

Charley Cooke, Lonaconing; Harry Sallada, Harold Robertson and Bill See, Westvaco, and George Marble, of Mt. Savage, were the other players in the .400 hitting circle.

Bill See was the No. 1 pitcher of the league with 18 wins and one defeat. Westvaco's ace right hander won 16 in a row before losing his first decision of the season. Lou Henry of Frostburg was the runner-up among the pitchers who figured in ten or more games. He won ten and lost two.

Fairgo Betters Wheeling

By C. V. BURNS

Karl D. Kolseth, Baltimorean, who was one of the top trainers during the 10-day race meeting at Fairgo which closed last Saturday, was so befuddled at the conclusion of the session that he wasn't so sure his name was Kolseth after all.

Three times during the meeting he was introduced over the P. A. system as "Mr. K. D. Holesack" and even the mayor of Johnstown, Pa., called him that.

Kolseth happens to be the trainer of Fair Bid, owned by Bill Keegan, our police and fire commissioner, and after hearing Koley introduced as "Holesack" on three different occasions Bill is also puzzled.

"Darned if I know so let's not discuss it."

Bill See, Westvaco ace, who won 18 and lost one, bagged his first 16 games before losing to Hyndman 4-3. He beat Frostburg, Midland and Lonaconing three times each, the Amvets, Queen City and Mt. Savage, twice each, and took Barton, Hyndman and Romney, once.

Norman Geatz, the No. 1 man of the Interstate League, won 13 and lost two for Fort Cumberland Post No. 13, American Legion. He enjoyed a 12-game winning streak before being stopped by the Fraternal Order of Eagles, 10-8. Geatz's daddy, incidentally, once played second base for the Eagles. That was back in the 1930s.

We asked C. William H. "Solly" Baer why he didn't answer when paged to present the Eagles' trophy on Eagles' Day at Fairgo last week and he replied:

"I was afraid of getting stuck in the mud trying to cross the track to the platform so I scratched myself from that event."

While looking over some old photographs the other day we came across one of the Fort Cumberland Post's junior team that won the Little World Series at Chicago in 1934. The picture was taken at Gastonia, N. C., where the late W. Earl Brooks' boys won the Eastern championship.

Here's a coincidence. Three of the boys sitting side by side in that photo taken 13 years ago the "Pete" Horworth, Norman Gerdeman and Kenneth "Shake" Clark. They are still playing together—with the Amvets of the Bi-State League.

West Virginia's Conservation Commission reports that 1,500 sportsmen already have requested permits to hunt antlerless deer in parts of Monongalia and Preston counties on a one-day open season December 8. Applications will be accepted until November 15.

In event more than 7,500 hunters apply a drawing will be held November 16 to limit the maximum allowed in the field to that number.

Here's one that's hard to believe. Hughie McQuillan, who pitched for John McGraw's New York Giants, and twirled in the World Series of 1922 and 1923 against the New York Yankees, died last week at the age of 50. Baseball was not represented at the funeral and members of the family said that not a single card or flower was received from anyone.

Jennings Randolph, former member of the House of Representatives for the Second West Virginia district for 12 years, is now assistant to the president of Capital Air Lines and is in demand as a public speaker. His favorite subject is "Aviation in World Peace."

Randolph, who was sports editor of the Clarksburg (W. Va.) Telegram in 1925 and 1926 and also director of athletic publicity at Davis and Elkins College before he went to Congress, reports that the University of Maryland, Pitt, Duquesne, Alabama, Tennessee, Duke, North Carolina, Georgetown and the Baltimore Colts and Los Angeles Dons, professional teams, have chartered planes for a number of their big games away from home this fall.

On of the most remarkable comebacks in the racing game was made by Jockey Webb Snyder, who had mounts at Fairgo during the first week of the local meet. He suffered a compound fracture of the thigh bone in a bad spill last year. His leg was dangling at the time but he's made a fast comeback and now the injured member is as sound as a bell. Snyder's riding at Wheeling.

Wheeling, incidentally, was elated over its all-time high wagering mark set on Labor Day when the mutuel handle amounted to $327,637 for nine races.

Cumberland did better than that on its final day last Saturday when $326,812 was wagered on eight races. Nine races here would have boosted the handle to about $360,000.

If 11,000 persons were present on Labor Day, as the papers report, quite a number in that mob must have come to "see" the races.

Lew Worsham, Washington's National Open champion, has finished out of the money three straight times by a single stroke on the professionals' summer tour. Lew had a 284 at Portland, 287 at Reno and a 283 in the Western Open at Salt Lake City.

He's not losing any money, however, as he rates $250 appearance money each event as the National Open titlist.

The football season will open in nearby West Virginia and Pennsylvania today when Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Keyser High School eleven does battle with the Alumni at Keyser and the Bedford High School Bisons play hosts to Boswell High School under the arcs at Bedford, Pa.

Today's game at Keyser is scheduled to get under way at 5:15 p. m. and marks the opening of a 10-game schedule for Keyser High School.

Other games on the Golden Tornado's schedule are with Masontown, Charles Town, Fort Hill, Thomas, Ridgeley, Allegany, Romney, Moorefield, Franklin and Petersburg. Five of the games are with Potomac Valley Conference foes.

The lid-lifter at Bedford will get under way at 8 o'clock daylight time tonight.

Bruce M. Fisher is starting his fourth season as coach at Bedford after having spent many years tutoring grid and cage teams at Ferndale High School, Johnstown, Pa.

Bedford's engagement with Boswell is the first of ten this season. All of the Bisons' games will be played at night and following the Boswell tilt the Buffaloes will meet Somerset, Richland Township, Westmont, Roaring Springs, Barnesboro, LaSalle, Ferndale, Shade Township and Cresson. Six of the games are scheduled at home. Conference foes on the Bisons' card are Somerset, Westmont, Roaring Springs, Barnesboro, Ferndale, Shade and Cresson.

Keiser Sets Pace In Denver Tourney

Akron Pro Posts 66 For Two-Stroke Lead

DENVER, Sept. 4 (AP)—Cool, calm Herman Keiser, the big Akron, O., veteran with the straight iron game, mastered the nerve-wracking Cherry Hills course today with a five-under-par 66 to take the first round lead in the $15,000 Denver Open Golf Tournament.

Keiser's score, just one stroke off the record for the picturesque Denver course with its yawning traps and one of the toughest finishing stretches in the world, placed him two strokes ahead of the field in the 72-hole medal meet.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., after going out in 32, three under par, cracked on the back-breaking home nine. After taking eight on one par three hole, he wound up with a dismal 41 for an 18-hole total of 73, two over regulation figures.

Another game between the teams is necessary to determine which of the clubs will battle it out with "A" Spinners and Service for the league title. Scores:

PHYSICAL EDUCATION TEACHERS TO DISCUSS FALL SPORTS PROGRAM

Plans for the fall athletic program in Allegany county public high schools will be formulated at two meetings scheduled at the Allegany County Board of Education Building, Washington Street, next week.

On Monday at 7:45 p. m., men physical education instructors of the county senior high schools will meet while on Tuesday at 7:45 women physical education teachers will gather.

The meetings have been called by Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of pupil personnel.

Football, soccer and cross country are the fall sports recommended for boys and field ball and field hockey for girls.

High school girls have been out of the athletic picture in Allegany county since 1941. There was some talk of reviving field ball or introducing field hockey last year but that's all it amounted to.

Football is played by three schools — Allegany, Beall and Fort Hill. Beall, Barton, Central, Bruce and Flintstone were represented by soccer teams in the county league last fall. Cross country meets never have been staged here in the past.

Five Of Mack's Pitchers Hurled No-Hit Contests

Bender, Bush, Fowler Feats Are Recalled

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 4 (AP) — Connie Mack, who has seen quite a few no hitters in his 63 years as manager and player, never saw a better one than rookie Bill McCahan hurled for the Philadelphia Athletics against the Washington Senators.

Connie Mack

"And it was Bill's pitching all the way," said the grand old man of baseball today. "I never called a single pitch for him. In fact I didn't realize he had a no hitter until the ninth."

But Connie was unusually active on the bench. Every time Bill ran out his hitless innings, Mack popped up and down from the bench and when it was over he threw an arm around the former Duke University hurler and hugged him in congratulation.

"There was not a word said on the bench," said Connie. "The boys apparently were afraid they would jinx Bill.

"But it was a shame that Fain had to muss up that easy roller in the second, letting that one man get on base. That other fellow (Pete Suder) could have fielded the ball and Fain could have remained on first to take the throw."

Connie couldn't recall how many no hitters he has seen in almost a lifetime filled with baseball. But he recalled Joe Bush and Chief Bender, and "oh yes, there was that guy Fowler. He hurled a pretty good game for me."

Dick Fowler pitched his no hitter against the St. Louis Browns on Sept. 9, 1945. Bush turned the trick against Cleveland Aug. 26, 1916, and Bender set the Indians down without a blow May 12, 1910.

There also was a fourth during Mack's regime as manager of the Athletics. It was hurled by Weldon Henley July 22, 1905, with St. Louis the victims.

PERUVIAN SWIMS ENGLISH CHANNEL

DOVER, England, Sept. 5 (Friday) (AP)—Daniel Carpio, powerful Peruvian distance swimmer, hit the English coast one mile west of Dover early today to become the first person to swim the treacherous English Channel since Sweden's Sally Bauer on Aug. 28, 1939.

Carpio made the arduous crossing in 14 hours and 46 minutes.

He started from Cap Griz Nez, France, only about 19 miles away, but waves and currents forced him to swim for 42 miles.

Ironically, Miss Bauer made her crossing of the channel only a week before England entered World War II which made the problem of crossing the channel a matter of concern to all the English people.

Bill Johnson's Muff Paves Way To Yanks' Loss

Bobble Of Pop Fly Helps Nats Win 5-4

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP)—Third Baseman Bill Johnson's seventh inning bobble of a pop fly cost the New York Yankees a 5-4 defeat by the Washington Senators here tonight after the Yankees had produced a 4-run rally off Walter Masterson to tie the score in the seventh inning.

Joe Page, who replaced rookie Vic Raschi in the seventh, was dealt his seventh defeat after Johnson fumbled Eddie Yost's pop fly starting Washington's seventh. Buddy Lewis sacrificed and Yost moved to third on a wild pitch after Tom McBride fanned. Mickey Vernon walked but Stan Spance's single to center scored Yost before Jerry Priddy popped to Johnson. BROWNS BEAT DETROIT

DETROIT, Sept. 4. (AP)—Jeff Heath's 25th homer of the season, a two-run smash into the upper right field stands after Johnny Berardino had walked in the first inning, was all young Fred Sanford of the St. Louis Browns needed today as he spaced five hits—all singles—to beat the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1.

Once Famous Pitcher Works At Race Tracks

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—Richard (Rube) Marquard, one-time New York Giants' pitching star, today termed an imposter a man arrested here last night on a disorderly conduct charge who pretended to be the famous southpaw and won a judge's sympathy.

Reached by telephone at his Haddonfield, N. J., (115 Lafayette Ave.) home, Marquard said "it was a dreadful mistake."

Marquard said he now was working at the Garden State Track at Camden and had been employed for 17 years at race tracks in Maryland, Florida and New Jersey.

A man booked as Richard Marquard, one of 18 arrested in the Bowery yesterday and accused of loitering, replied "yes" when Magistrate Charles Murphy asked him: "Aren't you the famous 'Rube?'"

The man told Murphy he had no money and the magistrate handed him $5, wished him luck and dismissed the charge. Today Murphy said:

"Any body who could tell a story as good as that and convince the court is entitled to the $5. The experience was worth more than $5 to me."

Marquard, who set a record of winning 19 consecutive games in 1912 which still stands in modern baseball, said in the telephone conversation he did not have time to follow baseball closely, but that he was interested in Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati pitcher who recenty won 16 straight before his string was snapped.

"In a way," he said, "I was pitching for Blackwell. He is still in baseball and I am not. If he broke the record he would have a chance to capitalize on it."

September Upsets

It is quite probable that the Yankees and the Dodgers will collide in the next world series—but if you think it is a sure thing, check back over a long parade of September upsets.

In 1906, the Hitless Wonders, meaning the White Sox, won 19-straight games to win the pennant by 3 games.

The Giants had the pennant packed away through September in 1908—but the Cubs won the playoff game.

There were the Braves in 1914.

The Pirates blew two 7-game leads through September.

The Giants of 1934 were leading the Cardinals by 7 games at this date—but the Cardinals won the flag.

The Dodgers blew a 10-game lead in 1942, and a 7½-game lead last summer.

I could slip you several other upheavals that took place through September's heavy pressure—all shocks to the form chart.

It might also be remembered that, in the last fifteen years, the Cardinals have been busy people in promoting these upsets. They are now at home for most of their remaining games, with the Dodgers on the road. They are also at home with a veteran squad, intact and ready, supplied with the soundest pitching staff in the league.

Eddie Dyer and several of his veterans told me recently they could break down a 5-game lead on September 1. On that day, the Dodgers were 6½ games in front. If Mr. Dyer and his supporting cast were correct in their forecast, we should be facing a photo finish, especially with the Dodgers on the road for a long stretch, facing the aroused Cardinals in St. Louis, close to the fragrant odor of home cooking.

The Dodgers have the younger team. In one way, this should help at the finish of a long haul, looking back to the snows and fogs of February. But with something like $180,000 at stake for the winning team—approximately $6,000 for each player—experience under heavy fire can't be overlooked.

The Dodgers would be a kick-in against any other team but the Cardinals. Many of the Redbirds are on the way out, but that can be another incentive. They are still quite a ball club, and no one is ever quite sure what youth will do when the big showdown arrives and all the chips are blue.

This Dodger-Cardinal melee can still turn on a thrilling run to the wire.

The job of pace setting is not the softest assignment in the world, when it comes to the matter of psychology and nerve reaction. Not nerve—but nerves. Two different ingredients.

Team Play and Dodgers

Any reference to "team play" in sport has been usually rated on the corny or the hokum side.

The multitude at large and possibly a majority of expert observers have given greater credit to the individual star. The individual was the competitor who too often got the black headlines.

It has remained for the Dodgers to prove again something that needed no proving—that it is the team that counts, not the individual brilliance of any one or two men.

Here's just one example. A day or two ago, by a sad mistake, we happened to bump into a group of red-hot, wild-eyed, fanatical Dodger fans. It was something like being in a cage of grizzly bears, rattlesnakes, scorpions and wolverines.

These Dodger fans ask no quarter —and they give no quarter. They stand foursquare against all the storms that blow. This seemed to be a rather tidy spot to find out the ballplayers who had lifted the Dodgers well in front of the 3-to-5 Cardinals, world Champions from 1946. This was also a sad mistake. Within a period of five minutes your correspondent was in the middle of a young whirlpool.

Among this Dodger group, I found that the main vote went to Burt Shotton—the old-timer who never even put on a Dodger uniform—a country sort of fellow who ran his team in shirt sleeves and other rural garments, without bothering about umpires.

They all gave Shotton top credit for blending a somewhat weird mixture into a team. No Ruths—no Cobbs — no Mathewsons—no Alexanders—no Speakers—no Fellers—no Williams—no Mize—no Blackwell—just a bunch of ballplayers hustling to win every game they played.

The Dodgers were far behind the power of the Giants. They lacked the experience of the Cardinals. They had no consistent pitcher who could handle seven or nine innings. They had to meet the highly favored, experienced Cardinals—the 3-to-5 shots. They had to face the record-breaking slugging Giants. They had the Braves in the way, with Billy Southworth heading for the flag.

It was no easy hill to climb. The barriers were steep and packed with trouble. And there is still trouble on ahead with the Cardinals at home through most of the stretch.

INDIANS EXPELLED AFTER "SCALPING" AT LACROSSE GAME

MONTREAL, Sept. 4 (AP)—A modern revival of early Indian massacres, resulting in the attempted "scalping" of four Cornwall lacrosse players, today cost the Caughnawaga Indians the right to participate in the Quebec Lacrosse Association playoffs.

The Q.L.A. announced that the Indians were expelled from further playoff participation as an aftermath of the riot Monday at nearby Lachine when four Cornwall players and a referee suffered head injuries when the Caughnawaga team and about 200 spectators mobbed the Cornwall team.

LODI, N. J., Sept. 4 (AP)—A member of the New York Football Giants was badly cut about the face and another Giants star was beaten in a free-for-all fight with four carnival workers early today in front of a highway restaurant.

The injured linesman was George Tobin, substitute guard, who was taken to Holy Name Hospital, Teaneck, where a large number of stitches was necessary. The other player was James White, former Notre Dame star tackle.

Frostburg VFW Manager's .465 Topped League

Walters Is Second; See Headed Hurlers

Howard "Buck" Winfield, manager-shortstop of the Frostburg V.F.W. team, won the batting championship of the Bi-State Baseball League for the 1947 campaign by pounding out 59 hits in 127 trips to the plate for an average of .468 for 32 games.

Danny Drew of the Cumberland Amvets walloped the ball at a .427 clip to finish in third place while "Babe" Johnson, of the Lonaconing Republican Club, was fourth with .426 and Joe Langan, Frostburg, finished fifth with an average of .417.

Ten regulars hit .400 or better for the season.

Charley Cooke, Lonaconing; Harry Sallada, Harold Robertson and Bill See, Westvaco, and George Marble, of Mt. Savage, were the other players in the .400 hitting circle.

Langan, Frostburg catcher, who finished the season by hitting safely in 30 consecutive games, led in total hits with 60 to his credit.

Bill See was the No. 1 pitcher of the league with 18 wins and one defeat. Westvaco's ace right hander won 16 in a row before losing his first decision of the season. Lou Henry of Frostburg was the runner-up among the pitchers who figured in ten or more games. He won ten and lost two.

River Pollution Abatement Set For Discussion

A co-operative program for pollution abatement in the upper Potomac will be considered today and tomorrow when the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin meets at Staunton, Va.

Soil erosion and its general relation to pollution problems of the Potomac River will also be considered, and an advisory committee is expected to be named.

Discussing the problem of erosion in the Potomac basin will be M. S. Anderson, senior chemist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering. After his address the methods of combating erosion will be explained by Lyman Carrier, conservationist with the Virginia Soil Conservation Service.

Report To Be Heard

Commission representatives also are expected to continue discussions of ways to assure completion of the Savage River dam. This dam, originally designed as a means of controlling flood waters that threaten Cumberland, would lessen pollution in the upper river by providing an even flow of water during the dry, summer months.

The commission also will hear a report of a research program on the upper Potomac being conducted by Johns Hopkins University. The program is designed to test the efficiency of aeration basins in abating pollution.

Other business will include the election of officers. The commission now is headed by Maryland State Senator L. Harold Sothoron of Prince Georges County. It is expected that Raymond V. Long, chairman of the Virginia Planning Board and commission vice chairman, will succeed Senator Sothoron.

Preparing Pollution Guide

It was revealed today that a guide to Maryland waters to provide a practical point of view in enforcing the state's new clean waters law is being prepared by the Commission on Water Pollution Control.

The first class in the guide includes water which may be used for drinking without any treatment except chlorination; the second is that fit for bathing, fish life and recreation; the third, usable for domestic water supply after complete treatment and for industrial processes, and the fourth, simply in generally sanitary condition and not a nuisance.

The guide is expected to be completed within a year.

Trio's Trial Pends Woman's Recovery

Hearing for a trio of Vindex men, arrested Tuesday at Westernport for Garrett County authorities on a warrant charging them with disorderly conduct, will not be held until a woman they are accused of injuring is released from Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., Deputy Sheriff Paul W. Fisher said last night.

The trio, booked as Monzel and Sheridan Sims, brothers, and Kenneth Boyce, were taken into custody at the Western Maryland Railway station at Westernport, after a warrant was obtained by Lee McRobie, who said the men got into a fight with a woman at his tavern on the Vindex Road Saturday night.

Boys of six, according to statistics, know more words than little girls of the same age. However, when they grow up and get married it is she who makes most use of them.

Firemen's Day Is Attended By 5,000 At Meyersdale Fair

By W. A. SHOEMAKER

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Sept. 5 — Firemen's Day at the Somerset County Fair Wednesday drew an attendance of 5,000 visitors, with fire companies, bands, auxiliaries and drum and bugle corps from West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania competing for the $500 in cash prizes.

For nearly four hours the organizations marched around the half-mile race track in front of the judges' stand. The judges were William H. Baldwin, Prof. Nat LaCavera, James Hartle, Albert C. Saylor, Fred Hare, Jr., Howard Boose and Johnstown Fire Chief J. A. Morin and two assistants.

The Somerset Volunteer Fire Company won the first award for the best appearing with 20 or more men in line of parade. The Salisbury Band took the first prize for the best senior band; Rockwood High School took first place for the best appearing high school or junior band; the Berlin Fife and Drum Corps copped the first place in its class. Farrady Post, American Legion, Frostburg, took first place in the drum and bugle corps, and the Barton Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary took first place for the best appearing ladies' auxiliary.

Other prizes were as follows: Ashby, W. Va., best appearing fire company with 20 or more men in line of parade; Roaring Springs, company coming longest distance; Lonaconing, best firemen's drill team; Frostburg, second best senior band; Henry Hart Post, V.F.W., Cumberland, second best drum and bugle corps; Scalp Level, best appearing truck over 500 gallons; Westernport, Md., best appearing squad car; Krings, best appearing truck under 500 gallons; Hyndman, best appearing high school or junior band; Somerset, third best appearing high school or junior band.

The livestock judges completed the awarding of the ribbons to the various entries at the fair yesterday. Emerson Suder took many of the firsts of the premiums with his cattle, including seven first places, among which were two grand champions. The entries by Charles Merrill's Ponfeigh Farms also came off with seven winners, of which two were grand champions.

Today is Farmers' Day at the Fair, usually one of the biggest days. The occasion will be highlighted by a huge parade, in which approximately $400 will be awarded in prizes. The heavyweight horse-pulling contest, in which there are entries from three states, will be one of the attractions following the farmers' parade.

In the bubble blowing contests, which started Tuesday, will be continued Saturday afternoon, 60 boys and 60 girls have been selected by the judges to participate in the finals, for which the winners will be awarded footballs, roller skates and other prizes.

National Tennis Tourney To Open At Forrest Hills

36 Men's Matches Scheduled Today

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Sept. 4—(AP)—The national tennis championships, which will supply a proper setting for Jack Kramer's farewell to the amateur game, open on the emerald courts at Forest Hills tomorrow with 36 first round matches in the men's division and 16 in the women's.

Thereafter for 10 days the best ball-wallopers in the world will scar the turf until, in the end, Kramer has proved once again he is in a class by himself among the men, and, most likely, Margaret Osborne of San Francisco has cleared the lists of all feminine competition.

Kramer is expected to retain his title without the loss of a set. The way the big Californian humbled Jack Bromwich and Dinny Pails of Australia in the Davis cup matches last weekend has just about convinced a lot of experts, real and fancied, that he is the best tennis player the world has seen.

While Miss Osborne, the Wimbledon champion, will be favored to succeed Pauline Betz, now a professional, to the women's title, the chances are she will encounter some very tough sledding along the way. Both Louise Brough and Doris Hart of this country are capable of extending her to the limit, and there is a formidable foreign threat in Mrs. Nancy Wynne Bolton, the Australian women's champion.

Neither Kramer nor Miss Osborne will be called off the clubhouse porch for tomorrow's initial skirmishing. Kramer drew a bye in the first round, while Miss Osborne is in the lower half of the women's draw, which does not go into action until Saturday.

In the opening men's feature match on the stadium court tomorrow, Victor Seixas of Philadelphia meets Jack Tuero of New Orleans. They are two of the best of the country's younger players. The second stadium feature pits Billy Talbert of New York, the former Davis cupper, against Herbert Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., former national junior champion.

The Hyndman V.F.W., Bedford Road, Wellersburg and Corriganville will participate in the league's playoff series. Score:

Frostburg City Parking Lot Is Opened For Use

Is Situated On Mechanic Street

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Sept. 5—The city parking lot, situated on Mechanic Street between Maple and Broadway, recently secured by the mayor and city commissioners, is now available for the use of car owners to park there without cost. There is room on the lot, according to City Commissioner Arthur Thomas, for 35 cars, and he reported to the city council Monday evening that the surface of Mechanic Street, between Maple and Broadway, is also being improved for the convenience of persons wishing to park their cars.

Mayor Skidmore stated today that several lights have been placed at the parking lot and are connected with the city street lighting, coming on at the same time as the lights on Main street. Cars may enter the lot from two approaches, Broadway on the west and Maple Street on the east.

The city, according to the mayor, is planning to place black top on the section of Taylor Street, between the Palace Theatre and the Frostburg Department Store, for the convenience of car owners walking to or from the business section.

The idea, according to Commissioner Thomas, of the city offering free parking on the lot is to induce motorists now parking on Main Street to use the lot so as to cut down congestion in the business section.

75-YEAR-OLD CHURCH—Members of the First Methodist Church in Lonaconing will hold services next week celebrating the 75th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the church building shown above. Six Methodist ministers from the tri-state area will conduct the ceremonies, with the final service scheduled for Sunday evening, September 14. The building of the church was started September 8, 1872, when the cornerstone was laid on a piece of ground donated to the parish by Dr. G. E. Porter and Mrs. N. J. Clark.

Methodist Church In Lonaconing Will Celebrate 75th Anniversary

Services To Be Held September 7 To 14

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Sept. 5—The week of September 7 to 14 will mark the 75th anniversary of First Methodist Church in Lonaconing. Rev. William F. Wright will be the speaker at the Sunday morning service and Rev. Lewis F. Ransom will speak at the evening service. Rev. W. D. Briscoe, Rev. Melvin E. Lederer, Rev. M. A. Keesecker and Rev. James A. Richards will also take part in the services.

"Community Night" will be observed Monday night for the Lonaconing Ministerium attendance. Services will be held each evening of the week with the exception of Saturday, and the final service of the anniversary will be on Sunday evening, September 14.

As early as 1837 the George's Creek Coal and Iron Company donated a part of its land for the erection of a meeting house. This was the first Methodist church in Lonaconing and was erected where the residence of Thomas Grindell now stands. It is thought that services began late in 1838 with Josiah Forrest and J. S. Morris as ministers. These men were traveling ministers of the Frostburg circuit.

Services Held In Old Castle

From 1850 to 1854 services were held in the "Old Castle" on Douglas Avenue, a meeting place for all denominations. John Nash in 1853 was the first Methodist Sunday school superintendent and class leader. When in 1854 the "Old Castle" became a dwelling house, church and Sunday school services were transferred to the Odd Fellows' Hall, which stood on the site of the present Presbyterian parsonage.

From 1863 to 1866, "Jackson Log Row" was the site of the preaching. Up until this time all Sunday schools were probably undenominational.

In 1866 a committee consisting of Maj. Alexander Shaw, G. P. Hutson, D. Shaffer, David Laird and William Ternent was appointed to erect the second Methodist church. The church was dedicated the last Sunday in August 1866, and Rev. George Cooper of Frostburg preached the sermon. Daniel Shaffer was the pastor at this time. The cost of the structure was $1,877.50 and was paid on the day of dedication.

This church was erected on Main Street and was used by the Methodists until 1873. This property today houses the dental office of Dr. John Hohing.

In the spring of 1869 the Lonaconing and Barton congregations were united under the title of the Lonaconing Circuit with Rev. William C. Mullen as pastor.

New Building Started

In 1870, when Rev. Mullen left this section to go to Wesleyan House of Misisons in Baltimore, Dr. A. M. Courtenay was appointed to supply the church. Under his pastorate the church and parsonage were sold for $3,200 and new buildings were started where the present church now stands.

The cornerstone of the new church was laid September 8, 1872, on a piece of land donated by Dr. G. E. Porter and Mrs. N. J. Clark. The building committee consisted of Dr. A. M. Courtenay, Dr. G. E. Porter, A. Jackson Clark, Isaac Bradburn, C. C. Shockey, Robert Anderson, Thomas Ingleby and John H. Perry.

The parsonage was completed January 1, 1873, and occupied by Rev. Courtenay. The church, at a cost of $15,000, was completed later in 1873 during Rev. Ezekial Richardson's pastorate. This edifice was dedicated by Rev. William H. Chapman, Rev. A. M. Courtenay and Ezekial Richardson.

Tower Finished In 1921

In 1921 while Rev. U. S. Wright was minister the tower of the church was completed. He was responsible for publishing a monthly church paper known as the "Church Messenger." It was under his leadership in 1922 that the church celebrated its Golden Jubilee, marking 50 years from the laying of the cornerstone in 1872. At that time Dr. Frank Porter, who as a boy attended the dedication of the building and who was later minister of the church, spoke at the services.

"Truth Out-marches Time" was the motto of the centennial celebration, the 100th birthday of Methodism in Lonaconing, sponsored by Rev. Lewis Ransom in 1939.

Added to the church at this time were 18 candelabra—one for each window. Each candelabra consisted of five electric candles. Four cathedral lights also were added.

Communion Tables Presented

It was during this period that Mrs. Mollie Richmond presented to the church a communion table in memory of her mother and father.

Under the present minister, Rev. John E. Stacks, who came here in 1943, the beginners' department has been redecorated; new drapes added to the junior department; the kitchen remodeled; the Women's Society of Christian Service secured a new stove, a double sink and a new floor.

On November 7, 1943, the Honor Roll was dedicated for the many young men and women of the church serving in the armed forces. Many of these are now back working in the church.

Two flags, an American flag, given by the Daughters of America, and a Christian flag, given by the Primary department, were presented to the church March 12, 1944.

Memorials Presented

The following memorials were added during this period: baptismal font, dedicated October 23, 1943, given by Alvin Ternent in honor of his mother and in memory of his father; cross and candleholders, dedicated March 31, 1946, given by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Smith in memory of their daughter, Mary Esther Smith Fields; the lighted cross on tower, dedicated May 26, 1946, given by members of the congregation in memory of the boys who paid the supreme sacrifice in World War II; music tower system, dedicated May 29, 1947, given by Mrs. Hattie Dilfer in memory of her mother, Martha Raley. This was a musical contribution not only to the church but to the community as well.

Ministers and their years of pastorate were: Josiah Forest and J. S. Morris, 1838-1839; Francis M. Mills, 1840; Tobias Riley, 1842; George W. River Pollution Abatement Set For Discussion

A co-operative program for pollution abatement in the upper Potomac will be considered today and tomorrow when the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin meets at Staunton, Va.

Soil erosion and its general relation to pollution problems of the Potomac River will also be considered, and an advisory committee is expected to be named.

Discussing the problem of erosion in the Potomac basin will be M. S. Anderson, senior chemist of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils and Agricultural Engineering. After his address the methods of combating erosion will be explained by Lyman Carrier, conservationist with the Virginia Soil Conservation Service.

Report To Be Heard

Commission representatives also are expected to continue discussions of ways to assure completion of the Savage River dam. This dam, originally designed as a means of controlling flood waters that threaten Cumberland, would lessen pollution in the upper river by providing an even flow of water during the dry, summer months.

The commission also will hear a report of a research program on the upper Potomac being conducted by Johns Hopkins University. The program is designed to test the efficiency of aeration basins in abating pollution.

Other business will include the election of officers. The commission now is headed by Maryland State Senator L. Harold Sothoron of Prince Georges County. It is expected that Raymond V. Long, chairman of the Virginia Planning Board and commission vice chairman, will succeed Senator Sothoron.

Preparing Pollution Guide

It was revealed today that a guide to Maryland waters to provide a practical point of view in enforcing the state's new clean waters law is being prepared by the Commission on Water Pollution Control.

The first class in the guide includes water which may be used for drinking without any treatment except chlorination; the second is that fit for bathing, fish life and recreation; the third, usable for domestic water supply after complete treatment and for industrial processes, and the fourth, simply in generally sanitary condition and not a nuisance.

Trio's Trial Pends Woman's Recovery

Hearing for a trio of Vindex men, arrested Tuesday at Westernport for Garrett County authorities on a warrant charging them with disorderly conduct, will not be held until a woman they are accused of injuring is released from Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W. Va., Deputy Sheriff Paul W. Fisher said last night.

The trio, booked as Monzel and Sheridan Sims, brothers, and Kenneth Boyce, were taken into custody at the Western Maryland Railway station at Westernport, after a warrant was obtained by Lee McRobie, who said the men got into a fight with a woman at his tavern on the Vindex Road Saturday night.

Boys of six, according to statistics, know more words than little girls of the same age. However, when they grow up and get married it is she who makes most use of them.

Seven Instructors Added To Faculty Of Potomac State

School Will Open Sunday At Keyser

By MRS. JOSEPH H. TAYLOR

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 5—Seven new teachers have been added to the faculty list at Potomac State School for the fall term which opens Sunday, it was announced today by President E. E. Church.

Norman E. Rodgers, Brooklyn, Ark., replaces Dr. C. Waldron Bolen in the Department of History, and Mrs. Gwendolyn M. Gilham, of Parkersburg, replaces Miss Virginia Byrer as instructor in French and English.

Other teachers beginning their service are: Clayton L. Straw, Akron, Ohio, Physics; Milton Schloss, Brooklyn, N. Y., Geology and Geography; Mrs. Marie Reynolds, Brooklyn, Ark., English; John O. Maiden, Chicago, Physchology; and Miss Sarah J. Malone, Clarksburg, assistant librarian.

All faculty members of last year, with the exception of Dr. Bolen, Miss Byrer and Gerald McGeechie, are returning to their places on the college staff.

The college will open Sunday with a general convocation for freshman at 3 p. m., at which freshman attendance is required. English placement, psychological and physical examinations will begin at 8 a. m. Monday morning.

General registration will open Tuesday, September 9, at 1 p. m. and continue through Thursday. The first class sessions will be Friday at 8 a. m.

Numerous changes have been made for the accomodation of students, who are expected to set a new enrollment mark wtih a minimum of 650 students expected. Property on Mineral Street facing the campus has been leased for use by the Music Department, and office space in the Administration building has been remodeled and enlarged.

An annex to house reserve shelves of the library has been provided by remodeling a classroom directly across from the library. The Recreation Building constructed during the summer will be in use for the first time this semester, laboratories have been re-designed and driveways are being repaved.

Enrollment is temporarily closed, Dean K. S. McKee said yesterday, but if registration discloses that more students can be accommodated, applicants on the waiting list will be considered and promptly notified.

Four Injured In Crash

Harry West, 48, Keyser, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital yesterday following an accident which occurred on Route 28, between Fort Ashby and Romney, last night. Three other Keyser men were also injured in the accident when the car in which they were riding turned over.

They were returning from a Moose outing at the Hood cottage on the South Branch in an automobile said to be owned and driven by Louis Schell, Keyser, when it is reported they were blinded by the lights of an oncoming car, and Schell lost control of the machine.

The injured men, in addition to West, are A. V. Gallion, who was cut and bruised, B. J. Faller, who was cut about the head, and Louis Schell, who was bruised.

X-rays were taken of Mr. West at the hospital last night to determine the extent of his injuries. He is believed to have a possible fractured left hip, as well as bruises and possible internal injuries. West is employed by the Kaplon's Men's Shop in Keyser.

Club Steward Fined

The Piedmont American Legion club case was disposed of Wednesday at a hearing when Sylvia Picolo, steward of the club, entered a guilty plea to the operation of eight slot machines. Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle fined the club $300.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze

The Keyser Vigilant Reel and Hose Company was called out at noon today when sparks from a passing engine caused a blaze which partially burned the roof of an abandoned car of the J. A. Glaze Amusement Company on the siding in the Baltimore and Ohio yards here. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Power Shortage To Be Relieved By Added Lines

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 5—Power on the Hardy County Light and Power Company's R. E. A. lines was off several times last week causing considerable inconvenience to the patrons.

Five power units at the Dayton, Va., plant develop power for the generators and while two small units were being replaced by two large units a cylinder head was blown on one of the remaining large units. This caused the stoppage and it was several days before sufficient power was sent over the lines.

Low voltage in recent weeks has been caused by insufficient lines to the Hardy County system. A new line of 33,000 volts is being rushed over a 20 mile stretch and three miles remain to be completed.

Hansel Harper, manager of the Hardy County Light and Power Association, said that complete service would be resumed today. He also stated that a $1,700,000 improvement program over a five year period was under way to improve all lines.

Inspector Starts Work

Paul Evans has started his duties as inspector with the West Virginia Department of Labor and will have charge of weights and measures, safety, and child labor in five counties, Hardy, Grant, Hampshire, Pendleton and Mineral. Evans will have Moorefield as his headquarters. He assumed his duties Tuesday.

Bus Drivers Pass Test

The following Hardy County school bus drivers passed the written and the drivers test conducted by Cpl. E. L. Roush and Trooper James Davis of the State Department of Safety during the past two weeks.

Ernest B. Shipe, Carter M. Jenkins and Charles J. Riffy, Mathias; Victor M. Lambert, Rig; Leonard M. Fishel, Rock Oak; Wayne F. Evans, Flats; Howard E. Evans and Roy Elosser, Fabius; Delphia D. Wilkins, Bernie G. Keller and Harper Lionel Branson, Lost River; Robert F. Combs, Baker.

Twenty-four buses were inspected during the month of August by the state police and all passed except six. These six failed due to minor mechanical defects which were immediately repaired. All buses passed the required inspection on the opening day of school.

State Police Report

During the month of August the state police reported an investigation of five highway accidents, with six personal injuries involved, none serious and with property damage estimated at $1,600.

Thirty-five arrests were made during the month, 19 for road law violations, 10 for being intoxicated and six miscellaneous arrests. $480 was collected in fines and costs by the three Justices of the Peace.

Firemen's Fete Scheduled

The Capon Valley Volunteer Fire Company will hold its annual Firemen's Parade and Carnival Friday and Saturday nights, September 26 and 27, according to an announcement made this week.

Over 25 volunteer fire companies have been invited to participate in the firemen's parade which will be held Friday night. Prizes will be awarded to the fire companies having the most members in the parade, the company coming the greatest distance and to the best appearing fire company. Business firms and organizations will also enter floats in the parade.

On the carnival grounds there will be a number of concessions and games. Proceeds will be for the benefit of the fire company.

Firemen's Day Is Attended By 5,000 At Meyersdale Fair

By W. A. SHOEMAKER

MEYERSDALE, Pa., Sept. 5 — Firemen's Day at the Somerset County Fair Wednesday drew an attendance of 5,000 visitors, with fire companies, bands, auxiliaries and drum and bugle corps from West Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania competing for the $500 in cash prizes.

For nearly four hours the organizations marched around the half-mile race track in front of the judges' stand. The judges were William H. Baldwin, Prof. Nat LaCavera, James Hartle, Albert C. Saylor, Fred Hare, Jr., Howard Boose and Johnstown Fire Chief J. A. Morin and two assistants.

The Somerset Volunteer Fire Company won the first award for the best appearing with 20 or more men in line of parade. The Salisbury Band took the first prize for the best senior band; Rockwood High School took first place for the best appearing high school or junior band; the Berlin Fife and Drum Corps copped the first place in its class. Farrady Post, American Legion, Frostburg, took first place in the drum and bugle corps, and the Barton Firemen's Ladies Auxiliary took first place for the best appearing ladies' auxiliary.

Other prizes were as follows: Ashby, W. Va., best appearing fire company with 20 or more men in line of parade; Roaring Springs, company coming longest distance; Lonaconing, best firemen's drill team; Frostburg, second best senior band; Henry Hart Post, V.F.W., Cumberland, second best drum and bugle corps; Scalp Level, best appearing truck over 500 gallons; Westernport, Md., best appearing squad car; Krings, best appearing truck under 500 gallons; Hyndman, best appearing high school or junior band; Somerset, third best appearing high school or junior band.

The livestock judges completed the awarding of the ribbons to the various entries at the fair yesterday. Emerson Suder took many of the firsts of the premiums with his cattle, including seven first places, among which were two grand champions. The entries by Charles Merrill's Ponfeigh Farms also came off with seven winners, of which two were grand champions.

Today is Farmers' Day at the Fair, usually one of the biggest days. The occasion will be highlighted by a huge parade, in which approximately $400 will be awarded in prizes. The heavyweight horse-pulling contest, in which there are entries from three states, will be one of the attractions following the farmers' parade.

In the bubble blowing contests, which started Tuesday, will be continued Saturday afternoon, 60 boys and 60 girls have been selected by the judges to participate in the finals, for which the winners will be awarded footballs, roller skates and other prizes.

Frostburg City Parking Lot Is Opened For Use

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Sept. 5—The city parking lot, situated on Mechanic Street between Maple and Broadway, recently secured by the mayor and city commissioners, is now available for the use of car owners to park there without cost. There is room on the lot, according to City Commissioner Arthur Thomas, for 35 cars, and he reported to the city council Monday evening that the surface of Mechanic Street, between Maple and Broadway, is also being improved for the convenience of persons wishing to park their cars.

Mayor Skidmore stated today that several lights have been placed at the parking lot and are connected with the city street lighting, coming on at the same time as the lights on Main street. Cars may enter the lot from two approaches, Broadway on the west and Maple Street on the east.

The city, according to the mayor, is planning to place black top on the section of Taylor Street, between the Palace Theatre and the Frostburg Department Store, for the convenience of car owners walking to or from the business section.

The idea, according to Commissioner Thomas, of the city offering free parking on the lot is to induce motorists now parking on Main Street to use the lot so as to cut down congestion in the business section.

75-YEAR-OLD CHURCH—Members of the First Methodist Church in Lonaconing will hold services next week celebrating the 75th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the church building shown above. Six Methodist ministers from the tri-state area will conduct the ceremonies, with the final service scheduled for Sunday evening, September 14. The building of the church was started September 8, 1872, when the cornerstone was laid on a piece of ground donated to the parish by Dr. G. E. Porter and Mrs. N. J. Clark.

Methodist Church In Lonaconing Will Celebrate 75th Anniversary

Services To Be Held September 7 To 14

By MARIE MERRBACH

LONACONING, Sept. 5—The week of September 7 to 14 will mark the 75th anniversary of First Methodist Church in Lonaconing. Rev. William F. Wright will be the speaker at the Sunday morning service and Rev. Lewis F. Ransom will speak at the evening service. Rev. W. D. Briscoe, Rev. Melvin E. Lederer, Rev. M. A. Keesecker and Rev. James A. Richards will also take part in the services.

"Community Night" will be observed Monday night for the Lonaconing Ministerium attendance. Services will be held each evening of the week with the exception of Saturday, and the final service of the anniversary will be on Sunday evening, September 14.

As early as 1837 the George's Creek Coal and Iron Company donated a part of its land for the erection of a meeting house. This was the first Methodist church in Lonaconing and was erected where the residence of Thomas Grindell now stands. It is thought that services began late in 1838 with Josiah Forrest and J. S. Morris as ministers. These men were traveling ministers of the Frostburg circuit.

Services Held In Old Castle

From 1850 to 1854 services were held in the "Old Castle" on Douglas Avenue, a meeting place for all denominations. John Nash in 1853 was the first Methodist Sunday school superintendent and class leader. When in 1854 the "Old Castle" became a dwelling house, church and Sunday school services were transferred to the Odd Fellows' Hall, which stood on the site of the present Presbyterian parsonage.

From 1863 to 1866, "Jackson Log Row" was the site of the preaching. Up until this time all Sunday schools were probably undenominational.

In 1866 a committee consisting of Maj. Alexander Shaw, G. P. Hutson, D. Shaffer, David Laird and William Ternent was appointed to erect the second Methodist church. The church was dedicated the last Sunday in August 1866, and Rev. George Cooper of Frostburg preached the sermon. Daniel Shaffer was the pastor at this time. The cost of the structure was $1,877.50 and was paid on the day of dedication.

This church was erected on Main Street and was used by the Methodists until 1873. This property today houses the dental office of Dr. John Hohing.

In the spring of 1869 the Lonaconing and Barton congregations were united under the title of the Lonaconing Circuit with Rev. William C. Mullen as pastor.

New Building Started

In 1870, when Rev. Mullen left this section to go to Wesleyan House of Misisons in Baltimore, Dr. A. M. Courtenay was appointed to supply the church. Under his pastorate the church and parsonage were sold for $3,200 and new buildings were started where the present church now stands.

The cornerstone of the new church was laid September 8, 1872, on a piece of land donated by Dr. G. E. Porter and Mrs. N. J. Clark. The building committee consisted of Dr. A. M. Courtenay, Dr. G. E. Porter, A. Jackson Clark, Isaac Bradburn, C. C. Shockey, Robert Anderson, Thomas Ingleby and John H. Perry.

The parsonage was completed January 1, 1873, and occupied by Rev. Courtenay. The church, at a cost of $15,000, was completed later in 1873 during Rev. Ezekial Richardson's pastorate. This edifice was dedicated by Rev. William H. Chapman, Rev. A. M. Courtenay and Ezekial Richardson.

Tower Finished In 1921

In 1921 while Rev. U. S. Wright was minister the tower of the church was completed. He was responsible for publishing a monthly church paper known as the "Church Messenger." It was under his leadership in 1922 that the church celebrated its Golden Jubilee, marking 50 years from the laying of the cornerstone in 1872. At that time Dr. Frank Porter, who as a boy attended the dedication of the building and who was later minister of the church, spoke at the services.

"Truth Out-marches Time" was the motto of the centennial celebration, the 100th birthday of Methodism in Lonaconing, sponsored by Rev. Lewis Ransom in 1939.

Added to the church at this time were 18 candelabra—one for each window. Each candelabra consisted of five electric candles. Four cathedral lights also were added.

Communion Tables Presented

It was during this period that Mrs. Mollie Richmond presented to the church a communion table in memory of her mother and father.

Under the present minister, Rev. John E. Stacks, who came here in 1943, the beginners' department has been redecorated; new drapes added to the junior department; the kitchen remodeled; the Women's Society of Christian Service secured a new stove, a double sink and a new floor.

On November 7, 1943, the Honor Roll was dedicated for the many young men and women of the church serving in the armed forces. Many of these are now back working in the church.

Two flags, an American flag, given by the Daughters of America, and a Christian flag, given by the Primary department, were presented to the church March 12, 1944.

Memorials Presented

The following memorials were added during this period: baptismal font, dedicated October 23, 1943, given by Alvin Ternent in honor of his mother and in memory of his father; cross and candleholders, dedicated March 31, 1946, given by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Smith in memory of their daughter, Mary Esther Smith Fields; the lighted cross on tower, dedicated May 26, 1946, given by members of the congregation in memory of the boys who paid the supreme sacrifice in World War II; music tower system, dedicated May 29, 1947, given by Mrs. Hattie Dilfer in memory of her mother, Martha Raley. This was a musical contribution not only to the church but to the community as well.

Advice To The Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I moved away from my home town two months ago, where I had been going steady with a boy for more than a year.

Before I moved, he told me he did not want me to date any boys in the new place. He has come to see me once, and says, if I ever find anyone else, to just send his ring back. He is very serious and says if he doesn't get me he will be a bachelor.

He doesn't write me very often because he is so busy working with his car. His time is taken up with car racing. He is out of school and has a very good job. I hear from friends that he doesn't date girls and he doesn't want to go out with anybody but me.

Do you think it is wise for me to go through my senior year in high school supposedly going steady and waiting for him, when he writes me so seldom and yet tells people that he loves me?

"MIXED-UP

Dear "Mixed-Up":

I thing it would be very foolish of you to commit yourself so completely to this one young man that you pass up all chances to go out with others. Since you are still in high school, it is likely that you will meet other boys in your new environment who may interest you even more than this one. There is no sense whatever in tying yourself up so that you don't feel free to go out and have good times with them.

If your young man were as serious about you as he apparently wants you and others to think, he would certainly make a point to taking time from his car to write you. As for his remaining a bachelor if he doesn't get you, don't give it a second thought. He won't.

I suggest that you tell him you think it wiser for you both to feel free to have social engagements with other people for a while before deciding that you wish to spend the rest of your lives together.

How's Your Entertainment Value?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a high school girl of 16 and have gone out with four different boys in the last two weeks. I can get boys very easily, but my problem is to hold them. I am supposed to be "personality plus" according to the kids in my class. I meet a boy and he gives me the old line that he loves me—I am beautiful, and all that. He calls me, takes me out a few times, and I never hear from him again. But I always have so many others to console me, it doesn't bother me. My mother is always mad because I date so many fellows.

I don't want to go steady, but I just want to keep a fellow a few months like others do. Could you please give me a few points on how to keep one?

"EILEEN"

Dear "Eileen":

You say it is so easy for you to get boy friends that when they throw you over it doesn't bother you. It sounds to me as though it bothered you a great deal, or you wouldn't be writing to me about it.

I am afraid that the "kids in your class" have given you a somewhat exaggerated idea of your charms. If you were really the glamour girl you have been led to believe, the boys would hardly brush you off so fast.

You don't tell me enough about yourself for me to form any good opinion of what you trouble may be, but my guess is that you are probably very pretty and that your appearance makes a quick appeal to the boys, but there isn't enough behind that pretty face to interest them long. A girl has to have something besides good looks in order to "keep a fellow" as you put it.

Better go over your "entertainment value" and see where you're lacking. Are you good at sports, dancing, and so forth? Are you the kind of a girl who has lots of interests so that you have plenty to talk about? Do you enjoy a lot of different things, or is your idea of a good time just sitting around and being admired?

Try to look at yourself as though you were looking at another girl and advising her about herself. This ought to help.

Seven Instructors Added To Faculty Of Potomac State

School Will Open Sunday At Keyser

By MRS. JOSEPH H. TAYLOR

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 5—Seven new teachers have been added to the faculty list at Potomac State School for the fall term which opens Sunday, it was announced today by President E. E. Church.

Norman E. Rodgers, Brooklyn, Ark., replaces Dr. C. Waldron Bolen in the Department of History, and Mrs. Gwendolyn M. Gilham, of Parkersburg, replaces Miss Virginia Byrer as instructor in French and English.

Other teachers beginning their service are: Clayton L. Straw, Akron, Ohio, Physics; Milton Schloss, Brooklyn, N. Y., Geology and Geography; Mrs. Marie Reynolds, Brooklyn, Ark., English; John O. Maiden, Chicago, Physchology; and Miss Sarah J. Malone, Clarksburg, assistant librarian.

All faculty members of last year, with the exception of Dr. Bolen, Miss Byrer and Gerald McGeechie, are returning to their places on the college staff.

The college will open Sunday with a general convocation for freshman at 3 p. m., at which freshman attendance is required. English placement, psychological and physical examinations will begin at 8 a. m. Monday morning.

General registration will open Tuesday, September 9, at 1 p. m. and continue through Thursday. The first class sessions will be Friday at 8 a. m.

Numerous changes have been made for the accomodation of students, who are expected to set a new enrollment mark wtih a minimum of 650 students expected. Property on Mineral Street facing the campus has ben leased for use by the Music Department, and office space in the Administration building has been remodeled and enlarged.

An annex to house reserve shelves of the library has been provided by remodeling a classroom directly across from the library. The Recreation Building constructed during the summer will be in use for the first time this semester, laboratories have been re-designed and driveways are being repaved.

Enrollment is temporarily closed, Dean K. S. McKee said yesterday, but if registration discloses that more students can be accommodated, applicants on the waiting list will be considered and promptly notified.

Four Injured In Crash

Harry West, 48, Keyser, was admitted to Potomac Valley Hospital yesterday following an accident which occurred on Route 28, between Fort Ashby and Romney, last night. Three other Keyser men were also injured in the accident when the car in which they were riding turned over.

They were returning from a Moose outing at the Hood cottage on the South Branch in an automobile said to be owned and driven by Louis Schell, Keyser, when it is reported they were blinded by the lights of an oncoming car, and Schell lost control of the machine.

The injured men, in addition to West, are A. V. Gallion, who was cut and bruised, B. J. Faller, who was cut about the head, and Louis Schell, who was bruised.

X-rays were taken of Mr. West at the hospital last night to determine the extent of his injuries. He is believed to have a possible fractured left hip, as well as bruises and possible internal injuries. West is employed by the Kaplon's Men's Shop in Keyser.

Club Steward Fined

The Piedmont American Legion club case was disposed of Wednesday at a hearing when Sylvia Picolo, steward of the club, entered a guilty plea to the operation of eight slot machines. Justice of the Peace Madalyn Bazzle fined the club $300.

Firemen Extinguish Blaze

The Keyser Vigilant Reel and Hose Company was called out at noon today when sparks from a passing engine caused a blaze which partially burned the roof of an abandoned car of the J. A. Glaze Amusement Company on the siding in the Baltimore and Ohio yards here. The blaze was quickly extinguished.

Power Shortage To Be Relieved By Added Lines

By KATHERINE FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., Sept. 5—Power on the Hardy County Light and Power Company's R. E. A. lines was off several times last week causing considerable inconvenience to the patrons.

Five power units at the Dayton, Va., plant develop power for the generators and while two small units were being replaced by two large units a cylinder head was blown on one of the remaining large units. This caused the stoppage and it was several days before sufficient power was sent over the lines.

Low voltage in recent weeks has been caused by insufficient lines to the Hardy County system. A new line of 33,000 volts is being rushed over a 20 mile stretch and three miles remain to be completed.

Hansel Harper, manager of the Hardy County Light and Power Association, said that complete service would be resumed today. He also stated that a $1,700,000 improvement program over a five year period was under way to improve all lines.

Inspector Starts Work

Paul Evans has started his duties as inspector with the West Virginia Department of Labor and will have charge of weights and measures, safety, and child labor in five counties, Hardy, Grant, Hampshire, Pendleton and Mineral. Evans will have Moorefield as his headquarters. He assumed his duties Tuesday.

Bus Drivers Pass Test

The following Hardy County school bus drivers passed the written and the drivers test conducted by Cpl. E. L. Roush and Trooper James Davis of the State Department of Safety during the past two weeks.

Ernest B. Shipe, Carter M. Jenkins and Charles J. Riffy, Mathias; Victor M. Lambert, Rig; Leonard M. Fishel, Rock Oak; Wayne F. Evans, Flats; Howard E. Evans and Roy Elosser, Fabius; Delphia D. Wilkins, Bernie G. Keller and Harper Lionel Branson, Lost River; Robert F. Combs, Baker.

Twenty-four buses were inspected during the month of August by the state police and all passed except six. These six failed due to minor mechanical defects which were immediately repaired. All buses passed the required inspection on the opening day of school.

State Police Report

During the month of August the state police reported an investigation of five highway accidents, with six personal injuries involved, none serious and with property damage estimated at $1,600.

Thirty-five arrests were made during the month, 19 for road law violations, 10 for being intoxicated and six miscellaneous arrests. $480 was collected in fines and costs by the three Justices of the Peace.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—The title "The 49'ers" has been in the Warner family for years, it seems to me, but it's so applicable to the California Centennial film which Michael Curtiz is making, Jack Warner has permitted Mike to borrow it. Anyway, it's all in the family.

Louella Parsons

Mike will join hands with the state of California in filming a picture appropriate for the 100th birthday of our state. James Mitchell, of "Brigadoon" fame, Doris Day, and Michael North, Curtiz' two young players, will have the top roles.

The story is an original by Bob Andrews and will get going early next year in time to be a boost for the big birthday celebration. George Amy, a cutter for 17 years, has been handed the production reins by Mike.

Scarcely a big one is made at Metro these days without Robert Walker being in the cast somewhere, so it's no surprise to learn he has been assigned one of the top roles in "State Of The Union" which Frank Capra is making with Claudette Colbert and Spencer Tracy.

I must say that Bob, who was so good as Spencer's son in "Sea Of Grass," never turns in an indifferent performance, and he really works to get the most out of any part whether it is large or small. This time he will play the wise-cracking newspaper reporter who is Spencer's political adviser. Well, that should come natural to Bob, whose own father was a newspaperman, and I'm sure he will do right by our craft.

I used to think Lucille Ball was over-rated, but believe me, I've changed my mind since I saw her in "Lured." She is excellent, and so is the picture, one of the most entertaining thriller-dillers I've seen in a long time. My compliments to Hunt Stromberg.

When Lucille, who has been touring with "Dream Girl," comes back, she'll make another picture for Hunt, "Too Late For Tears." Betty Kern, who is the wife of one of our Hearst executives, wrote at length about Lucille and the wonderful reviews she received on her performance in "Dream Girl."

Tom Drake, who was put on suspension because he refused to play second fiddle to a dog, has had a change of heart. He's back now at the studio playing the romantic lead in "Hills Of Home" which features Lassie."

Tom was off the payroll about a month. But in the meantime, the producer, Robert Sisk, has blown up his role, so Tom won't feel Lassie is getting the best of it. You can understand why actors don't like to play with babies and dogs. They always steal the picture.

Chatter in Hollywood: There's an interesting background to the recent marriage of Tobacco Heiress Doris Duke and Porfirio Rubirosa. He formerly was married to Danielle Darrieux, and was most unhappy when she divorced him and announced she would marry her leading man, the son of an aristocratic and wealthy French family. Those plans were broken up by the boy's mother, however, who labeled Danielle "a woman of the world" and frowned on her divorced status. By then it was too late for Danielle to make any overtures toward a reconciliation with Rubirosa because he already was courting Doris and obviously was very happy with her.

Marliene Dietrich, who gets a new lease on her acting life in "Golden Earrings"—she looks so young—is returning to America very shortly. I hear that Billy Wilder has persuaded her to play a part in "A Foreign Affair," formerly called "Operation Candy Bar."

If you don't think people are hungary for good pictures take a look at "Gone With The Wind." It's doing a sell out business wherever it's re-issued. So far it has returned $33,000,000 in box office receipts, and another $5,000,000 more is expected from this re-issue. The picture cost David Selznick $4,000,000 to make, which was considered a fantastic figure at that time. If it were made at today's production cost, the figure would be $12,000,000.

It's amazing about Margaret Mitchell, the author. I suppose I have had more letters from her than any other author. She's really got a phobia about publicity, and every time her name is mentioned she writes and denies whatever is written.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ciro Man Herman Hover's elaborate plans to build a new theatre-restaurant, will soon become a reality. He's been conferring with Architect Burton Schutt and plans to call the new spot Ciro's Theatre of Tomorrow. It will be next door to his present night spot.

I was able to get away for two days, the first time in over a year, and I must say I had a wonderful rest at Del Mar Hotel. What a lovely place it is. My room was right on the ocean. Yes, I went to the track and had a chat with Gretchen and Gregory Peck. They are so entranced with La Jolla they are staying down for another two weeks, although the La Jolla theatre, which Greg sponsored, is closed. Greg told me he played three matinees last week to crowded houses.

Gretchen looked to cute in yellow and black and an unusual contraption for her head made of matching material. Jane Weeks wore one of those new becoming hats with a long sweeping veil. Her's was in bright red and on her it was becoming.

The stringent undercover action by California's Department of Justice, to throw the spotlight on gangster activities in that State, is by direct order of Governor Warren. Radio In Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Edward R. Murrow, who recently resigned as vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was one of the most able and respected news commentators of World War II. His introductory phrase "This — is London" will forever remind hordes of his listeners of the London blitz of 1940 which he vividly described. He will return to active news broadcasting in the fall. Here he voices some opinions of the responsibilities of radio newsmen. . . . John Crosby.

By EDWARD R. MURROW

Notes on the News

"I think the readers of this column ought to know that, so far as I know, John Crosby was the first to suggest in print that some useful purpose might be served if radio undertook reasoned and responsibile criticism of the press. Such a project had been under consideration for several months at C.B.S. The program has been on the air 6:15 p. m. E.D.T. Saturdays for ten weeks. Mail response has been commendatory and the ratio about one-hundred to one. Much of this correspondence is marked by a reaction which might be summed up as: "It's too good to be true," "it can't last," and "do you think you can get away with it for very long?"

"C.B.S. Views The Press" was undertaken on the assumption that mutual criticism would be beneficial. The program will remain on the air. If C.B.S. news makes a serious mistake, the gentlemen of the press may be expected to let their readers know about it, and that would be a healthy thing too.

The networks are relaxing their restrictions against the use of recordings. This will require new skills in the networks' news rooms. The editing of records, the writing of proper transitions and the presentation of a coherent quarter hour made up in part of a "live" voice and partly of recorded material, is not easy. I am persuaded that a political convention, hearings before a Senate Committee, or a meeting of the UN assembly, can be presented in this fashion in half an hour, whereas an on-the-spot broadcast of the proceedings would require several hours. Right now WQXR is doing a first class job in this field with its "United Nations News Reel" at 11:30 a. m. E. D. T. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

There is a tendency amongst broadcasters to congratulate themselves on the job radio did during the war, and I suppose it is true that certain skills and individuals were developed between the time of the Anschluss and the surrender in Tokyo Bay, but I think the testing time for radio news is right now. It is certainly easier to report a battle or a heavy air action than it is to report clearly and fairly and interestingly the provisions and implications of the Taft-Hartley Bill or the Marshall Plan. A little courage, a certain ability to write the language of speech, a basic knowledge of military science and tactics and an interest in people, combined to make a pretty fair radio war correspondent.

It was as improtant to be in the right place at the focal point of interest as it was to be able to write skillfully and talk well.

Today the foreign correspondent requires, in addition to curiosity and the ability to go without sleep, a knowledge of history, economics, political philosophy, languages and even law. The current crop of foreign correspondents has another fundamental problem—and the good ones recognize it. They are, almost without exception, talking from countries that are lean to a country that is fat. There is almost no common denominator of experience between the people with whom they live and talk and work and the people to whom they are talking in this country. Even the meaning of common words has changed. A word like "shortage" here may mean that it is a little tough to get a new car, but in most of Europe it means that it is mighty difficult to get most anything. Our black market involves only a few things that cannot be regarded as essentials, while the whole economy of several European countries rests on the black market.

It is difficult, if not impossible, for the foreign correspondent to convey to us the fear with which Europeans view the onset of another winter. That is because most of us were warm and comfortable last winter. The men with microphones abroad are trying to sort out the intricacies of domestic French politics for us when many of the French do not really understand them. Every reporter is influenced by the atmosphere and the climate of opinion in which he works. Many develop emotional allegiances to the countries in which they are stationed.

It would seem to follow that foreign correspondents should be moved frequently for it is obvious that it is no longer enough to know a single country.

As we in this country come more and more to realize that what happens abroad affects us directly in terms of taxes and security, the foreign correspondent will have to do a job of translating that will be, I think, without parallel in terms of its importance to the informing of the American public. This in turn will require a greater degree of sophistication on the part of the listener. It is surprising how many listeners will conclude that a reporter, doing his level best to explain the problems and the philosophy of a Socialist or Communist state, is advocating that philosophy and recommending it to us over here.

The American radio listener has become accustomed to fast switching from capital to capital. That started at the time of the Anschluss and I suspect that listeners are no longer impressed. The tendency now seems to be to switch abroad only when the reporter there can produce eye witness or background material not available from other sources, and that is a good thing too for it means that the mechanics get less in the way of the broadcaster.

It is often said that we are the best informed nation on earth. I do not know about that but I do know that we have access to more information than any other people. There is a difference.

Advice To The Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I moved away from my home town two months ago, where I had been going steady with a boy for more than a year.

Before I moved, he told me he did not want me to date any boys in the new place. He has come to see me once, and says, if I ever find anyone else, to just send his ring back. He is very serious and says if he doesn't get me he will be a bachelor.

He doesn't write me very often because he is so busy working with his car. His time is taken up with car racing. He is out of school and has a very good job. I hear from friends that he doesn't date girls and he doesn't want to go out with anybody but me.

Do you think it is wise for me to go through my senior year in high school supposedly going steady and waiting for him, when he writes me so seldom and yet tells people that he loves me?

"MIXED-UP

Dear "Mixed-Up":

I thing it would be very foolish of you to commit yourself so completely to this one young man that you pass up all chances to go out with others. Since you are still in high school, it is likely that you will meet other boys in your new environment who may interest you even more than this one. There is no sense whatever in tying yourself up so that you don't feel free to go out and have good times with them.

If your young man were as serious about you as he apparently wants you and others to think, he would certainly make a point to taking time from his car to write you. As for his remaining a bachelor if he doesn't get you, don't give it a second thought. He won't.

I suggest that you tell him you think it wiser for you both to feel free to have social engagements with other people for a while before deciding that you wish to spend the rest of your lives together.

How's Your Entertainment Value?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a high school girl of 16 and have gone out with four different boys in the last two weeks. I can get boys very easily, but my problem is to hold them. I am supposed to be "personality plus" according to the kids in my class. I meet a boy and he gives me the old line that he loves me—I am beautiful, and all that. He calls me, takes me out a few times, and I never hear from him again. But I always have so many others to console me, it doesn't bother me. My mother is always mad because I date so many fellows.

I don't want to go steady, but I just want to keep a fellow a few months like others do. Could you please give me a few points on how to keep one?

"EILEEN"

Dear "Eileen":

You say it is so easy for you to get boy friends that when they throw you over it doesn't bother you. It sounds to me as though it bothered you a great deal, or you wouldn't be writing to me about it.

I am afraid that the "kids in your class" have given you a somewhat exaggerated idea of your charms. If you were really the glamour girl you have been led to believe, the boys would hardly brush you off so fast.

You don't tell me enough about yourself for me to form any good opinion of what you trouble may be, but my guess is that you are probably very pretty and that your appearance makes a quick appeal to the boys, but there isn't enough behind that pretty face to interest them long. A girl has to have something besides good looks in order to "keep a fellow" as you put it.

Better go over your "entertainment value" and see where you're lacking. Are you good at sports, dancing, and so forth? Are you the kind of a girl who has lots of interests so that you have plenty to talk about? Do you enjoy a lot of different things, or is your idea of a good time just sitting around and being admired?

Try to look at yourself as though you were looking at another girl and advising her about herself. This ought to help.

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 4.—The title "The 49'ers" has been in the Warner family for years, it seems to me, but it's so applicable to the California Centennial film which Michael Curtiz is making, Jack Warner has permitted Mike to borrow it. Anyway, it's all in the family.

Louella Parsons

Mike will join hands with the state of California in filming a picture appropriate for the 100th birthday of our state. James Mitchell, of "Brigadoon" fame, Doris Day, and Michael North, Curtiz' two young players, will have the top roles.

The story is an original by Bob Andrews and will get going early next year in time to be a boost for the big birthday celebration. George Amy, a cutter for 17 years, has been handed the production reins by Mike.

Scarcely a big one is made at Metro these days without Robert Walker being in the cast somewhere, so it's no surprise to learn he has been assigned one of the top roles in "State Of The Union" which Frank Capra is making with Claudette Colbert and Spencer Tracy.

I must say that Bob, who was so good as Spencer's son in "Sea Of Grass," never turns in an indifferent performance, and he really works to get the most out of any part whether it is large or small. This time he will play the wise-cracking newspaper reporter who is Spencer"s political adviser. Well, that should come natural to Bob, whose own father was a newspaperman, and I'm sure he will do right by our craft.

I used to think Lucille Ball was over-rated, but believe me, I've changed my mind since I saw her in "Lured." She is excellent, and so is the picture, one of the most entertaining thriller-dillers I've seen in a long time. My compliments to Hunt Stromberg.

When Lucille, who has been touring with "Dream Girl," comes back, she'll make another picture for Hunt, "Too Late For Tears." Betty Kern, who is the wife of one of our Hearst executives, wrote at length about Lucille and the wonderful reviews she received on her performance in "Dream Girl."

Tom Drake, who was put on suspension because he refused to play second fiddle to a dog, has had a change of heart. He's back now at the studio playing the romantic lead in "Hills Of Home" which features Lassie."

Tom was off the payroll about a month. But in the meantime, the producer, Robert Sisk, has blown up his role, so Tom won't feel Lassie is getting the best of it. You can understand why actors don't like to play with babies and dogs. They always steal the picture.

Chatter in Hollywood: There's an interesting background to the recent marriage of Tobacco Heiress Doris Duke and Porfirio Rubirosa. He formerly was married to Danielle Darrieux, and was most unhappy when she divorced him and announced she would marry her leading man, the son of an aristocratic and wealthy French family. Those plans were broken up by the boy's mother, however, who labeled Danielle "a woman of the world" and frowned on her divorced status. By then it was too late for Danielle to make any overtures toward a reconciliation with Rubirosa because he already was courting Doris and obviously was very happy with her.

Marliene Dietrich, who gets a new lease on her acting life in "Golden Earrings"—she looks so young—is returning to America very shortly. I hear that Billy Wilder has persuaded her to play a part in "A Foreign Affair," formerly called "Operation Candy Bar."

That Dietrich is an amazing woman. She looks so young in "Golden Earrings" and she sings in that throaty voice that first made her famous in "Blue Angel."

If you don't think people are hungary for good pictures take a look at "Gone With The Wind." It's doing a sell out business wherever it's re-issued. So far it has returned $33,000,000 in box office receipts, and another $5,000,000 more is expected from this re-issue. The picture cost David Selznick $4,000,000 to make, which was considered a fantastic figure at that time. If it were made at today's production cost, the figure would be $12,000,000.

It's amazing about Margaret Mitchell, the author. I suppose I have had more letters from her than any other author. She's really got a phobia about publicity, and every time her name is mentioned she writes and denies whatever is written.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ciro Man Herman Hover's elaborate plans to build a new theatre-restaurant, will soon become a reality. He's been conferring with Architect Burton Schutt and plans to call the new spot Ciro's Theatre of Tomorrow. It will be next door to his present night spot.

Happy timing for Jeanette MacDonald, who will do a January concert tour just at the time her new picture, "The Birds And The Bees," is playing in the East and Mid-west.

Ronald Reagan will get in some good fishing and rest when he goes with his wife, Jane Wyman, and the rest of the "Johnny Belinda" company on location to a fishing village north of San Francisco.

I was able to get away for two days, the first time in over a year, and I must say I had a wonderful rest at Del Mar Hotel. What a lovely place it is. My room was right on the ocean. Yes, I went to the track and had a chat with Gretchen and Gregory Peck. They are so entranced with La Jolla they are staying down for another two weeks, although the La Jolla theatre, which Greg sponsored, is closed. Greg told me he played three matinees last week to crowded houses.

Gretchen looked to cute in yellow and black and an unusual contraption for her head made o matching material. Jane Weeki wore one of those new becoming hats with a long sweeping veil Her's was in bright red and on her it was becoming.

Stocks Tumble Before Support Stems Fast But Short Selloff

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—A fast but short-lived selloff tumbled leading stocks one to two or more points in today's market but support soon arrived and stemmed the retreat.

Offerings turned urgent for about 20 minutes in the second hour after mild early irregularity. The pace then slowed and extreme declines were reduced in the majority of cases at the close.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .8 of a point at 64.6, a low since June 30. It was the widest dip since August 25. The market was the broadest since July 29. Of 1,007 issues registering, 742 fell and only 112 advanced.

Packard Motors was the day's liveliest sprinter, coming out on blocks of as much as 15,300 shares. It touched a 1947 bottom and finished off ⅛ at 4⅝.

Noblitt-Sparks conceded 3¼ at 48½, International Harvester 2⅝ at 84, McIntyre Porcupine two at 54, Union Pacific 1⅜ at 138, Allied Chemical 1⅜ at 184¼, United States Steel 1⅝ at 69 and Bethlehem 1⅝ at 85¾. On the offside a point or more were Youngstown Sheet at 67¼, Chrysler 58, J. I. Case 37¼, Deere 39, Western Union 23⅜, Anaconda 34⅜, Union Carbide 105, Santa Fe 82, Southern Pacific 42⅝, Southern Railway 36⅝, Great Northern Railway 39¼.

Volume picked up to $3,440,000 from $3,044,000 Wednesday and was the largest in about two weeks.

Industrial and utility liens made a better showing than the carriers, with small gains and losses about a standoff.

Domestic corporates trimmed included B. and O. stamped convertibles at 47½, Boston and New York Airlines 4s at 55½, Chicago and Eastern Illinois incomes at 35, Northern Western 4½s at 66, Rock Island 4s of '88 at 81, Denver and Rio Grande Western incomes at 48¾, International Hydro-Electric 6s at 99, Missouri Pacific convertibles at 24, New York Central consolidated 4s at 67¼, New Haven 4½s of '67 at 52⅜, Cottonbelt refunding 5s at 83½ (off 2⅜), and Wisconsin Central 4s at 69.

United State governments moved narrowly in the over-the-counter market with the Victory Loan 2½s of 1967-'72 down 1/32 of a point at 102 28/32.

Radio In Review

By JOHN CROSBY

Edward R. Murrow, who recently resigned as vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, was one of the most able and respected news commentators of World War II. His introductory phrase "This — is London" will forever remind hordes of his listeners of the London blitz of 1940 which he vividly described. He will return to active news broadcasting in the fall. Here he voices some opinions of the responsibilities of radio newsmen. . . . John Crosby.

By EDWARD R. MURROW

"My first exclusive," as the lady says on the radio.

"I think the readers of this column ought to know that, so far as I know, John Crosby was the first to suggest in print that some useful purpose might be served if radio undertook reasoned and responsible criticism of the press. Such a project had been under consideration for several months at C.B.S. The program has been on the air 6:15 p. m. E.D.T. Saturdays for ten weeks. Mail response has been commendatory and the ratio about one-hundred to one. Much of this correspondence is marked by a reaction which might be summed up as: "It's too good to be true," "it can't last," and "do you think you can get away with it for very long?"

"C.B.S. Views The Press" was undertaken on the assumption that mutual criticism would be beneficial. The program will remain on the air. If C.B.S. news makes a serious mistake, the gentlemen of the press may be expected to let their readers know about it, and that would be a healthy thing too.

The networks are relaxing their restrictions against the use of recordings. This will require new skills in the networks' news rooms. The editing of records, the writing of proper transitions and the presentation of a coherent quarter hour made up in part of a "live" voice and partly of recorded material, is not easy. I am persuaded that a political convention, hearings before a Senate Committee, or a meeting of the UN assembly, can be presented in this fashion in half an hour, whereas an on-the-spot broadcast of the proceedings would require several hours. Right now WQXR is doing a first class job in this field with its "United Nations News Reel" at 11:30 a. m. E. D. T. Tuesdays through Saturdays.

There is a tendency amongst broadcasters to congratulate themselves on the job radio did during the war, and I suppose it is true that certain skills and individuals were developed between the time of the Anschluss and the surrender in Tokyo Bay, but I think the testing time for radio news is right now. It is certainly easier to report a battle or a heavy air action than it is to report clearly and fairly and interestingly the provisions and implications of the Taft-Hartley Bill or the Marshall Plan. A little courage, a certain ability to write the language of speech, a basic knowledge of military science and tactics and an interest in people, combined to make a pretty fair radio war correspondent.

It was as improtant to be in the right place at the focal point of interest as it was to be able to write skillfully and talk well.

Today the foreign correspondent requires, in addition to curiosity and the ability to go without sleep, a knowledge of history, economics, political philosophy, languages and even law. The current crop of foreign correspondents has another fundamental problem—and the good ones recognize it. They are, almost without exception, talking from countries that are lean to a country that is fat. There is almost no common denominator of experience between the people with whom they live and talk and work and the people to whom they are talking in this country. Even the meaning of common words has changed. A word like "shortage" here may mean that it is a little tough to get a new car, but in most of Europe it means that it is mighty difficult to get most anything. Our black market involves only a few things that cannot be regarded as essentials, while the whole economy of several European countries rests on the black market.

It is difficult, if not impossible, for the foreign correspondent to convey to us the fear with which Europeans view the onset of another winter. That is because most of us were warm and comfortable last winter. The men with microphones abroad are trying to sort out the intricacies of domestic French politics for us when many of the French do not really understand them. Every reporter is influenced by the atmosphere and the climate of opinion in which he works. Many develop emotional allegiances to the countries in which they are stationed.

It would seem to follow that foreign correspondents should be moved frequently for it is obvious that it is no longer enough to know a single country.

As we in this country come more and more to realize that what happens abroad affects us directly in terms of taxes and security, the foreign correspondent will have to do a job of translating that will be, I think, without parallel in terms of its importance to the informing of the American public. This in turn will require a greater degree of sophistication on the part of the listener. It is surprising how many listeners will conclude that a reporter, doing his level best to explain the problems and the philosophy of a Socialist or Communist state, is advocating that philosophy and recommending it to us over here.

The American radio listener has become accustomed to fast switching from capital to capital. That started at the time of the Anschluss and I suspect that listeners are no longer impressed. The tendency now seems to be to switch abroad only when the reporter there can produce eye witness or background material not available from other sources, and that is a good thing too for it means that the mechanics get less in the way of the broadcaster.

It is often said that we are the best informed nation on earth. I do not know about that but I do know that we have access to more information than any other people. There is a difference.

Graham Says City Airport Lease May Be Dropped

Attacks "Petty, Stinking Politics" In Replying To Post's Statement

Cumberland Airways Head Says Contract Renewal Depends On Improved Relations

Stating that he is "not very well pleased with petty, stinking politics," William J. Graham, Pittsburgh, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., said last night he will not be interested in renewing his firm's lease to operate the Cumberland Municipal Airport unless relations with the city are improved.

Graham issued his statement in reply to a charge by Mayor Thomas S. Post at a recent meeting of the Municipal Airport Commission that the city was "sold down the river" when it leased the airport to Graham's firm.

At that time the mayor said the city would accomplish nothing until it had regained control of the airport. Graham said last night he agrees with Mayor Post that the city should operate the airport "if the mayor persists in his present attitude."

Seeks Explanation

The city leased the airport to Cumberland Airways effective January 1, 1946, for a 20-year term, with the agreement that the city would receive all profits over $1,000 for the first two years.

The preliminary period ends December 31, 1947, at which time terms of the lease will be due for renegotiation. The contract provides that if at that time the parties are unable to agree upon rental terms, the lease shall become void.

"I would like the mayor to explain why he thinks the city was 'sold down the river' in leasing the airport, since he was one of the leading lights in approving the lease when it was made," Graham said.

"If he was attacking specific individuals in his statement, he should have come out and said so," Graham declared, adding, "I don't propose to fight a situation which couldn't be a pleasant relationship."

He recalled that when he signed the lease contract in November, 1945, he stated the hope that he would have the friendly co-operation of city officials, and that he could develop the airport without becoming involved in "political issues."

At the airport commission's meeting August 26, the group voted to disallow operating charges totaling $2,310.51 in Cumberland Airways' financial report for 1946.

Items rejected were $1,383.57 for interest, $500 for promotion work and $416.66 for depreciation on a Beachcraft plane allegedly brought here for charter service.

T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, was instructed by Chairman Edmund S. Burke to communicate with Graham, asking him to readjust the report by eliminating those items.

Such readjustment would bring the net profit to $2,687.73 before taxes, instead of the $388.22 listed on the report.

Studying Request

Graham said last night he has received Shires' communication but that he is delaying a reply pending further study of the request.

He said any impartial judge would decide that the disputed items resulted from "normal operating cost," and added that he hopes to attend the next meeting of the commission, scheduled later this month, to "get things straightened out."

MISS MARYLAND—Carolyn Jean Dixon, Cumberland's 18-year old beauty representing the Free State in the Atlantic City Miss America pageant, is seen here in a colorful float as she participated along with 53 other lovely contestants in a boardwalk parade, a feature of the week-long pageant. Jean appeared Wednesday night in competition with 17 other girls in the bathing suit revue, and last night competed with the same unit in a display of talent.

Was Among First Five In Bathing Suit Revue

Singing her own theme song, "It Had To Be You," Carolyn Jean Dixon, Cumberland's "Miss Maryland" entry in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J., appeared before an audience of over 15,000 persons last night for the second phase of the annual competition.

Competing with 17 other girls in her unit, some of whom appeared quite professional in their individual talents such as singing, dancing and fashion designing, Jean sang sweetly and drew more than her share of applause from the huge audience. She did not make her talent appearance until 11:30 p. m. and appeared as the 13th contestant in her group.

According to observers at the pageant, she was considered among the first five girls in the bathing beauty competition on the previous night, and it was again realized last night after the talent performance that she is scoring a fair share of points.

Final Competition Tonight

Tonight's final competition, in which she will appear in an evening gown, will determine if she has collected enough points to be among the top 15 finalists. Saturday at 11:30 p. m. the 15 finalists will be voted upon for the last time and from this group Miss America of 1947 will be selected.

Each of the finalists will receive at least a $1,000 scholarship and Miss America will receive a $5,000 scholarship.

Jack Moore, who accompanied Miss Dixon to Atlantic City as the representative of the local Jaycees, sponsors of the Maryland entry, said last night "Jean has done a proud job every time she has appeared, and she is trying very hard, but the competition is really tough."

Moore said "She sang like a little trooper tonight, and I feel sure she made a good impression on the judges. She has a chance to score pretty high, and we still hope to reach the finals."

Declaring it is unsafe to make predictions, Moore said most persons he has talked with seem to think Miss Miami Beach, who is Miss Donna Shore, will probably be Miss America of 1947, but Miss New York City, who is Miss Raven Malone, a movie starlet, is also a popular favorite.

Some Jobless Pay Claimants Exhaust Benefit Rights

Number Of Claims Filed Decreases

A decrease in the number of unemployment compensation claims filed in August at the Cumberland office of the State Unemployment Compensation Division is due largely to exhaustion of benefit rights of some claimants, Francis A. Kenney, manager of the local office, said yesterday.

Kenney pointed out that 7,430 claims were taken last month, a decrease of 1,187 from the 8,617 claims taken in July.

He added that he is not aware of "any substantial improvement" in the employment situation in the county.

Original claims for state compensation payments in August amounted to 483 while original claims for Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance benefits totaled 96.

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office of the Maryland State Employment Service, reported yesterday that 283 persons were placed in jobs last month and that 391 new applications were received.

New applications, including 139

Optimist Club To Sponsor Soap Box Derby Here

$235 Offered Boys In Cash Awards

Preliminary plans for a Soap Box Derby were outlined last night at a meeting of a committee representing the Cumberland Optimist Club, at Central YMCA, according to Fred P. Keyser, chairman.

The Optimists, as part of their youth welfare and boys work activities, will present $235 in cash prizes to the winners of the minature car race to be held Saturday, October 18, at 2 p. m. on Shriver Avenue in North Cumberland.

Keyser explained that entries will be limited to boys who have passed their 11th birthday and have not reached their 17th birthday. Only 36 entrants will be accepted, and each must be sponsored by a local merchant, business firm or organization.

Entries are open to all boys in those age brackets who live in the Cumberland trading area, and each boy must compete in a vehicle he has constructed himself. Official wheels must be used on all vehicles.

Competition will be in three groups with cash prizes as follows: Class A, boys 11 and 12, first prize $20; second prize $15; third prize $10. Class B, boys 13 and 14, first prize $20; second prize $15; and third prize $10. Class C, boys 15 and 16, first prize $20; second prize, $15; third prize $10. Winners in all three classes will then compete for a grand prize of $50 first, $30 second and $20 third.

Arrangements are being made with the Cumberland Police Department to rope off Shriver Avenue for the races. A ramp will be constructed at Piedmont Avenue to give the cars a start, and four lanes will be painted on the street for the racers. There will be 12 entries in each class, and four vehicles will compete at a time with the winners of each heat racing for prizes.

Boys interested in obtaining entry blanks should contact Walter L. Weires, 333 Baltimore Avenue, who will be official inspector for the cars, or from other members of the committee.

Keyser said the committee has been working on the idea for several months and has made arrangements for obtaining official vehicle wheels and these are to be distributed to entries by Duke Iles. The Mayor and City Council have approved the idea and at their recent meeting gave the club permission to use Shriver Avenue, and said the Police Department will cooperate. Numerous local business houses have expressed interest in the derby and have agreed to sponsor boys who will enter.

Church Women's Program For Year Is Outlined

The program for the year was outlined and chairmen appointed by Mrs. Robert LeRoy Critchfield at the executive meeting of the Cumberland Council of Church Women, yesterday at St. Luke's Lutheran Church. Mrs. Elizabeth Zilch led the devotionals and Mrs. John S. Cook read 16 cards and a letter which had been translated into English, all were notes of appreciation for boxes sent through the New Windsor project.

Mrs. Albert Keight was named chairman of the Mission Institute which will be held in St. Luke's Church, October 7. Mrs. Bruce H. McDonald, state president, will be present to teach the book, "Committed Unto Us," by Lamott. The registrations will be made at 9:30 and a box lunch will be held at noon with the members of the host church providing the drinks.

World Community Day will be observed on November 7, with Mrs. E. F. Phillips chairman. The topic is to be, "The World Is My Community." There will be a consecration service and panel discussion. Bundles for children overseas from 6 to 12 will also be packed.

Mrs. Cook was named chairman of the World Day of Prayer to be held February 27 in St. Luke's and Mrs. Ralph Isiminger, chairman for the luncheon, May 7, when there will be a guest speaker and officers for the ensuing years will be elected.

Services Scheduled For Camp Grounds

The Camp Ground Association of the Union Grove Methodist Circuit will hold special services at the Union Grove Camp Ground Sunday.

The musical program will begin at 2 p. m. and worship services under the direction of Rev. Earle R. Blauch, Ridgeley, will follow at 2:30 p. m.

Allegany County School Opening Reported Normal

Slight Increase Is Noted In Enrollment

Allegany County high and elementary school classes experienced a "normal" opening as work of the 1947-48 term got underway yesterday in an "orderly" fashion, according to Dr. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Principals of the local high schools, where half day sessions were conducted, indicated that from unofficial tabulations the student bodies will be slightly increased this year. However, they said, the enrollment of World War II veterans has declined sharply when compared with last year.

The work of educating children was resumed yesterday morning at 9 a. m. with most of the morning devoted to organization of classes and orientation of students, officials of the various schools explained.

1,608 At Fort Hill

Vice Principal Foy Curry, of Allegany High, estimated that the enrollment would just miss the 1,500 mark while Principal Arthur W. Taylor, of Beall High School, Frostburg, estimated that 850 students were enrolled yesterday.

Complete results of the county enrollment in high and elementary schools will not be completed before Saturday or possibly Monday of next week, said Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of student personnel.

Dr. Kopp said he visited Allegany High School yesterday morning and conversed briefly with many of the students during the first hour of school, adding that the resumption of classes appeared to be smooth and orderly.

Saturday morning, principals and teachers of the county schools will meet at Allegany High School at 10 a. m. for the first general professional meeting of the new term. Dr. Kopp will preside at the meeting, and he said matters of professional interest in education will be the main topic of discussion.

Classes will continue on a half day schedule this morning, but the full day course will be resumed Monday, Dr. Kopp explained.

54 New Instructors

Of the 54 new instructors appointed to high school positions in the county, 21 are residents and former teachers of Pennsylvania; two are from Ohio, four from Virginia; two New Jersey; and one each from West Virginia, Maine and Connecticut.

Dr. Kopp said that of the newly appointed instructors 18 have master's degrees and 30 have more than five years of teaching experience, while 22 of that group have 10 or more years of experience.

Officials pointed out that such figures are significant in the new term, since many of the instructors employed in former years were newly commissioned teachers.

Principal Heisey said that only six veterans have returned to Fort Hill High this year while there were 52 enrolled at the beginning of the 1946-47 term. Other principals indicated that a larger percentage of veterans received diplomas this June and the low enrollment figure did not indicate that veterans were abandoning their pursuit of education.

Students returning to the high schools this fall will find at least two new courses being offered, one a course in automobile driving which will be presented to the seniors of high schools in the county for the first time, and the other a course in corrective speech which has been placed under the direction of a special department for the first time this year.

Cole To Leave Kelly

Remsen J. Cole, 911 Ridgedale Avenue, who is employed in the offices of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, will resign his position and leave September 15, it was learned yesterday.

Cole, a major in the Marine Corps Reserve, is commander of the local reserve unit, Company D of the Fifth Infantry Division.

Avirett Addresses Local Kiwanis On Early History Of Cumberland

Tells Of Visits Washington Made

Pointing out the rich historical background of Cumberland, James Alfred Avirett, U. S. Commissioner, and local attorney, yesterday addressed members of the Kiwanis Club on the city's history dating from 1728 to 1800.

Avirett said the city's formation and historical background actually began in 1728 when the first white settlers visited this section of the country and subsequently established a trading post in the area now included in the city limits.

Chief Will of the Shawnee tribe of Algonquin Indians assisted the first settlers and traders and it is after him that the mountain overlooking the city and the creek which flows through it are named, Avirett explained.

The chief remained here with the settlers after many of his tribe moved westward and aided the white men in establishing routes and becoming familiar with the region.

Trading Post Established

In 1749, according to Avirett, the first trading post was established here by the Ohio Company, which was chartered by the British Government. Directors of the local company included Lawrence and Agustine Washington and Col. Thomas Cresap. The company was responsible for a storehouse being erected in the locality, Avirett declared.

The effect of an international situation which involved the British and French resulted in further development of the city and also the first of a number of visits here by George Washington, who later became the first president of the United States.

Avirett told Kiwanis members that the English and French were fuding over possession of the Ohio Valley, and that Major George Washington of the Colonial Militia of Virginia was sent to the Cumberland area to notify the French to leave the Ohio Valley.

After the notice was ignored, Avirett said Washington returned in 1754 with a small force intending to drive the French from the valley but he was defeated and forced to surrender at Fort Necessity.

The British Government then sent General Edward Braddock of His Majesty's army to the scene with Washington as his aide de camp. During this campaign a fort was erected in the present city area and named Fort Cumberland.

The fort, according to Avirett, was named in honor of the Duke of Cumberland who at the time was commanding general of the British Army. Braddock developed his campaign in the city area and then marched out through the Narrows and not over Braddock Road as is popularly supposed, Avirett informed the Kiwanis members.

The early history of the city, or rather the fort which was the bulwark for the City, is rich with history of Washington, for he made many visits here and actually received his military training from

Phone Workers To Consider Union Affiliation Sept. 9

Ballots Will Be Mailed Out Later

Maryland's telephone workers will meet in the Lyric Theater in Baltimore next Tuesday night in a first move toward deciding if they will affiliate with the AFL, CIO, the CWA or remain unaffiliated, according to Robert O. Slemmer, this city, vice president of the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers.

Slemmer said from 3,500 to 4,000 workers of the state's 6,900 organized telephone workers are expected to attend and that the crowd may be bolstered by attendance or representatives of the 5,000 to 6,000 workers at Western Electric's Point Breeze plant.

State telephone workers' unions, including those for plant, traffic and commercial employes, have been independent for 12 years but, Slemmer said, the last strike "showed that like the banana, if it's away from the bunch it gets skinned."

There will be no interruption to telephone service during the meeting inasmuch as employes scheduled to work will remain on the job, Slemmer pointed out.

He said representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL), the Telephone Workers Organizing Committee (CIO), and the Communications Workers of America (unaffiliated) will be given an opportunity at the meeting to discuss the merits of their organizations.

John Bierne, president of the CWA which succeeded the National Federation of Telephone Workers, will speak in behalf of CWA; Ted Sively, secretary of the TWOC, will present its merits and a Mr. Broach will discuss the advantages of membership in the AFL's IBEW.

Slemmer said that at present the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers is "leaning toward affiliation" with the IBEW.

Ballots to determine if the Maryland telephone workers will affiliate with the AFL, CIO or CWA will be sent out at a date to be set following the meeting.

Whitworth Undergoes Throat Operation

Attaches at Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, said last night that Horace P. Whitworth, Sr., Westernport attorney and a member of the Allegany County Bar Association, remains in good condition.

Foreman's Death Termed "Suicide" By Dr. Deming

Medical Examiner Announces Verdict

An official verdict of suicide in the death of John W. Foreman, Jr., World War II veteran, who doctors said died from chemical nephritis, was issued last night by Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner.

In commenting on the death of Foreman, who died in Memorial Hospital August 10, after being admitted a week previously, Dr. Deming said "after going over the records and conferring with the interested persons it is my opinion that it was definitely a case of suicide, which is my verdict."

Thanks The Press

In a prepared statement released to the Cumberland News last night Dr. Deming stated:

"In regard to the John W. Foreman case—

"I take this opportunity to thank the State's Attorney and his co-workers in their efforts to solve the case. They worked day and night to bring this case to a conclusion.

"I wish to thank the doctors for their co-operation, especially, Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, approved pathologist, for his untiring efforts in helping to solve this case.

"I also wish to thank the press.

"I extend my sympathy to the parents of Mr. John W. Foreman, Jr."

In a statement issued earlier in the day State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, who was assisted in the investigation by two Maryland State Police sergeants from the Pikesville headquarters investigation bureau, termed Foreman's death suicide.

In issuing the statement State's Attorney Harris also commented on recent editorials which were printed in local papers at the time when the death of Foreman was under investigation. His statement, in its entirety, follows:

"The Cumberland papers have been critical of the State's Attorney for suppressing news in connection with the case involving the death of John W. Foreman, Jr., and other fatal cases.

"I do not believe cases of a serious nature can be developed efficaciously if the progress of the investigation is reported in the newspapers from day to day. The reason for this conclusion is that the persons interrogated each day know as much about the case as the interrogator.

Believe in Free Press

"The gentlemen of the press may not agree with me, but this, nevertheless ,is my sincere conviction. I believe in a free and responsible press. They can play the news up or down and conceal its significance. The reporters and editors can create complacent fictions and blind spots; foster and feed emotions. As a public official, I want to be fair with the local press and, in return, I want and expect fair treatment.

"It is my considered opinion that now, and not sooner, is the time to print the developments in the Foreman case.

"John W. Foreman, Jr., aged 22, single, veteran of World War II, who was a Celanese employe, and resided at his parental home, 905 Virginia Avenue, Cumberland, Maryland, died at Memorial Hospital at 6:05 p. m., August 10. He had become ill on August 2. He was treated, in turn, by Dr. Blaine Schindler and Dr. Richard Williams, and was removed from his home to the hospital on August 6.

"Within two hours after Foreman's death, an autopsy was performed by Dr. Benedict Skitarelic. Certain specimens were thereafter forwarded to Dr. Friemuth, a Baltimore toxicologist, for chemical analysis. It was determined that Foreman died from mercury poisoning. An extensive investigation was immediately launched. Joining in this investigation were Sgt. John Cassidy and Sgt. Charles Main of the Maryland State Police, Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis and T. J. Boyle, County Investigator.

Was Seriously Wounded

"The activities, habits and associates of the deceased were thoroughly investigated. It was determined that he drank intoxicants more or less regularly. That he had contracted an obnoxious disease. That, due to the fact that he drank excessively and did not report for treatments when he should, this disease was growing progressively worse. That he had received a serious wound in the Battle of the Bulge with resulting war nerves.

"In January of this year, he met and fell in love with a young married woman. Until his death, they met several times each week. He sometimes went to her home at night while her husband was at work at the plant of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and this he did on the early morning of August 2 when he was intoxicated. He took a cab from the B. & O. YMCA and went to her home. Upon creating an alarm, he was admitted through the rear door. He proclaimed that he was no good and wished that he was six feet under the ground He asked for a glass of water and took a pill from his pocket. He put the pill in his mouth and washed it down with the water. He made a terrible grimace as though the pill was very distasteful. He told this woman that he had also taken a pill before he came to her home. He asked to lie down and did so until about 4:00 a. m. He then got a cab and went home. Saturday he was sick and grew worse until his death.

Had Threatened Suicide

"He had told his doctor in the summer of 1946 that he intended to commit suicide. On a number of other occasions he had threatened suicide. He gave as his reasons that his wound still gave him trouble; that his disease was getting worse; that his home conditions were unsatisfactory and that he was in debt. He drank more than

BACK TO SCHOOL—This picture of second graders filing into Johnson Heights School was duplicated throughout the county yesterday as schools opened for the 1947-48 term. Carol Ann Pague, playing jacks on the steps, probably wishes she was only five and didn't have to go to school, but she joined other students in the classroom after the photographer took the picture. Shown (left to right) are Lewis Earl Daniels, Linda Lee Lewis, Billy Alabaugh, Joyce Gross, Brenda Waite, Donnie Blank, Linda Fay Proudfoot and Robert Hill Thwaites.

CARD OF THANKS

We are taking this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us following the death of James Russell Kenney, Franklin, Md.

We especially wish to thank the Rev. George Pugh, assistant pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Westernport, celebrant of the funeral mass; Victory Post No. 155 American Legion for their kindness. Also Mr. Ellsworth Boal, Westernport, funeral director for his services. Also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes and donated the use of their automobiles for the funeral.

Stocks Tumble Before Support Stems Fast But Short Selloff

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (AP)—A fast but short-lived selloff tumbled leading stocks one to two or more points in today's market but support soon arrived and stemmed the retreat.

Offerings turned urgent for about 20 minutes in the second hour after mild early irregularity. The pace then slowed and extreme declines were reduced in the majority of cases at the close.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off .8 of a point at 64.6," a low since June 30. It was the widest dip since August 25. The market was the broadest since July 29. Of 1,007 issues registering, 742 fell and only 112 advanced.

Packard Motors was the day's liveliest sprinter, coming out on blocks of as much as 15,300 shares. It touched a 1947 bottom and finished off ⅛ at 4⅜.

Noblitt-Sparks conceded 3¼ at 48½, International Harvester 2⅝ at 84, McIntyre Porcupine two at 54, Union Pacific 1¾ at 138, Allied Chemical 1¾ at 184¼, United States Steel 1⅝ at 69 and Bethlehem 1⅝ at 85¾. On the offside a point or more were Youngstown Sheet at 67¼, Chrysler 58, J. I. Case 37¼, Deere 39, Western Union 23⅜, Anaconda 34⅜, Union Carbide 105, Santa Fe 82, Southern Pacific 42⅝, Southern Railway 36⅜, Great Northern Railway 39¼.

The bond market, paced by railroad issues, trailed after stocks for losses of fractions to around two points today.

Volume picked up to $3,440,000 from $3,044,000 Wednesday and was the largest in about two weeks.

Industrial and utility liens made a better showing than the carriers, with small gains and losses about a standoff.

Domestic corporates trimmed included B. and O. stamped convertibles at 47½, Boston and New York Airlines 4s at 55½, Chicago and Eastern Illinois incomes at 35, Northern Western 4½s at 66, Rock Island 4s of '88 at 81, Denver and Rio Grande Western incomes at 48¾, International Hydro-Electric 6s at 99, Missouri Pacific convertibles at 24, New York Central consolidated 4s at 67¼, New Haven 4½s of '67 at 52⅜, Cottonbelt refunding 5s at 83½ (off 2⅜), and Wisconsin Central 4s at 69.

United State governments moved narrowly in the over-the-counter market with the Victory Loan 2½s of 1967-'72 down 1/32 of a point at 102 28/32.

Graham Says City Airport Lease May Be Dropped

Attacks "Petty, Stinking Politics" In Replying To Post's Statement

Cumberland Airways Head Says Contract Renewal Depends On Improved Relations

Stating that he is "not very well pleased with petty, stinking politics," William J. Graham, Pittsburgh, president of Cumberland Airways, Inc., said last night he will not be interested in renewing his firm's lease to operate the Cumberland Municipal Airport unless relations with the city are improved.

Graham issued his statement in reply to a charge by Mayor Thomas S. Post at a recent meeting of the Municipal Airport Commission that the city was "sold down the river" when it leased the airport to Graham's firm.

At that time the mayor said the city would accomplish nothing until it had regained control of the airport. Graham said last night he agrees with Mayor Post that the city should operate the airport "if the mayor persists in his present attitude."

Seeks Explanation

The city leased the airport to Cumberland Airways effective January 1, 1946, for a 20-year term, with the agreement that the city would receive all profits over $1,000 for the first two years.

The preliminary period ends December 31, 1947, at which time terms of the lease will be due for renegotiation. The contract provides that if at that time the parties are unable to agree upon rental terms, the lease shall become void.

"I would like the mayor to explain why he thinks the city was 'sold down the river' in leasing the airport, since he was one of the leading lights in approving the lease when it was made," Graham said.

"If he was attacking specific individuals in his statement, he should have come out and said so," Graham declared, adding, "I don't propose to fight a situation which couldn't be a pleasant relationship."

He recalled that when he signed the lease contract in November, 1945, he stated the hope that he would have the friendly co-operation of city officials, and that he could develop the airport without becoming involved in "political issues."

At the airport commission's meeting August 26, the group voted to disallow operating charges totaling $2,310.51 in Cumberland Airways' financial report for 1946.

Items rejected were $1,383.57 for interest, $500 for promotion work and $416.66 for depreciation on a Beechcraft plane allegedly brought here for charter service.

T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, was instructed by Chairman Edmund S. Burke to communicate with Graham, asking him to readjust the report by eliminating those items.

Such readjustment would bring the net profit to $2,687.73 before taxes, instead of the $388.22 listed on the report.

Studying Request

Graham said last night he has received Shires' communication but that he is delaying a reply pending further study of the request.

He said any impartial judge would decide that the disputed items resulted from "normal operating cost," and added that he hopes to attend the next meeting of the commission, scheduled later this month, to "get things straightened out."

MISS MARYLAND—Carolyn Jean Dixon, Cumberland's 18-year old beauty representing the Free State in the Atlantic City Miss America pageant, is seen here in a colorful float as she participated along with 53 other lovely contestants in a boardwalk parade, a feature of the week-long pageant. Jean appeared Wednesday night in competition with 17 other girls in the bathing suit revue, and last night competed with the same unit in a display of talent.

Was Among First Five In Bathing Suit Revue

Singing her own theme song, "It Had To Be You," Carolyn Jean Dixon, Cumberland's "Miss Maryland" entry in the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N. J., appeared before an audience of over 15,000 persons last night for the second phase of the annual competition.

Competing with 17 other girls in her unit, some of whom appeared quite professional in their individual talents such as singing, dancing and fashion designing, Jean sang sweetly and drew more than her share of applause from the huge audience. She did not make her talent appearance until 11:30 p. m. and appeared as the 13th contestant in her group.

According to observers at the pageant, she was considered among the first five girls in the bathing beauty competition on the previous night, and it was again realized last night after the talent performance that she is scoring a fair share of points.

Final Competition Tonight

Tonight's final competition, in which she will appear in an evening gown, will determine if she has collected enough points to be among the top 15 finalists. Saturday at 11:30 p. m. the 15 finalists will be voted upon for the last time and from this group Miss America of 1947 will be selected.

Each of the finalists will receive at least a $1,000 scholarship and Miss America will receive a $5,000 scholarship.

Jack Moore, who accompanied Miss Dixon to Atlantic City as the representative of the local Jaycees, sponsors of the Maryland entry, said last night "Jean has done a proud job every time she has appeared, and she is trying very hard, but the competition is really tough."

Moore said "She sang like a little trooper tonight, and I feel sure she made a good impression on the judges. She has a chance to score pretty high, and we still hope to reach the finals."

Declaring it is unsafe to make predictions, Moore said most persons he has talked with seem to think Miss Miami Beach, who is Miss Donna Shore, will probably be Miss America of 1947, but Miss New York City, who is Miss Raven Malone, a movie starlet, is also a popular favorite.

Some Jobless Pay Claimants Exhaust Benefit Rights

Number Of Claims Filed Decreases

A decrease in the number of unemployment compensation claims filed in August at the Cumberland office of the State Unemployment Compensation Division is due largely to exhaustion of benefit rights of some claimants, Francis A. Kenney, manager of the local office, said yesterday.

Kenney pointed out that 7,430 claims were taken last month, a decrease of 1,187 from the 8,617 claims taken in July.

This reduction is "not necessarily significant," Kenney said, because some claimants have exhausted their benefit rights.

He added that he is not aware of "any substantial improvement" in the employment situation in the county.

Original claims for state compensation payments in August amounted to 483 while original claims for Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance benefits totaled 96.

Patrick J. Carroll, manager of the local office of the Maryland State Employment Service, reported yesterday that 283 persons were placed in jobs last month and that 391 new applications were received.

Job placements in August included 125 veterans, 13 handicapped veterans, 44 non-veteran men and 101 women.

New applications, including 139

Optimist Club To Sponsor Soap Box Derby Here

$235 Offered Boys In Cash Awards

Preliminary plans for a Soap Box Derby were outlined last night at a meeting of a committee representing the Cumberland Optimist Club, at Central YMCA, according to Fred P. Keyser, chairman.

The Optimists, as part of their youth welfare and boys work activities, will present $235 in cash prizes to the winners of the minature car race to be held Saturday, October 18, at 2 p. m. on Shriver Avenue in North Cumberland.

Keyser explained that entries will be limited to boys who have passed their 11th birthday and have not reached their 17th birthday. Only 36 entrants will be accepted, and each must be sponsored by a local merchant, business firm or organization.

Entries are open to all boys in those age brackets who live in the Cumberland trading area, and each boy must compete in a vehicle he has constructed himself. Official wheels must be used on all vehicles.

Competition will be in three groups with cash prizes as follows: Class A, boys 11 and 12, first prize $20; second prize $15; third prize $10. Class B, boys 13 and 14, first prize $20; second prize $15; and third prize $10. Class C, boys 15 and 16, first prize $20; second prize, $15; third prize $10. Winners in all three classes will then compete for a grand prize of $50 first, $30 second and $20 third.

Arrangements are being made with the Cumberland Police Department to rope off Shriver Avenue for the races. A ramp will be constructed at Piedmont Avenue to give the cars a start, and four lanes will be painted on the street for the racers. There will be 12 entries in each class, and four vehicles will compete at a time with the winners of each heat racing for prizes.

Boys interested in obtaining entry blanks should contact Walter L. Weires, 333 Baltimore Avenue, who will be official inspector for the cars, or from other members of the committee.

Keyser said the committee has been working on the idea for several months and has made arrangements for obtaining official vehicle wheels and these are to be distributed to entries by Duke Iles. The Mayor and City Council have approved the idea and at their recent meeting gave the club permission to use Shriver Avenue, and said the Police Department will cooperate. Numerous local business houses have expressed interest in the derby and have agreed to sponsor boys who will enter.

Allegany County School Opening Reported Normal

Slight Increase Is Noted In Enrollment

Allegany County high and elementary school classes experienced a "normal" opening as work of the 1947-48 term got underway yesterday in an "orderly" fashion, according to Dr. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

Principals of the local high schools, where half day sessions were conducted, indicated that from unofficial tabulations the student bodies will be slightly increased this year. However, they said, the enrollment of World War II veterans has declined sharply when compared with last year.

The work of educating children was resumed yesterday morning at 9 a. m. with most of the morning devoted to organization of classes and orientation of students, officials of the various schools explained.

1,608 At Fort Hill

Vice Principal Foy Curry, of Allegany High, estimated that the enrollment would just miss the 1,500 mark while Principal Arthur W. Taylor, of Beall High School, Frostburg, estimated that 850 students were enrolled yesterday.

Complete results of the county enrollment in high and elementary schools will not be completed before Saturday or possibly Monday of next week, said Arthur G. Ramey, supervisor of student personnel.

Dr. Kopp said he visited Allegany High School yesterday morning and conversed briefly with many of the students during the first hour of school, adding that the resumption of classes appeared to be smooth and orderly.

Saturday morning, principals and teachers of the county schools will meet at Allegany High School at 10 a. m. for the first general professional meeting of the new term. Dr. Kopp will preside at the meeting, and he said matters of professional interest in education will be the main topic of discussion.

Classes will continue on a half day schedule this morning, but the full day course will be resumed Monday, Dr. Kopp explained.

54 New Instructors

Of the 54 new instructors appointed to high school positions in the county, 21 are residents and former teachers of Pennsylvania; two are from Ohio, four from Virginia; two New Jersey; and one each from West Virginia, Maine and Connecticut.

Dr. Kopp said that of the newly appointed instructors 18 have master's degrees and 30 have more than five years of teaching experience, while 22 of that group have 10 or more years of experience.

Officials pointed out that such figures are significant in the new term, since many of the instructors employed in former years were newly commissioned teachers.

Principal Heisey said that only six veterans have returned to Fort Hill High this year while there were 52 enrolled at the beginning of the 1946-47 term. Other principals indicated that a larger percentage of veterans received diplomas this June and the low enrollment figure did not indicate that veterans were abandoning their pursuit of education.

Students returning to the high schools this fall will find at least two new courses being offered, one a course in automobile driving which will be presented to the seniors of high schools in the county for the first time, and the other a course in corrective speech which has been placed under the direction of a special department for the first time this year.

Avirett Addresses Local Kiwanis On Early History Of Cumberland

Tells Of Visits Washington Made

Pointing out the rich historical background of Cumberland, James Alfred Avirett, U. S. Commissioner, and local attorney, yesterday addressed members of the Kiwanis Club on the city's history dating from 1728 to 1800.

Avirett said the city's formation and historical background actually began in 1728 when the first white settlers visited this section of the country and subsequently established a trading post in the area now included in the city limits.

Chief Will of the Shawnee tribe of Algonquin Indians assisted the first settlers and traders and it is after him that the mountain overlooking the city and the creek which flows through it are named, Avirett explained.

The chief remained here with the settlers after many of his tribe moved westward and aided the white men in establishing routes and becoming familiar with the region.

Trading Post Established

In 1749, according to Avirett, the first trading post was established here by the Ohio Company, which was chartered by the British Government. Directors of the local company included Lawrence and Agustine Washington and Col. Thomas Cresap. The company was responsible for a storehouse being erected in the locality, Avirett declared.

The effect of an international situation which involved the British and French resulted in further development of the city and also the first of a number of visits here by George Washington, who later became the first president of the United States.

Avirett told Kiwanis members that the English and French were fuding over possession of the Ohio Valley, and that Major George Washington of the Colonial Militia of Virginia was sent to the Cumberland area to notify the French to leave the Ohio Valley.

After the notice was ignored, Avirett said Washington returned in 1754 with a small force intending to drive the French from the valley but he was defeated and forced to surrender at Fort Necessity.

The British Government then sent General Edward Braddock of His Majesty's army to the scene with Washington as his aide de camp. During this campaign a fort was erected in the present city area and named Fort Cumberland.

The fort, according to Avirett, was named in honor of the Duke of Cumberland who at the time was commanding general of the British Army. Braddock developed his campaign in the city area and then marched out through the Narrows and not over Braddock Road as is popularly supposed, Avirett informed the Kiwanis members.

The early history of the city, or rather the fort which was the bulwark for the City, is rich with history of Washington, for he made many visits here and actually received his military training from

Phone Workers To Consider Union Affiliation Sept. 9

Ballots Will Be Mailed Out Later

Maryland's telephone workers will meet in the Lyric Theater in Baltimore next Tuesday night in a first move toward deciding if they will affiliate with the AFL, CIO, the CWA or remain unaffiliated, according to Robert O. Slemmer, this city, vice president of the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers.

Slemmer said from 3,500 to 4,000 workers of the state's 6,900 organized telephone workers are expected to attend and that the crowd may be bolstered by attendance or representatives of the 5,000 to 6,000 workers at Western Electric's Point Breeze plant.

State telephone workers' unions, including those for plant, traffic and commercial employes, have been independent for 12 years but, Slemmer said, the last strike "showed that like the banana, if it's away from the bunch it gets skinned."

There will be no interruption to telephone service during the meeting inasmuch as employes scheduled to work will remain on the job, Slemmer pointed out.

He said representatives of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (AFL), the Telephone Workers Organizing Committee (CIO), and the Communications Workers of America (unaffiliated) will be given an opportunity at the meeting to discuss the merits of their organizations.

John Bierne, president of the CWA which succeeded the National Federation of Telephone Workers, will speak in behalf of CWA; Ted Sively, secretary of the TWOC, will present its merits and a Mr. Broach will discuss the advantages of membership in the AFL's IBEW.

Slemmer said that at present the Maryland Federation of Telephone Workers is "leaning toward affiliation" with the IBEW.

Ballots to determine if the Maryland telephone workers will affiliate with the AFL, CIO or CWA will be sent out at a date to be set following the meeting.

Whitworth Undergoes Throat Operation

Whitworth underwent an operation Tuesday for removal of a growth in his throat. He will be a patient at the hospital for two weeks.

BACK TO SCHOOL—This picture of second graders filing into Johnson Heights School was duplicated throughout the county yesterday as schools opened for the 1947-48 term. Carol Ann Pague, playing jacks on the steps, probably wishes she was only five and didn't have to go to school, but she joined other students in the classroom after the photographer took the picture. Foreman's Death Termed "Suicide" By Dr. Deming

Medical Examiner Announces Verdict

An official verdict of suicide in the death of John W. Foreman, Jr., World War II veteran, who doctors said died from chemical nephritis, was issued last night by Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner.

In commenting on the death of Foreman, who died in Memorial Hospital August 10, after being admitted a week previously, Dr. Deming said "after going over the records and conferring with the interested persons it is my opinion that it was definitely a case of suicide, which is my verdict."

Thanks The Press

In a prepared statement released to the Cumberland News last night Dr. Deming stated:

"In regard to the John W. Foreman case—

"I take this opportunity to thank the State's Attorney and his co-workers in their efforts to solve the case. They worked day and night to bring this case to a conclusion.

"I wish to thank the doctors for their co-operation, especially, Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, approved pathologist, for his untiring efforts in helping to solve this case.

"I also wish to thank the press.

In a statement issued earlier in the day State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris, who was assisted in the investigation by two Maryland State Police sergeants from the Pikesville headquarters investigation bureau, termed Foreman's death suicide.

In issuing the statement State's Attorney Harris also commented on recent editorials which were printed in local papers at the time when the death of Foreman was under investigation. His statement, in its entirety, follows:

"The Cumberland papers have been critical of the State's Attorney for suppressing news in connection with the case involving the death of John W. Foreman, Jr., and other fatal cases.

"I do not believe cases of a serious nature can be developed efficaciously if the progress of the investigation is reported in the newspapers from day to day. The reason for this conclusion is that the persons interrogated each day know as much about the case as the interrogator.

Believe in Free Press

"The gentlemen of the press may not agree with me, but this, nevertheless, is my sincere conviction. I believe in a free and responsible press. They can play the news up or down and conceal its significance. The reporters and editors can create complacent fictions and blind spots; foster and feed emotions. As a public official, I want to be fair with the local press and, in return, I want and expect fair treatment.

"It is my considered opinion that now, and not sooner, is the time to print the developments in the Foreman case.

"John W. Foreman, Jr., aged 22, single, veteran of World War II, who was a Celanese employe, and resided at his parental home, 905 Virginia Avenue, Cumberland, Maryland, died at Memorial Hospital at 6:05 p. m., August 10. He had become ill on August 2. He was treated, in turn, by Dr. Blaine Schindler and Dr. Richard Williams, and was removed from his home to the hospital on August 6.

"Within two hours after Foreman's death, an autopsy was performed by Dr. Benedict Skitarelic. Certain specimens were thereafter forwarded to Dr. Friemuth, a Baltimore toxicologist, for chemical analysis. It was determined that Foreman died from mercury poisoning. An extensive investigation was immediately launched. Joining in this investigation were Sgt. John Cassidy and Sgt. Charles Main of the Maryland State Police, Deputy Sheriff Edgar Lewis and T. J. Boyle, County Investigator.

Was Seriously Wounded

"The activities, habits and associates of the deceased were thoroughly investigated. It was determined that he drank intoxicants more or less regularly. That he had contracted an obnoxious disease. That, due to the fact that he drank excessively and did not report for treatments when he should, this disease was growing progressively worse. That he had received a serious wound in the Battle of the Bulge with resulting war nerves.

"In January of this year, he met and fell in love with a young married woman. Until his death, they met several times each week. He sometimes went to her home at night while her husband was at work at the plant of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company and this he did on the early morning of August 2 when he was intoxicated. He took a cab from the B. & O. YMCA and went to her home. Upon creating an alarm, he was admitted through the rear door. He proclaimed that he was no good and wished that he was six feet under the ground He asked for a glass of water and took a pill from his pocket. He put the pill in his mouth and washed it down with the water. He made a terrible grimace as though the pill was very distasteful. He told this woman that he had also taken a pill before he came to her home. He asked to lie down and did so until about 4:00 a. m. He then got a cab and went home. Saturday he was sick and grew worse until his death.

Had Threatened Suicide

"He had told his doctor in the summer of 1946 that he intended to commit suicide. On a number of other occasions he had threatened suicide. He gave as his reasons that his wound still gave him trouble; that his disease was getting worse; that his home conditions were unsatisfactory and that he was in debt. He drank more than
